McCauley Proposes:

- 4-Year Mayor, Council Terms
- Conservation Administrator
- 5-Member Zoning Board

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Mayor Francis McCauley, who was sworn into his third term Monday, said he will introduce a home rule petition at the Jan. 20 City Council meeting to increase the term of office of mayor from two years to four years.

The terms of office of City Councillors would also be increased from two years to four years as part of the home rule petition which McCauley discussed at inauguration ceremonies held at Quincy Vocational Technical School.

City Councillors and School Committee members also took their oath of office.

Ward 5 Councillor Stephen J. McGrath was unanimously elected council president.

Stephen J. Durkin was unanimously elected school committee vice chairman.

Thomas J. Nutley was sworn in as the new Ward 6 councillor, succeeding Joanne Condon who gave up her seat in an unsuccessful bid for mayor.

Margaret D. Nigro and Frank C. Santoro were sworn in as new school committee members. They defeated Joan Picard and Nicholas Verenis in the election.

Council were Ward 1 Councillor Michael T. Cheney, Ward 2 Councillor Theodore P. DeCristofaro, Ward 3 Councillor John J. Lydon, Jr., Ward 4 Councillor James A. Sheets, Councillors at Large Richard J. Koch, Jr., Joseph J. LaRaia and Patricia M. Toland.

School committee members also sworn in were Francis F. Anselmo, Mary P. Collins and Christopher Kennedy.

"In recent years, there has been a trend in this country both at the local level with mayors and at the state level with governors and constitutional officers throughout the country to increase the terms of office to mayors and governors from two years to four years," said McCauley.

"This trend has not been as prevalent in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts," said McCauley who noted that the mayor of Boston has been elected to four year terms for over 30 years.

Newton, Lawrence and Brockton have also adopted four year terms for their mayors, according to McCauley.

The home rule petition has to be adopted by the council, signed by the mayor and sent on to the legislature, McCauley said.

"This is an important change in our charter and the home rule petition calls for submitting this particular matter to the voters and the voters would have the final say. They would vote on this at the state election in November, 1986.

"I would hope that, whatever the feelings of the councillors are, that they would at least offer the opportunity of our citizens to vote on this particular matter," McCauley said.

He also said he would again submit a home rule petition providing for a commissioner of public health who would have a master's degree in public health and two year's experience.

The position would no longer require a medical doctor, according to McCauley.

"It's very difficult to get a medical doctor," said McCauley, "and there's a serious question as to whether or not we really need a medical doctor in that particular area."

McCauley noted that Quincy has not had a public health commissioner, or fifth

Panel To Select Sun's 'Citizen Of Year'

A special panel of judges has been named to select The Quincy Sun's first annual "Citizen of the Year."

The winner for 1985 will be selected from 31 nominees submitted by readers of The Sun.

Sun publisher Henry Bosworth appointed to the panel:

Senator Paul Harold, Dr. Clayton Johnson, president of Quincy Junior College; Rabbi Jacob Mann of Beth Israel Synagogue; Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, director of Pupil Personnel Services in the Quincy public schools; Kathryn Roberts, Republican state committeewoman, member of the Quincy Planning Board and businesswoman; Thomas McDonald, former state commander of the VFW and long active in veterans affairs; Richard Realini, president of the Quincy Sons of Italy and David Leitch, of Burgin Platner Insurance, past president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

The award will honor one of the 31 nominees for outstanding community service or for an outstanding achievement.

The winner will be announced later this month.

Although other organizations recognize outstanding individuals, The Sun's award is unique in that the public is invited to nominate recipients.

And, now a panel of judges will make the final selection from among those nominated.

"This gives the community input in the choice," said Bosworth.

"We appreciate the response on the part of our readers in making nominations." "And we are grateful to those who have accepted appointment as judges. Their task is not going to be an easy one. We have some outstanding nominees."

Dacey Bros. License Transferred Despite Residents Objections

By LINDA WILKINS

The city Licensing Board granted the transfer of a common victualer license held by Dacey Bros. to the Dairy Mart store at 200 Sea St. despite objections from several Merrymount residents.

The license was originally granted to Dacey Bros., which formerly occupied the site, in September of 1984 and contained a number of stipulations, including hours of 7 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Also included were 14 items agreed upon by Dacey and the Merrymount Association covering topics such as fencing, deliveries, litter, landscaping and removal of tanks.

According to Atty. Robert Fleming, who represented Dairy Mart at the meeting, the Dairy Mart Corp. purchased the store in November of 1984 and spent a considerable amount of money to comply with the 14 items agreed upon.

Some of the neighbors have called and said that the 14 points were not complied with.

Central School Assn. Meeting

The Central Middle School will hold its Home School Association meeting Thursday Jan. 9 at 7:30 p.m.

All are welcomed and urged to attend the meeting which will be held at the school, 1012 Hancock St.

"On every occasion, Dairy Mart has responded at great expense to them," said Ward 1 Councilor Michael Cheney, adding that he was in favor of granting the transfer because Dairy Mart had complied with the items agreed upon.

"We used the common victualers license as a vehicle to cover neighbor's concerns," he said.

But neighbors present at the meeting said they did not want the transfer granted.

"Who is going to pick up the mess," asked Barbara McConville of Merrymount. McConville said a petition opposing such items as the granting of a common victualer license was signed by 372 residents of the area and presented to the board at its September 1984 meeting.

"Obviously Dairy Mart does not care about the wishes of 372 neighbors," she said.

Other residents present at the meeting said litter from the store's customers is strewn on area streets, such as Narragansett Rd. and Somerset Ave.

Health Department inspector Bertrand LaPointe said the Health Department was "having trouble with Dairy Mart stores regarding cleanliness," Atty. Fleming said he had not been notified by the department of any complaints.

"If the people involved haven't been notified of the problem, they can't be expected to do anything about it," said Police Chief and board member Francis Finn.

"It isn't fair to make an allegation if you're not going to go back and tell the people what's wrong."

Cheney told the board if the license was granted and Dairy Mart did not keep the area clean, he would file complaints. "If a common victualer license is issued, there would be more trash. If the board grants a common victualer license, I would request a maintenance agreement," he said.

Louis Mazzini, Chairman of Community Affairs, Merrymount Association, told the board that many of the 14 items have been taken care of but added a six foot fence and a gate need to be put on the property. "If we can get a fence and a gate, the association will be all set," he said.

"They (Dairy Mart) have complied with the 14 points with the understanding that they'd get a common victualer license. I'm going to make a motion that this license be granted with the stipulation that they be on probation for one year," Finn said. He told the residents he did not think traffic would be affected much.

The license will be for take-out food only and was granted with the stipulation that a fence and gate be installed.

New School Committee Vice-Chairman Programs Restoration, Class Sizes Among Durkin's Concerns

Stephen J. Durkin, 29, was unanimously elected vice chairman of the Quincy School Committee Monday and said he hoped to restore programs such as Project Outreach and to keep a watchful eye on class sizes.

The text of his speech: "Mayor McCauley, members of City Council, colleagues on the School Committee, platform guests and citizens of Quincy, it is with pride that I accept the honor, given me by my colleagues, of serving as Vice-Chairman of the committee for 1986 and 1987."

"As my first official act as Vice-Chairman, I am pleased to welcome the two newest members of the School Committee—Margaret Nigro and Frank Santoro. I look forward to working with both of them, as well as the other members of the committee, to help bring about continued improvements in the school system during the next two years."

"I would also like to recognize the service to the City of Quincy of one School Committee member in particular, Mr. Frank Anselmo, who is beginning his 25th year on the committee. I think his length of service to our city and to public education deserves the appreciation of all of us. Frank Anselmo certainly has my respect and admiration."

"On a personal note, I want to thank my wife, Maureen, for her support during the past two years."

"During my first two years on the committee, the School System, under the leadership of Superintendent Osterman, has undertaken several important efforts which should be mentioned:

- The School Department has accomplished a review of curriculum in certain areas to ensure uniformity in what is being taught.

- The school system's policy on homework has been revised to make certain that all students are assigned homework appropriate to their grade level on a regular basis.

- A Child Assault Prevention Program was developed and implemented with the help of parents and has received national recognition.

STEPHEN J. DURKIN addresses the audience after being elected vice chairman of the Quincy School Committee. (Quincy Sun photo by Charles Flagg)

- Efforts have been made at the high schools to improve disciplinary procedures and attendance.

- And the School Committee has established a subcommittee on Special Education in an effort to stay attuned to parents' concerns in that area.

"Despite these efforts, much is left to be done..."

"During the last two years, we have discovered that a markedly disproportionate number of high school students had failed two or more subjects."

"And sadly, high school students are still dropping out of school at an unacceptable rate."

"While School Department staff have begun to seriously look at these problems, it is clear that we need to make more of a commitment if we are to be successful in helping these students."

"It is my hope that during the next year we can restore programs such as Project Outreach and that we will make a better effort to monitor the progress of students who are at risk of failing."

"And we need to keep a watchful eye on class sizes to ensure manageable classes at all grade levels in every school."

"A final point I want to make concerns parents of children in the Quincy Public Schools. In any good school system, it is important that parents be active participants in the education of their children. Those parents who do become involved help to make ours a better school system."

"In an attempt to involve parents in the policy-making process, the School Committee has established an Open Forum at the beginning of each School Committee meeting. I would encourage you as parents to take advantage of this opportunity to voice your concerns to the School Committee and School Administration. And if not involved already, I urge parents to be active in their school's parent organizations, make suggestions, ask questions and demand answers."

"Along with my colleagues on the committee, I look forward to working with parents, with the administration, and with our dedicated and talented staff to bring about continued improvements in the educational offerings to Quincy's young people, who deserve the very best we can give them."

New City Council President

McGrath Proposes Three New Committees

Ward 5 Councilor Stephen McGrath, 32, was unanimously elected City Council president Monday and proposed the creation of committees on education, state and federal funds and human services.

The text of his speech: "Mayor McCauley, former mayors, fellow councilors, members of our legislative delegation, reverend clergy, friends:

It is with a deep sense of honor that I assume the office of President of the Quincy City Council.

Honor because, in my judgment, there is no greater honor than to be selected by one's own peers to a position of leadership.

My first remarks I direct to my fellow councilors, and those are: Thank you! My pledge to my fellow councilors is that I will work as hard as humanly possible to make you proud of me and to conduct the business of the council in as fair and impartial a manner as possible.

My pledge to the people of the city of Quincy is to continue the role of the council as that of the closest link of the people to their city government.

To properly perform our duties as councilors, we must respond to the concerns of those who elected us in as open and fair a manner as possible. I plan to continue that tradition of fairness that, in my judgment, has made the Quincy City Council a most open and accessible deliberative body.

To that end, the council committee system is the backbone of a responsive and informed council and must change to the demands of the times and current community concerns.

Therefore, in addition to the present committee structure, it is my intention as council president to create several new committees to deal with city issues.

I propose and will appoint a committee on education to work as a liaison with our elected school committee to develop a closer working relationship with that important body. For too long has an atmosphere of distance existed between the council and the school committee. An education committee will enable the city council, working with the school committee, to be more informed and advocate on issues related to our school system.

A committee on state and federal funds will be suggested to address the expected diminishing of federal revenue sharing and community development funds, and to guide their spending wisely as well as investigate untapped sources of state assistance.

I propose a council committee on human services to assist in dealing with problems of shelter and hunger which exist even in our own city of presidents.

Now, I would like to touch briefly upon two existing committees and the important role I foresee for them over the next two years.

One is the committee on downtown and economic development whose role I would like to see expanded to seriously consider the dangers of overdevelopment in our city. I would ask the chairman I will name to that committee to begin exploring the alternatives of affordable housing and more controlled growth that I believe are vital to maintaining a livable city.

Secondly, I believe that one of the most important issues facing our city is the completion of the hospital replacement facility. Under the leadership of my predecessor, Councilor Sheets, and Councilors Toland and Lydon, this project is well on its way with, importantly, adequate protection and input for surrounding neighbors, in place.

I believe that the continued progress of this project and a close working relationship with the appointed board of managers is vital to the future health care of our citizens and our city and will be a top priority of mine in my term as president, to emphasize the council concern for this vital project.

The city of Quincy continues to be faced by the challenges of the eighties and must also look ahead to the challenges of the nineties: overdevelopment, the need for affordable housing, affordable health care, traffic congestion and the need for providing basic city services. These are the issues that will face those of us in government over the next two years.

I look forward to a close working relationship with Mayor McCauley during the upcoming term. There will naturally be disagreements, but they will be the disagreements of well-meaning men and women searching for the correct solution to do the best we can for our city.

I have had the honor and privilege of serving under four council presidents - John Quinn, Leo Kelly, John Lydon and Jim Sheets. Each was unique in his concept of the role of the council president and his contribution to the office. But all were the same in their shared belief in the integral part that the council plays in its role in city government.

I know that the council president is elected by nine ballots of the elected city councilors and not by the community at large. Therefore, though I have not been elected by your ballots, I ask that you confirm me by your prayers, that, working together, we do the best that we can in continuing to make Quincy a livable and safe city in which to live, to work and to enjoy.

Mayor Considering Resubmitting Residence C Change

Mayor Francis McCauley said he is considering sending back to the City Council a zoning change for residence C which was not included in an order passed last week.

The council voted 8 to 1 in favor of a zoning change to reduce the number of units which can be put on a parcel of land, and slow the rate of development in the city.

Ward 1 Councilor Michael Cheney voted against the order because of amendments approved at the special council meeting Jan. 2, which he said didn't address the problem of overdevelopment.

"I signed the order," said McCauley, "but we really got half a loaf."

"I'm disappointed the council didn't act on Residence C, but we did get the part about Residence B and parking."

"It's a step in the right direction, but not as much as I'd like," said McCauley, who co-sponsored the order with then Council President James Sheets.

The order will increase the dimension requirements needed for Residence B minimum lot area per dwelling unit from 2,000 square feet to 2,500. The order had originally proposed an increase to 3,000 square feet.

Parking requirements for two family and multi family dwellings in Residence B and C will be increased by .25 spaces per dwelling unit for guest parking.

The mayor had also proposed increasing the dimension requirements under Residence C, minimum lot area per dwelling unit, from 1,000 square feet to 1,250, but the increase was not made.

The amendments were submitted by then Councilor Joanne Condon. They were proposed as a compromise by business people and home owners at the end of a packed public hearing Dec. 16.

Councilors Michael Cheney, Patricia Toland and Sheets voted against the amendments.

Conservation Hearing

The Quincy Conservation Commission was scheduled to meet last night (Wednesday) at 7:30 p.m. in the second floor conference room at City Hall.

Among the agenda items were public hearings on the Boston Harbor Marina Co. and Pezce Family Trust.

The Boston Harbor Marina hearing was in regard to notice of intent to extract and remove existing timber piles as well as to drive new timber piles to change the configuration of an existing floating dock system at 542 East Squantum St.

The Pezce Family Trust hearing involved Alfred Pezce, trustee, and filling of right of way to grade the sidewalk less than 1,000 square feet at Elm St. and McGrath Highway.

4-Year Terms? Think!

Mayor Francis McCauley's proposal to increase the terms of mayor and city councillors from two to four years should be given a good, hard look by the residents of Quincy.

There is no doubt it would be a good thing — for the mayor and councillors.

They wouldn't have to face the voters and give an accounting of their performance in office as often as they do now.

But, would it be a good thing for the people?

Why are four year terms necessary? Why tinker with Quincy's present Plan A charter when it has proven to be one of the finest forms of municipal government anywhere?

Mayor and city council incumbents certainly would benefit from a four-year term. They would have two extra years before having to go before their constituents for a performance grade at the ballot box.

What is wrong with having them continue giving an accounting every two years?

An incumbent mayor has nothing to fear from the voters as long as he has shown he is honest, has some common sense and is trying to do a good job.

Neither should a city councillor have any fears if he or she is doing the job voters elected them to do.

There has been no outcry on the part of the people to increase the terms to four years. No one has been rushing around with petitions and pens.

The proposal comes from an incumbent mayor who, could very well be a candidate for the first four year term. The home rule petition he will submit to the council Jan. 20 will be voted on by councillors who would also benefit from it if they should run.

McCauley notes that in the final analysis, the question would go on this year's state election ballot and the people would then have their say.

But, those same people did not and have not asked that the question be put on a ballot. This is not their idea.

The McCauley administration has been a good one. And, perhaps, the reaction of some people would be: "Why not, he's a good mayor."

But this would increase the terms of mayors to follow him — and terms of councillors to follow the present incumbents — for years to come.

The best argument against a four year term is the wrong mayor or city councillor(s).

Four years is a long, long time with the wrong person in the mayor's office or in the city council chamber.

Voters and residents of Quincy should look at the proposal carefully.

And think what Quincy would be like with the wrong man in the mayor's office for four long years.

Incidentally, McCauley, himself, is another argument against a four-year term. He has just been elected to his third two-year term and it hasn't caused him any noticeable problem in running the city in a business-like manner.

So, why change something that is working well?

McCAULEY

FR. DANIEL GRAHAM, associate pastor of St. John's Church, Quincy Center, has returned from a sabbatical leave.

And, is counting his blessings.

Fr. Graham left last September to study scripture and liturgy in Rome. And, he planned to return after Christmas.

But recently, Fr. Edward Carroll, associate pastor, was seriously injured in an auto accident leaving St. John's, one of the busiest churches in the city short-handed for priests.

And, as Christmas, one of the busiest church seasons, approached Fr. Graham was asked to cut his sabbatical short and come back to help.

He left two days before Christmas and was here for the Christmas Eve and Christmas Day masses.

He had planned to leave Rome two days after Christmas — Dec. 27.

If he had stayed until then, he would have been in the Rome airport at the precise moment Palestinian terrorists struck.

That attack and a closely timed one at the Vienna airport left 18 persons dead — including four terrorists — and 112 persons wounded.

YOU MIGHT SAY there was a romantic footnote for Quincy's history at Mayor Francis McCauley's third term inaugural Monday.

As McCauley raised his right hand to take the oath of office from City Clerk John Gillis, his left hand grasped the hand of his wife, Sandra, who stood beside him.

Well, when's the last time you saw the mayor of Quincy and the First Lady holding hands at an inaugural?

MAYBE City Planning Director James Lydon should take up ping-pong.

Lydon got an unexpected and unwanted present Christmas Eve: a cast for his left leg which was broken below the knee while playing racquetball.

He is managing to get around with a cane.

Not too long ago he injured his eye in a racquetball match.

He has no intentions of quitting, though.

Asked if he intends to continue playing, he says with a smile, "Sure."

Not until he gets the cast off, though.

Says Dukakis Politically Motivated On Surtax Repeal Support

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Recently, Gov. Michael Dukakis took credit for the "largest tax cut in the history of the Commonwealth" when he signed the surtax-repeal bill eliminating the ten-year temporary surtax on our state income taxes.

As a fiscal conservative, I should be applauding Gov. Dukakis for ending that "temporary" surtax the first Dukakis Administration authored back in 1975, however, I feel now is an inappropriate time for doing so for the following reasons.

Last year, 40 per cent of all state revenues raised went to cities and towns trying to manage under the restrictions of Propositions 2 1/2 and with the recent passage on the national level of Gramm-Rudman, much needed services to the elderly, children, mentally-ill and other members of the permanent underclass of poor people will be severely impacted.

The 7 1/2 per cent surtax was quite painless to middle-class taxes, while quite helpful in funding many state and local programs benefiting the entire community of people.

The only reason Gov. Dukakis supported the death of the surtax with such great fanfare was due to his upcoming re-election plans. The move was politically-motivated but hardly helpful to the poor and working people he champions.

Politics brought about the surtax and politics took it away. Can Dukakis take credit for being a tax cutter when he was the tax raiser in the first place?

The Norfolk County's top law enforcement officer declared that an efficient and effective criminal justice system is overcrowding the state's prisons.

"A decade ago, the conviction rate was 30 per cent and today it is 95 per cent. That's why our jails are overflowing."

those who believe that judges are too easy on criminals. "Judges are not soft. The guilty are going to jail. That's why we are going to have to spend hundreds of millions of dollars to expand the correction system."

He pointed out to that Quincy club membership that under the previous system it took three years for a criminal case to go to trial. "By that time many witnesses died or were gone. Now cases go to trial in three months. As a result, the crime rate is down—particularly violent crimes."

Delahunt said his office can now concentrate on such problems as driving under the influence and child abuse. "We couldn't have dealt effectively with those issues when I took office in 1975."

Delahunt also believes that the state's traffic fatalities are down from 1000 in 1980 to 630 in 1985 "because we now have time to focus on the problem. "We've come a long way in the last decade. There's still more to accomplish, but we're going in the right direction."

Prudential Type Fire Seen Unlikely Here

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

It's highly unlikely that Quincy would find itself fighting a fire as serious as the one at the 52-story Prudential Tower in Boston last week, according to the acting fire chief.

The city has very few buildings over 10 stories high, and, since 1973, any building 70 feet or higher has to have a sprinkler system according to law, said Acting Fire Chief Carl Valenti.

The Prudential Tower was built before the sprinkler law. Fifteen hundred workers had to be evacuated when fire broke out on the 14th floor.

Twelve persons were taken to hospitals for smoke inhalation and about 15 others were treated at the scene.

The QFD sent Engine 4 and Ladder 5 to cover stations in Boston so that the BFD could fight the fire, said Valenti.

"All the firefighting had to be done from within the building," said Valenti, "it was a very difficult situation."

"Plus there was heavy smoke and a tremendous amount of heat," said Valenti.

"It was very fortunate that there weren't more injuries."

Cause of the fire is still undetermined. Valenti said that among the few buildings over 10 stories in Quincy are the Executive House and Pagnano Towers, which have 13 stories.

"We'd be able to perform most of the work with aerial ladders (if there were a fire)," said Valenti.

Tony Siciliano, deputy director of Quincy Civil Defense, said that his department sent a rescue and lighting unit, as well as 10 rescue and auxiliary fire fighters to the Boston fire. They were at the scene as backups for about three hours, he said.

Siciliano noted that Quincy has a new comprehensive emergency management plan for nursing homes and senior citizen complexes, as requested by Mayor Francis McCauley.

The plan was requested after a fire at the Merry-mount Manor more than a year ago showed the need for such an outline.

Seniors Security Service Funding Answer In March

It may be March before Mayor Francis McCauley has an answer for the City Council on funding for continuation of security services at two Quincy senior citizen buildings.

"It's not that we don't want to help," said McCauley, "but we have to watch the federal government."

McCauley was referring to the Gramm/Rudman Bill, a deficit reduction bill, which could affect the city's federal revenue sharing this year, according to McCauley.

"We have the matter under consideration," said McCauley, who added that a decision by the federal government is due no later than March 1.

Councilors Stephen J. McGrath and Theodore P. DeCristofaro presented to the City Council Jan. 2 a resolve regarding 80 Clay St., Wollaston, and Martensen St., Quincy Point.

The resolve, which was forwarded to the mayor, noted that community development funds have been used for private security positions for the past several years.

"We have been told by Mr. (Rick) Domas of the Planning Department that the $20,000 in funding for these positions will no longer continue, as the social services portion of the CD budget can no longer support this funding due to a federally mandated cap," said McGrath and DeCristofaro.

The councilors noted that with the city in a positive cash position, that could be available from city funds.

However, they noted that the real problem is the lack of availability of state funds to provide security for the state facilities.

The state Fire Marshal's office will pay $1,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of an arsonist responsible for a series of fires in North Quincy.

Deputy Fire Chief Francis X. O'Hara said the reward notice was posted by that state agency, in conjunction with the city's Arson Watch Program, to aid them in stopping whoever is responsible for these rash of fires set the past several months.

O'Hara said anyone having information about the fires should telephone 1-800-682-9229, or the fire department at 773-9800. All calls or contacts will be kept confidential. O'Hara added that those who request anonymity in this matter are urged to make contact "so we can stop these acts before they become more serious."

A recent fire caused extensive damage to the back of a vacant building at 192 Billings Rd. The fire was set in the back and fits the pattern of others set in the area during the past several months.

The state Fire Marshal's office was called in for assistance following a two-alarm fire that destroyed a garage at an Atlantic Ave. home early New Year's eve. The fire also damaged an automobile, snowblower and lawn equipment. Other garage fires have occurred in the area and also several dumpster fires.

Fire officials said all were set between midnight and 8 a.m. and started by igniting rubbish.

In a couple of the cases, the fires have been set inside the garages, while in the others, the outside of the garages were torched.

Fire officials are hoping that people will take note of this and start locking their garages and maybe leaving lights on out back. They also stress residents should report any suspicious people in the area to the fire or police departments.

O'Hara added "This is our city let us work together to protect our citizens and our property."

By LINDA WILKINS

The License Board voted Tuesday to continue to Jan. 14 a request from Safety Realty Trust for a lodging house license at 166 Independence Ave., South Quincy, to allow Ward 4 Councilor James Sheets time to review the request and meet with area residents.

Sheets indicated he needed more time because he did not learn of the request until he received the agenda last Saturday.

"It was not until yesterday (Monday) that I became aware that they wanted to turn the building into a boarding house. I have to assume that if I hadn't picked up the agenda, I wouldn't have known this board was considering action," he said.

"It's our feeling that there isn't that kind of neighborhood concern there," said Atty. Robert Fleming, who represented Safety Realty Trust.

Fleming said the building, a two story wood frame house, would consist of 11 rooms. He added that there would be adequate parking.

"We're talking about 12 automobiles, that's a significant change," Sheets said.

Fleming told the board the building is located in a residence C area bordering on an industrial A area. He said the firm had complied with all of the zoning requirements and had met with the building inspector.

"This issue is not one of zoning, it's of a license. The people who about this building have not been notified and if this board acts today, I will strongly oppose this license," Sheets said.

It is not always easy to understand another person...his thoughts, his actions, his beliefs. In fact, the actions, emotions and thoughts of others can often leave us confused and baffled.

"How can others do some of the things they do?" How can others believe in things so contrary to what we think and do? ... When this happens, wouldn't it be a good idea to at least try and remember not to be too quick to judge? Wouldn't this be a good time to remember that no two human beings are alike in their thoughts and emotions? No two human beings are molded by exactly the same experiences. Wouldn't this be a good time to try to understand and learn as much as possible about the feelings and points of views of the other person? Granted, this is not always an easy thing to do. In fact, sometimes the differing thoughts and actions will never be understood. Yet, couldn't it be said that attempting to understand, tempered with a great deal of patience and tolerance, can at least prevent the differences in viewpoint from being needlessly distorted and exaggerated?

At least it is a start... A worthwhile endeavor...

ASBESTOS LUNG DISEASE

Asbestos dust causes serious lung ailments; the diseases appear suddenly, years after exposure. Today numerous SHIPYARD WORKERS, MASONS, and PIPEFITTERS of the 1930's-1970's have lung afflictions because they inhaled asbestos particles many years ago.

If you worked in one of those professions then and now have a lung disease, you may be eligible to receive money damages or workers' compensation. Relatives of living and deceased victims can also recover in some cases.

State Sen. Paul D. Harold said the grant will be used to link a program in the fourth and fifth grades with the efforts of the Substance Abuse Council and for in-service training of teachers to implement the program.

The Quincy legislator noted that the funds were allocated to the Department of Education by the legislature in the budget. A portion of the funds were given to the Commonwealth In-Service Institute for the training of teachers, while the remainder has been given to local communities in mini-grants for the planning and development of Substance Abuse Prevention programs in kindergarten through the eighth grade.

Living With Your Loss

Over the years, much has been written about what people experience when someone they love dies. However, one thing we've learned is that grief is a very individual process a person goes through.

There are no rules to go by but there are some helpful guidelines. Many of these are discussed in our unique brochure entitled, "Living With Your Loss" written by noted bereavement expert and author Dr. Earl A. Grollman. For your complimentary copy please feel free to call us or drop by.

Spring Groundbreaking Seen For St. Joseph's Parish Center

St. Joseph's Church in Quincy Center hopes to break ground this spring for its new church center now that the parish exceeded its recent $150,000 fundraising goal by nearly $20,000.

Rev. Joseph Downey, Pastor, said $700,000 has been raised to date toward the $850,000 center but because $150,000 is still needed, the parish must get approval from the Boston Archdiocese to go ahead and build. Fr. Downey sees no problems in making up the $150,000 difference through normal fundraising and does not plan another major effort for the first part of this year.

The church was several thousand dollars short of its goal going into the last week of 1985, but Fr. Downey said a flood of contributions pushed it well past the $150,000 goal set by an anonymous parishioner who had pledged $100,000 if the parish could raise that sum by the end of 1985.

Nearly $350,000 of the $700,000 raised to date is coming from parish funds currently held in a revolving bank account by the Boston Archdiocese.

Fr. Downey said that a local foundation, which doesn't want to be named, also contributed $10,000 to the project.

"We've made it very nicely," Downey said. "The people were really enthused the last week of the year. They were coming in and contributing to make sure that we reached the goal." He was referring to someone who put ten $100 bills in the collection plate.

Atty. Thomas Barrett Chairman Commission On Handicapped Affairs

A Quincy attorney was recently elected the chairman of the city's Commission on Handicapped Affairs.

Thomas S. Barrett said the goal for 1986 is to increase the public's awareness of the commission's existence and its duties. He also expressed a desire to establish regular communications with neighboring handicapped commissions by exchanging information, and where possible, share resources.

Barrett said that another major priority will be to work with the Quincy clerk's office to establish accessible voting places for the handicapped for the fall 1986 state elections.

The commission consists of seven members appointed by the mayor for three-year terms. In addition to Barrett, the present members are: Albert Conti, Mary Lucier, Nathaniel Quattrochi, Edgar Thompson, Judith Dacey and Eleanor Reidy.

The commission holds public meetings on the second Monday of each month in the second floor conference room in new city hall. The next scheduled meeting is Dec. 9 at 6 p.m.

$40,207 in pledges and $7,216 in fishbowl receipts at The Sun pledge center and $49,212 in special events.

Of the $49,212 in special events proceeds last year, $26,474 was raised in Quincy. The events included:

Text Of Mayor's Inaugural Address

"Madame councilor and gentlemen of the City Council, ladies and gentlemen of the School Committee, citizens of Quincy, good morning and welcome to the third McCauley administration.

"First this morning, I'd like to offer my congratulations and best wishes to those members of the City Council and the School Committee who will be joining me in city government for the next two years.

"I'd like to offer a special note of congratulations to three individuals who, this morning, start their careers in elective office.

"In a few minutes, John Gillis will be swearing in a new councilor, Councilor Thomas J. Nutley from Ward 6, and then later on in the program, I will have the privilege of swearing in two new members of the School Committee, Mrs. Margaret Nigro and Mr. Frank Santoro.

"And I caution them not to be nervous because you are joining an experienced group of city officials this morning.

"The total years of service of the returning members of the council and the school committee and your mayor totals over 125 years. So you might benefit from our collective experience.

"It is traditional at these inaugural addresses for the mayor to briefly review the events of the past year and then take a look ahead to the year ahead. 1985, I believe, was a very good year for the citizens of Quincy.

"A year ago, the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority came into being. That is the agency that is going to affect the cleanup of Quincy Bay and Boston Harbor.

"In July, on July 1, that authority took over control of the Sewer and Water Divisions of the Metropolitan District Commission. Approximately July 10, the MWRA board of directors voted 10 to 1 to site the new sewerage treatment plant on Deer Island, off Winthrop. They rejected plans that would have expanded the treatment plant on Nut Island or create an entirely new treatment plant at Long Island.

"And that was a team effort from the citizens of Quincy and I just want to take the opportunity this morning to thank the elected officials at all levels of government as well as the citizens of Quincy who worked hard to see to it that there would be no treatment plants in Quincy Bay in the future years to come and once again I thank you all for that.

"The city's finances continued to improve in 1985. We completed fiscal year 1985 on June 30 in the black for the fourth year in a row.

"The free cash account, which is an important barometer of a city's financial standing, moved into the black for the first time in 10 years.

"In November, members of my administration met with representatives of Standard & Poors and Moody's Investment Service to review the credit standing of the city of Quincy.

"And we received good news in December when Moody's, which has rated the city of Quincy for years, increased our credit rating two notches, from Baa past Bal to Baa. And Standard &

Poors gave us a like rating of triple B.

"Simply translated, that means lower borrowing costs for the taxpayers of the City of Quincy in future years.

"We marked a $2,850,000 in early December. City Auditor Robert Foy estimates the increased credit rating saved the city some $35-70,000 on that one small issue alone.

"The city also made substantial progress in 1985 toward a goal of replacing some of the antiquated portions of Quincy City Hospital. A home rule petition that was introduced to the City Council was approved and passed on to the legislature. And it was signed by Governor Dukakis in late November.

"That will authorize the city to borrow up to $75 million to affect that replacement. We are hopeful that we will be getting approval for FHA insurance on that program within the next several weeks.

"If that is forthcoming, we look for a groundbreaking for the replacement portions of the hospital sometime later on in 1986.

"The hospital board of managers is a nine member board that works with my administration and with Hospital Corporation of America. The term of office of one of those members expires this morning.

"And I am pleased to announce that I will be replacing Mr. Gerald Marquis who is the present chairman of that board.

"In 1981, in January, on Jan. 5, the City of Quincy entered into a five year contractual agreement with Hospital Corporation of America to manage the Quincy Hospital. That contract expired yesterday.

"And I am pleased to report this morning that on Friday at 11 o'clock, on behalf of the city of Quincy, I sign a new, three year contract providing for continued management of City Hospital by Hospital Corporation of America.

"During the past year, a committee comprised of Chief Francis X. Finn of the Police Department, several members of his department as well as (Department of Public Works) Commissioner Paul Anderson and Deputy Commr. David Colton have been working on the problem of an antiquated facility, the Quincy Police Station.

"They made a recommendation to me, and I accepted that recommendation, that a thorough and complete renovation of the existing building, which was originally constructed in 1926, be affected and a major addition be added to the Police Station.

"In December, the Quincy City Council, upon my recommendation, appropriated a loan order of some $445,000 to start the architects and the engineers working on the plans.

"Our time line is to complete that work, to go out to bid, and hopefully we will have a groundbreaking for this very important project in September or October of 1986.

"On Wednesday, Nov. 27, the day before Thanksgiving, the Burgin Parkway Extension was opened to the public. It took 15 years to plan it, but construction took a lot less, thank goodness. It was completed 10 months ahead of schedule and within budget.

"That now provides the City of Quincy, number 1, with a parallel road to Hancock St. from the Neponset River to the South Quincy MBTA Station, the ramps.

"It also provides for much easier access to downtown Quincy. Those people who have had the opportunity to use this parkway in the past several weeks are very positive about the benefits of it. And we are sure as we go into 1986, this will make easy access to our downtown city much more easy.

"Now as we stand here this morning on Jan. 6, we should take a look ahead at what it holds for us.

"The economy of our state has been sound. The economy of our city has been sound.

"Unemployment has been low. In the City of Quincy, it has been below 4 per cent for most of the year.

"So we're looking forward to a good 1986.

"The revitalization of downtown Quincy, which started back in 1981 and 1982

CITY CLERK John Gillis applauds Mayor Francis McCauley after swearing him in to his third term.

with the construction of the Campanelli Building, has continued on.

"Just recently, the Shawmut Bank Building, at the corner of Whitney Road and Hancock St., was opened.

"And during the past year, a thorough refurbishing and renovation of the old Sears Roebuck Building has been undertaken and that work is just about done. That building is now known as Quincy Fair; we already have our first tenant.

"Later on this year, the city will take advantage of a $1,039,000 traffic parking grant to construct a one-story addition to the Ross Parking Area.

"That will provide an additional 110 spaces of parking in our downtown area.

"A year ago, those of you who attended the mid-term address at City Hall, heard me note that economic development, while it is positive and good for the city because it creates jobs and tax revenue, must be monitored and controlled, lest it diminish the quality of life in our city.

"And we are taking steps, and have taken steps, to monitor and to control our development.

"A traffic study committee last year has recommended the engagement of a traffic consulting firm to look to some of the problems of traffic in our downtown area as well as in the area of State Street South and the Southern Artery. A firm has already been chosen, Vanasse/Hangen, to undertake that study and we expect to be getting underway within the near future.

"I have two points that I'd like to discuss this morning and I will be making recommendations both this morning and in the weeks ahead.

"The first deals with the Quincy Conservation Commission. In the next few weeks, I will be introducing an appropriation order to the City Council to fund an administrator for that commission to work with the unpaid members of the board as well as our Building Inspector's office, as well as our law department, to see to it that the orders and conditions that are put forward by the commission are adhered to.

"We have run into many cases, many calls to my office, from people complaining about alleged violations of the conditions that are set down by the Conservation Commission. And I hope that the council will take action on that so that we can have a person to work with that commission to see that the laws are obeyed.

"We also found out that the conservation commission had never been constituted by ordinance. In other words, it was created without a backup ordinance. This happened in the case, as you remember, of the Rent Grievance Board.

"This morning at your recessed meeting, or when your meeting reconvenes, Councilor Jim Sheets of Ward 4 will be introducing an ordinance properly constituting the Conservation Commission. We want to make it legal. It's been going on and doing a good job for a number of years.

"We also have another unpaid board that is critical as the development issue escalates in our city and that's the Zoning Board of Appeals. At present, that's a three member board serving staggered terms of three years looking at problems arising from people looking for relief from zoning ordinances.

"Councilor Sheets, once again, when you reconvene, will be introducing an ordinance change that will increase this board from three members to five members. The terms of office will then become five years and it would take four members of the five member board to affect relief from the zoning ordinances.

"I think it's important in this particular critical area that we have more citizen input on the board. I have no problem at all with the three members who have been working on the board, they are all my appointees.

"If the ordinance is changed, I would be reappointing them and adding two additional people to work in that particular area.

"On your agenda this morning, you will note members of the City Council I'm referring to a home rule petition to once again establish a revised position of commissioner of public health in the City of Quincy.

"It's been a year since we've had a public health commissioner and that's been too long. On Jan. 11, last year we unexpectedly lost Dr. M. Grace Hussey.

"This year I am once again submitting the home rule pe-tion that would require approval not only of the council and the mayor but also the legislature and the governor. And that petition provides for a commissioner of public health who would have a master's degree in public health and two years' experience.

"That position would no longer require a medical doctor. It's very difficult to get a medical doctor and there's a serious question as to whether or not we really need a medical doctor in that particular area.

"I would urge that the council take early action on this matter because once again it must be forwarded along to the state legislature and that will take weeks and possibly months before legislative approval is granted.

"In the meantime, we not only have no public health commissioner, we have a vacancy on the very important Licensing Board in the City of Quincy.

"This morning, the City of Quincy starts its 98th year as a city. From 1889 until 1916, the City of Quincy operated under what was referred to as a home made charter.

"It provided for a mayor and 23 members of the City Council; the elections were annual.

"In the November state election in 1916, the citizens of Quincy adopted a new charter. It was a Plan A charter which called for a reduction of the numbers of City Councilors from 23 to 9 and an increase in the number of years of the term from one year to two years.

"In recent years, there has been a trend in this country both at the local level with mayors and at the state level with governors and constitutional officers throughout the country to increase the terms of office of mayors and governors from two years to four years.

"This trend has not been as prevalent in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

"I have studied this matter very carefully and discussed it with many people that I meet at the conferences.

"And at the meeting of Jan. 20, the next regular meeting of the City Council, I am introducing a home rule petition that will increase the term of office of the mayor of the City of Quincy from two years to four years.

member of the Licensing Board, since the death of Dr. M. Grace Hussey, Jan. 11, 1985.

The mayor said he would introduce an appropriation order to the City Council to fund an administrator for the Quincy Conservation Commission to see to it that the orders and conditions that are put forward by the commission are adhered to.

McCauley said that Ward 4 Councillor James Sheets would be introducing an ordinance properly constituting the Conservation Commission as well.

Councillor Sheets was also to introduce an ordinance change that would increase the Zoning Board of Appeals from three members to five members.

The terms of office for that board would become five years and it would take four members of the five member board to affect relief from the zoning ordinances, McCauley said.

In reviewing the past year, McCauley said that 1985 was a very good year for the citizens of Quincy.

He cited the Massachusetts Water Resources Decision to site the new sewerage treatment plant on Deer Island off Winthrop, improvement in the city's finances, progress in replacement plans of some antiquated portions of Quincy City Hospital and the Police Station, and opening of the Burgin Parkway Extension.

McCauley said he was looking forward to a good 1986.

Upon his election as council president, McGrath, 32, proposed creation of committees on education, state and federal funds and human services.

McGrath also said he would like to see the role of the Committee on Downtown and Economic Development expanded, and to continue a close working relationship with the Quincy City Hospital Board of Managers during the replacement facility construction.

"The City of Quincy continues to be faced by the challenges of the '80s and must also look ahead to the challenges of the '90s: overdevelopment, the need for affordable housing, affordable health care, traffic congestion and the need for providing basic city services," said McGrath, an eight year member of the council.

"These are the issues that will face those of us in government over the next two years," he said.

Durkin, 29, who has served for two years on the school committee, said he hoped to restore programs such as Project Outreach and to keep a watchful eye on class sizes.

He also stressed the need for parent input in the school system.

"In an attempt to involve parents in the policy-making process, the School Committee has established an Open Forum at the beginning of each School Committee meeting.

"I would encourage you as parents to take advantage of this opportunity to voice your concerns to the School Committee and School Administration.

"And if not involved already, I urge parents to be active in their school's parent organizations, make suggestions, to ask questions and demand answers."

McGrath was nominated as council president by Ward 3 Councillor John J. Lydon, Jr. The nomination was seconded by Councillors Richard J. Koch, Jr., and Patricia Toland.

Durkin was nominated as school committee vice chairman by School Committee member Francis F. Anselmo. That nomination was seconded by School Committee member Mary P. Collins.

Jeanne Reardon was reelected Clerk of Committees for the City Council.

clerk of the School Committee.

School Supt. John Osterman was reelected School Committee secretary. The oaths of office were administered by City Clerk John Gillis.

The invocation was given by Rabbi Jacob Mann of Beth Israel Synagogue, who said he has attended inaugural ceremonies for 40 years.

The Air Force Junior ROTC presented the colors. The combined North Quincy High School and Quincy High School Choirs, directed by Catherine Carnabuci, presented The National Anthem.

"O God, Our Help in Ages Past" was presented by the Combined Concert Choirs, directed by Maurice Carbonneau.

The Rev. Cornelius Heery, pastor of Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy, gave a prayer.

"The Navy Hymn" was presented by the Combined North Quincy High School and Quincy High School Bands, directed by Francis Rull.

The Rev Dr. Roger Kvam, of First United Presbyterian Church, gave the benediction. "America the Beautiful," presented by the combined North Quincy High School and Quincy High School Bands, directed by Robert Coviello, concluded the program.

Platform guests also included Mrs. Sandra McCauley, Sen. Paul Harold, Representatives Thomas Brownell and Robert Cerasoli, former City Councillor Leo Kelly, former Mayors Arthur Tobin and Walter Hannon, former Representative Joseph Brett and New County Treasurer Daniel Raymond.

"I am also going a step farther. I am also including in that home rule petition an increase in the terms of office of the City Councillors from two years to four years.

"As I pointed out, there has not been a great trend in this state, although it's starting. For many years, the mayor of Boston has been elected for four years, over 30 years.

"In the late 1970s, the city of Newton went to a four-year term and just this past November, the cities of Lawrence and Brockton have adopted four-year terms for their mayors.

"If the mayor of the City of Quincy, or the mayor of any city, can be elected for four years, I see no reason why the City Councillors can't be elected for four years.

"One of the problems with a four year term for mayor and a two-year term for the council is that nobody shows up to vote in the off years.

"The City of Boston last year, with no mayor's contest on the ballot, only 22 per cent of the voters came out.

"Once again, to the City Council this is a home rule petition. It has to be adopted by the council, signed by the mayor, sent on to the legislature and then there's one further step.

"This is an important change in our charter and the home rule petition calls for submitting this particular matter to the voters and the voters would have the final say. They would vote on this at the state election in November, 1986.

"I would hope that, whatever the feelings of the councillors are, that they would at least offer the opportunity of our citizens to vote on this particular matter.

"Ladies and gentlemen of the School Committee and the council, this completes my formal remarks this morning.

"I would, in conclusion, like to once again thank the legislative delegation from the City of Quincy. Sen. Paul Harold is with us this morning; I see Representatives Bob Cerasoli and Tommy Brownell. I don't know if Mike Morrissey has snuck in behind me.

"But I just want to thank them for the excellent cooperation they have given my administration over the past four years.

"Much good work has been done. I'm looking forward to working with them for another two years.

"We invited Cong. Brian Donnelly. He was here two years ago, but his busy schedule prevents him from being here this morning.

"But I also want to thank him and his very professional staff, not only here in the City of Quincy, they have an office on Washington St., but also their office in Washington for the cooperation they have extended to me.

"I have completed four years as mayor and I'm starting on another term.

"I have enjoyed my service in city government and I'm looking forward to working with all the city officials both appointed and elected at all levels of government in 1986 and 1987.

"Thank you all for your kind attention this morning.

CD Deputy Director QCA Speaker

The Quincy Citizens Association was scheduled to meet Wednesday, Jan. 8, at 8 p.m. at the Montclair Men's Club, Holbrook Rd., North Quincy.

Anthony Siciliano, Deputy Director of Quincy's Civil Defense, was to give a video presentation of the role civil defense plays in the health, protection and rescue of the city's residents in time of need. Members and their families are invited.

A meeting of all Q.C.A. members will follow the video presentation and members are urged to attend.

Arthur M. Chandler was re-elected President of the Q.C.A. for 1986 during the association's Annual Meeting/Christmas Party held recently. Joseph N. Gildea Sr., Saul Lipsitz, and Dorothy C. Kelly were also re-elected to the offices of Vice President, Treasurer, and Secretary, respectively.

Social Workers Strike Over Wage Dispute

Social workers picketed outside the Quincy office of the Family Services Association of Boston on the first day of a planned two-day strike over wages.

The five pickets carrying signs reading, "On Strike" and "Family Services Unfair," planned to join other social workers picketing Tuesday (Jan. 7) at the main office in Boston.

The Quincy office of the non-profit agency, located at 1 Cliveden St., remained open during the protest.

The social workers contend they have been working without a contract since July 1, when a two-year pact expired.

A union member said no progress was made in recent negotiations and that both sides remain apart on a wage package. A federal mediator is involved in the negotiations that began last June.

Entry level social workers make about $16,380 a year, moving up to $27,615 after 11 years.

Union has been seeking an entry level salary of $17,350 while the agency has offered $17,200. The two sides also differ on step increases. The union also contends social workers for the state earn more than $20,000 a year.

Family Services offers counseling, home health services and day treatment for alcohol programs. Counseling was the only service affected by the labor dispute.

The agency, which receives most of its funding from private sources, such as the United Way, serves about 4,000 clients a year.

The labor dispute also affected the agency's other offices in Malden, Needham, Somerville and Lexington.

North Finds Brockton Tough Sun Sports

The North Quincy boys' basketball team found Brockton's defending state champions as tough as expected last Friday as the Boxers topped the Raiders, 79-49, dropping North's record to 3-4.

It was the first Suburban League game for both teams. Eddie Miller's Raiders, who have already won as many games as a year ago, will host Cambridge Rindge and Latin, co-favored with Brockton to win the Suburban League crown, Friday at 3:30. They are idle next Tuesday.

Miller, who always pulls the unexpected, threw a half-court trap at the Boxers, who had their troubles in the opening quarter but soon pulled away.

North Quincy started fast and pulled away to a 10-3 lead but Brockton battled back to lead, 20-17, after a quarter and controlled the game the rest of the way as it led, 42-26, at halftime and 59-36 going into the final quarter.

As usual, Brockton had a big height advantage, led by 6-10 Curtis Jackson, who had 16 points, 17 rebounds and seven blocked shots.

North was paced by two sophomores, Dave Wanless, who has been a standout all season, and Joe DeGrandis, playing in his first varsity game.

Wanless scored 17 points and DeGrandis added 11.

Earlier last week North bowed to Somerville, 64-43, after trailing by only one point, 28-27, at the half.

Chris Rossi paced the Raiders with 14 points and Brian Morris contributed nine.

In the consolation game of Weymouth South's Christmas Tournament, North barely got by rival Quincy, 49-48.

The Raiders won the game on a technical foul shot with two seconds left in the game.

North led, 12-11, after one quarter and held on to a 24-23 edge at halftime. The Raiders widened their lead to 38-33 in the third quarter, but Quincy bounced back in the final session.

The Presidents tied it at 43 and went ahead, 45-43, only to have Lawless put North ahead with a three-point play. The game was tied at 48 with five seconds left and Quincy had possession. Traveling was called and a technical foul was called against the guilty Quincy player. Lawless then won it with his foul shot.

Lawless had another big night with 18 points to lead the Raiders.

MARYANN KELLEHER, a senior at North Quincy High, was named to the Boston Globe's girls' cross-country all scholastic team and receives her award from Larry Ames, Globe assistant managing editor for high school sports. Maryann sat out most of the season with mononucleosis, running in only three meets, but placed sixth in the Div. Eastern Mass. championships to lead the Raiderettes to their sixth straight title. She placed ninth in the state meet, helping her team to a second place finish.

Hard Times For Presidents

The Quincy boys' basketball team opened the season with a victory over Revere, but the Presidents have fallen on hard times with six different losses.

The latest was a 61-53 decision to Waltham last Friday night in the Suburban League opener for both clubs.

John Franceschini's Quincy team will face Brockton's defending state champions Friday night at 7:30 at Brockton and will host the other Suburban League co-favorite, Cambridge Rindge and Latin Tuesday night.

Waltham opened up a 35-21 lead at halftime and never looked back as Quincy had a bad night at the foul line, hitting only 29 percent.

David Britt had a good night for the Presidents with 14 points and Robert Connolly chipped in with 10.

Quincy lost its previous game to Arlington and in the consolation game of Weymouth South's Christmas tournament, dropped a last-second 49-48 decision to arch rival North Quincy.

The Presidents turned in an excellent performance against North but lost with two seconds remaining on a technical foul shot.

Quincy trailed, 12-11, after a quarter and 24-23 at halftime. North widened its lead to 38-33 in the third quarter, but the Presidents battled back to tie it, 43-43.

Frank Freedman put Quincy ahead, 45-43, and after North regained the lead, Quincy tied it at 48 with five seconds left to play.

Quincy had the ball but traveling was called and a technical foul was called against the guilty player. North's Dave Lawless calmly sank the shot to clinch it for the Raiders.

Freedman led the Presidents with 12 points and Dave Austin added 11. Connolly had eight points.

First Ladies Defeat Waltham

The Quincy girls' basketball team snapped a four-game losing streak when it defeated Waltham, 48-42, in its Suburban League opener last Friday to improve its record to 2-5.

The First Ladies will host Brockton Friday at 5 p.m. and will play at Cambridge Rindge and Latin Tuesday at 5.

Quincy scored 16 points in the first quarter and 18 in the fourth against Waltham.

Gayle Morrell led the First Ladies with 12 points and seven rebounds. Chris Kraunelis had 10 points, six in the final quarter, while Ginny Duggan had an outstanding defense game with four steals and eight rebounds.

Quincy held a 26-20 lead at the half.

In their previous game the Quincy girls lost to Arlington, 37-24, although they held the winners to 12 points in the second half.

Terry Duggan had a fine day for Quincy as she scored six points, took down nine rebounds and had eight steals.

In the consolation game of the Weymouth South Christmas Tournament, the Quincy girls were edged by the host team, 34-30, after taking a 25-24 lead into the final quarter.

Trailing, 19-17, at halftime, the First Ladies came back in the third quarter, led by Terry Duggan, to take a one-point lead. However, Weymouth's Caryn Condon and Terri Ahlstrom combined for eight points in the final quarter to give the home team the victory.

Patty Morrell had eight points, Kraunelis seven, Terry Duggan six and Ginny Duggan five for the Quincy girls.

North Girl JV's Bow To Brockton After 3 Wins

After winning its first three games, Coach Ken Panaro's North Quincy girls' junior varsity basketball team suffered its first loss to powerful Brockton, 57-34, last Friday.

The Raiderettes appeared to have a case of stage fright playing at Brockton and fell behind, 17-4, in the opening period.

"The girls played well after the opening period, but Brockton had too much height," Panaro said. "They had a 6-foot-3 girl at Center and we could do nothing on the boards with her in there."

Lisa Mitton (five points), Ann Anderlionis, Stacey Welch and Jill Caldwell (four each) and Maureen Donovan played well.

North opened its season with a 42-36 victory over Everett as freshman Dierdre Murphy scored 12 points and Tricia Koski had eight. Freshman Paula Tolson and Patty Feeney played excellent games.

The Raiderette jayvees followed with a 47-36 decision over Revere with Mitton scoring 11 points and Donovan six. North broke a close game wide open by outscoring Revere, 20-6, in the fourth quarter.

The North girls defeated Somerville, 43-27, as Donovan scored 14 points and Caldwell nine.

The Raiderette defense, led by Feeney and Melissa Miles, was almost picture perfect. Despite Somerville's height advantage, Caldwell and Miles controlled the defensive boards well, keeping Somerville from getting any second shots.

Raiderettes Edge Brockton, Run Win Streak To 7

The North Quincy girls' basketball team improved its record to 7-0 with an emotional 67-66 victory over Brockton on the Brockton court in the Suburban League opener for both teams.

It was North's first win over Brockton in four years. Paul Bregoli's Raiderettes will play at Cambridge Rindge and Latin Friday at 5 p.m. They will be idle next Tuesday.

Brockton jumped off to a quick 4-0 lead but Ann Marie Hughes made a three-point play. The Lady Boxers widened their lead to 9-3 before North went on a 10-2 run to take a 13-11 lead midway through the quarter. Nancy Flukes, Karen Runge and Eileen Warren contributed to the offense as North held a 19-14 lead at the end of the quarter.

The Raiderettes widened their lead to eight points midway through the second quarter as they broke the Boxers' press with ease.

North tied and got careless, allowing Brockton to tie the score at 34 at the half.

Brockton again came out and took a quick six-point lead in the third quarter. North maintained its composure and whittled the lead behind Warren's eight points and Fluke's four-for-four from the foul line.

Junior guard Marybeth Maloney and sophomore guard Karrie Pistorino gave Hughes and Jean Welby needed rests and had three steals between them. A beautiful Pistorino-to-Flukes to Warren full-court pass play at the buzzer put North up, 50-49, going into the final quarter.

North slowly increased its lead as it continued to go inside to Warren. She responded with four-for-five shooting, getting several key hoops down the stretch.

With two minutes to go North had a six-point lead as Flukes hit a big 15-foot jump shot. Brockton cut the lead to two with 43 seconds left. On the inbound pass, Brockton fouled Flukes, who calmly sank both ends of the one-and-one.

As Brockton scored again with 11 seconds left, Flukes fouled out. On the inbound play Runge was fouled and made the key foul shot to put her team up by three. Brockton scored with three seconds left. On a heads-up play by Ann McGuigan, North did not inbound as the clock ran out.

Warren led all scorers with 24 points and had 12 rebounds. She was 11 for 16 from the floor. Flukes hit on four of six field goals and 11 for 11 from the line. She also had seven rebounds. Hughes had 12 points and four steals and Runge 11 points and four assists.

In their previous game the Raiderettes, after a slow start, walloped Somerville, 64-43. It was the third game in four days for the North girls.

Warren had another big game with 22 points, 19 rebounds and five assists. Flukes had 12 points, six rebounds and five assists. Hughes and Runge eight points each and Welby had a fine floor game and had five assists.

Earlier North had won the Weymouth South Christmas Tournament with a 39-34 victory over Weymouth North. The Raiderettes had defeated the host team the day before.

Warren, who has been outstanding in every game, had 18 points, 12 rebounds and four blocked shots and was named the tournament's MVP. She had 33 points, 20 rebounds, seven blocked shots and five steals in the two tournament games. Hughes had nine points.

"We came through a tough stretch of games in great fashion," Bregoli said. "These kids have been super. They know how to win and will do anything to accomplish that. They are playing well as a team, although we have been getting some outstanding individual performances."

"Our Brockton win was very important as it establishes us as the team to beat in the Suburban League. It was especially significant beating them at their gym. In fact, five of our seven wins have been away from home."

Bregoli expressed his thanks to the Bank of Boston for presenting the North girls with a check for $400 for a 30-second clock to be used at the girls' games.

"We are deeply appreciative of the generosity of the Bank of Boston," he said. "Obviously an item such as a 30-second clock costs a great deal of money which the athletic department is presently unable to afford. Through the efforts of our boosters club, particularly Bill Feeney and Barry Welch, working with Bank of Boston, this dream of getting a clock is now a reality. Again, we are very thankful to have such people in the business community who take such an interest in young people and their activities."

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

QUESTION: How do I go about setting the right price to sell my house? My neighbors' and friends' suggestions vary by thousands of dollars — not even close.

ANSWER: What your house is worth is not what you think it is, or what the buyer might think it is. Its true value is determined by its location, the general economic climate, the current local real estate situation, the age of the property and the wear and tear it has seen.

Call in a well-established local REALTOR for this vital determination. He or she is in constant touch with the local market and KNOWS what homes are selling at what prices.

THE MOST COSTLY mistake a seller can make is to set the wrong selling price on his home.

THE HOLY SPIRIT

O Holy Spirit thou who are all knowing who brightens every path that may reach my ideal, though you give me the divine gift of forgiving and forgetting wrong done unto me and who in every instant of my life art with me, I like in this short dialogue to affirm my gratitude for all your blessings and reaffirm once again that I never want to be apart from thee through the illusion of material things around.

My desire is to be with thee and all loved ones in perpetual grace. Thank you for your mercy on me and mine.

Public Urged To Attend Treatment Plant Meeting

Mayor Francis McCauley and the City Council are urging Quincy residents to attend a meeting Monday, Jan. 13, which will be the first of four public information meetings on the wastewater treatment plant siting in Boston harbor.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. at North Quincy High School Auditorium, 316

Hancock St.

The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency are calling the meetings to gather public comment on the findings presented by agency and consultant staff.

Other public meetings are scheduled later in Boston,

Cambridge and Winthrop.

"We're hoping for a good turnout," said Mayor Francis McCauley.

"Our representative at the meeting will be Department of Public Works Commissioner Paul Anderson."

Ward 1 Councilor Michael Cheney introduced a resolve at a recent council meeting urging local residents to attend.

"...All citizens of the City of Quincy are encouraged to attend this final public hearing and are urged to participate so that this process of cleaning up Boston Harbor will become a reality," stated the resolve which was passed by the council.

when she was knocked to the pavement as she walked home from lunch with a friend Monday.

Beatrice Forknall, 73, who also uses a cane, said she and Howard were barely 25 feet from the front door of Wollaston Manor apartments for senior citizens when two dark-haired men in their early 20s approached them.

It was the second time that the Howard woman was the target of purse thieves. That incident happened when her purse was taken by teenagers after dark and there was no injury.

LWV Board To Meet Jan. 6

The first board meeting of 1986 for the Quincy League of Women Voters will be held Monday, Jan. 6, at 7:30 p.m. in the conference room of Stop & Shop, 495 Southern Artery.

All members and prospective members are welcome to attend the meeting.

Building Height Order Referred To Committee

The City Council voted Monday night to refer to its ordinance committee a zoning amendment regarding the number of allowable stories on buildings in the city.

The change, introduced by Mayor Francis McCauley, would add a footnote to the existing ordinances stating that no building shall be more than 110 feet above grade.

It would also amend the ordinances to read:

"The provisions of the ordinance governing the height of buildings and structures in all districts shall not apply to chimneys, water towers, air conditioning equipment, elevator bulkheads, skylights, ventilators and other necessary features appurtenant to buildings which are usually carried above roofs and are not used for human occupancy provided that these features are located or screened so as to be not visible from any point on grade within 500 feet of a lot line of a building so equipped," according to the proposed change.

"Nor would it apply to domes, towers, spires above buildings if such features are not used for human occupancy; nor to wireless or broadcasting towers and other like unenclosed structures, nor to accessory parking facilities completely located under ground level."

Councillors To Receive HCA Contract Copies Requested By LaRaia

Mayor Francis McCauley said he will furnish City Councilors with copies of the city's three year contract with Hospital Corporation of America, as requested Monday night by Councilor Joseph J. LaRaia.

"They'll have them by the end of the week," said McCauley, who added that he will highlight areas of change.

The changes are not major, according to the mayor.

LaRaia said he was requesting copies of the contract because of problems with the operation of the hospital.

"I want to get to the bottom of some of the problems," said LaRaia.

236 Auto Complaints But:

Only Three Seat Buckle Violations Here

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Local motorists appear to be taking heed of the new state law and buckling up before going for a drive.

Of 236 motor vehicle violation complaints issued by Quincy Police from Jan. 5 to 11, only three were for seat belt violations, according to Quincy Police.

Two were warnings, and one was a complaint carrying a $15 fine, according to Lt. William Curran of the statistical records department.

"Either everyone in Quincy is obeying the seat belt law," said Curran, "or police officers are being lenient."

Police officers have not been instructed to go easy, explained Curran, but officers use discretion in issuing warnings or complaints, as they do in cases of speeding or going through a stop sign.

If a motorist is stopped for another violation and it is discovered that he or she is not wearing a seat belt, explained Curran, a police officer would have to use his or her discretion in issuing a warning or complaint if the seat belt was broken, for example.

That same discretion would be used if a motorist was stopped for speeding and said he or she could not see the posted speed limit because it was covered by foliage, for instance, said Curran.

sending local statistics to the Governors Highway Safety Commission on a regular basis regarding the law.

Mixed Reaction

4-Year Term

To Council Jan. 21

Mayor Francis McCauley said he will introduce a home rule petition at the Jan. 21 City Council meeting to increase the term of office of mayor from two years to four years.

The terms of office of City Councilors would also be increased from two years to four years as part of the home rule petition which McCauley first discussed at inauguration ceremonies.

Since then, McCauley said there seems to be strong support for the four year term for mayor, but not for city councilors.

However, a number of city councilors have said they do not support the proposed four year terms.

The home rule petition must be adopted by the council, signed by the mayor and sent to the legislature. Voters would then be able to vote on the matter in the November state election.

McCauley said there has been a trend in this country, at the local and state level, to increase the terms of office to mayors and governors from two years to four years.

The mayor of Boston has been elected to four years for over 30 years, said McCauley.

"I would hope that, whatever the feelings of the councilors are, they would at least offer the opportunity of our citizens to vote on this particular matter," said McCauley.

Councilor Joseph LaRaia,

a former mayor, said that the public has felt that two years was a good period of time.

Running for office every two years basically keeps a city official on his toes, said Councilor Michael Cheney, who added that he would probably vote for the measure to give voters the opportunity to decide.

Officials are responsive to the public with a two-year term, said Council president Stephen McGrath.

Councilor John Lydon said that the people in his ward want to keep terms of office at two years.

Councilor Theodore DeCristofaro said the extended terms were a good idea.

Open Space Plan Unveiled By City

"It's important to preserve as much open space as possible," said Mayor Francis McCauley Tuesday as he announced publication of an Open Space and Recreational Plan for the city of Quincy, spanning 1984 to 1988.

"We're trying to take a balanced approach," said McCauley. "We're working very hard with developers to ensure adequate development, but we also want to ensure our natural resources."

The 48-page plan is an attempt to develop a cognitive and unified municipal policy toward open space, said McCauley. It is based upon an inventory of major open space parcels of land in the city.

The plan seeks to identify and describe public and private parcels, and prescribe municipal actions for protection, he said.

"The study is a significant action by the city to protect open space areas for future generations," said McCauley.

"It is expected that the study will precipitate a major rezoning petition, as it has been determined that many of our significant open space areas are zoned for development," he said.

"In addition, some of these areas, though not suitable for development, are privately owned. In these cases, the city will seek to have parcels deeded to public use," McCauley said.

Planning Director James Lydon said that a major rezoning petition will be sent to the City Council within the next month.

A major mailing effort asking private owners to donate land will also take place, according to Lydon.

"It's highly unlikely that they would be able to develop the land," explained Lydon, "and they pay high taxes on it."

For Special Service

Finn Commends Officers, Others

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Quincy Police Officer William Horick was among the first to arrive at the scene when 11-year-old Eric Whittaker was pinned beneath a train at the Wollaston MBTA Station.

Disregarding his own safety, Horick climbed under the train along the live rail and held the injured boy.

"He administered first aid, pressure pointing the arteries so that the youth would not bleed to death," said Police Chief Francis X. Finn.

"In fact, Officer Horick calmed the boy as he contained the loss of blood, prevented shock, and saved his life.

"This occurred under the most adverse circumstances and under great physical and psychological strain while the Quincy Fire Department Rescue Team extricated the boy. Bay State Ambulance assisted and transported the boy to Quincy City Hospital."

In recognition of his special efforts, Horick was among those commended by Chief Finn during 1985.

Officer Thomas Bolinder - On minimum information received from the Quincy Police Department Communications Unit, Officer Bolinder went to a Quincy Ave. address where he apprehended a culprit who had been involved in many firearms incidents in Braintree.

"Officer Bolinder did this at great personal risk," said Finn.

Officer Paul Turowski - While on detail at St. Ann's Bingo Game, Officer Turowski rushed to aid a young woman who had collapsed with what appeared to be a serious heart problem.

After he called for assistance, he began CPR. When Bay State Ambulance arrived, Officer Turowski then took over performing cardiac pulmonary chest compressions.

According to the bingo chairman, Turowski worked heroically on the woman for about 45 minutes until he was relieved by a second ambulance crew.

"It appeared that he had brought the woman back to life, and she was taken to Quincy City Hospital where she later passed away," said Finn.

Sgt. Michael Barry - After responding to a report of an armed robbery at Granite Co-operative Bank, 100 Granite St., Sgt. Barry checked the immediate area.

Barry reasoned that suspect might attempt to hide in a nearby tavern.

He then checked Luke's Lounge and located a man fitting the description of the suspect.

As a result of a frisk made by Sgt. Barry, the money taken in the robbery was recovered and an arrest made.

"For his professional awareness and apprehension, Sgt. Barry is hereby commended," said Finn.

Sgt. Richard Curran - After receiving information that an armed robbery was in progress at Christy's Market, Hancock St., Wollaston, Sgt. Curran found the suspect to be desperate and self-destructive.

Other officers had surrounded the store, released the clerk, and prevented the escape of the suspect, who barricaded himself in a back room and threatened to shoot himself. The officers remained calm and kept the suspect from harming himself.

Sgt. Curran was able to engage in conversation the suspect who had a gun in his mouth and his toe on the trigger.

"He calmed the man, retrieved the weapon and made the arrest," said Finn.

Also commended for their actions in that incident were: Officers Richard Churchill, Ronald McKim, Robert Kelley, Michael Kelly, Lawrence Kelly, Harry Williams and Thomas Connors.

Officers Anthony DiBona, Robert Kelley and Robert Lamb - The three officers responded to a West Squantum St. apartment where it had been reported that a man was hanging off the balcony.

The man was intoxicated and in deep depression due to an impending court appearance for serious felony crimes and he stated he had also lost his job.

"The above officers calmed the individual and reassured him, as a result, brought the man back to safety," said Finn.

Curtis Bigelow - After receiving a call from a woman reporting that her sister was choking, Cadet Curt Bigelow located the caller to remain on the line while he had an ambulance and cruiser dispatched.

Bigelow returned to the phone and gave the victim's sister instructions on how to perform the Heimlich Maneuver, after the maneuver was performed, the obstruction was cleared.

The sister later called the police station to thank Bigelow for his professional instructions which most certainly contributed to saving this woman's life," said Finn.

Sgt. Angus McEachern, Jr., Officers John Haines, Michael Lukeman, John Sullivan and Jeffrey Burrell - Sgt. McEachern and the four officers responded to a call at Nilson St., where a young man had barricaded himself and was in possession of a 30/30 rifle.

The young man was in a self destructive mood and the officers started a dialogue of continued communication with him for about three hours.

Eventually, the young man surrendered the rifle and was taken into custody.

Finn commended the officers "for their long and untiring efforts in controlling the young man and thus preventing serious injury to anybody."

James McAvoy - An employee of the Quincy Police Department for the past four years, Cadet McAvoy arrived at the 7-Eleven Store on Copeland St., after an employee suffered a heart attack.

McAvoy appraised the situation and performed CPR on the victim.

"Bay State Ambulance arrived on the scene a few minutes later and credit McAvoy with saving the man's life," said Finn.

Officer John Ryan - Dispatched with his partner to Houghs Neck for a break in progress, Ryan had a suspect in mind.

His thoughts were confirmed when he saw the suspect at the window where the burglary was reported.

The suspect took off when he saw Ryan, but the officer gave chase for 20 minutes over Sea St., through rear yards, over the dyke and through the salt marshes, all in the darkness of night.

Officer Ryan lost his footing many times as he sank into the mud, but he did not give up his pursuit.

Finally, Ryan caught the suspect and placed him under arrest.

"Officer Ryan's professionalism in the handling of this case, his dedication to duty, his perseverance against overwhelming obstacles and his disregard for his own personal safety to help innocent victims, should be officially recognized," said Finn.

Officer Timothy Tobin - After receiving information on a large cache of drugs which was about to hit the streets, Tobin passed this information on to the Quincy Police Drug Unit. He persisted until the information was received by the appropriate personnel.

As a result, some 33 guns, a large amount of drugs, and the original sheepskin parchment from King Charles I of England were recovered.

The parchment had been stolen some eight months before from the State House.

"Officer Timothy Tobin is hereby commended for his diligent efforts in this great recovery of so many weapons, drugs and Massachusetts Bay Company Charter," said Finn.

Detectives Ernesto Lioji and Paul Snow were also commended for their work on that case.

The detectives debriefed an informant, established his credibility and contacted Norfolk County Task Force for its assistance.

They then obtained the necessary warrants, raided a house in Dorchester with the task force and the Boston Police Department.

"Undoubtedly, lives can be expected to be saved by getting these drugs and guns off the streets. The recovery of the famous historical charter of the Massachusetts Bay Company, in terms of value, cannot be counted; it is priceless," Finn said.

Sgt. Angus McEachern, Jr., Officers Richard Churchill, Daniel Dowling, Kevin

Murphy, John Smith, Richard MacDonald and Charles Rogers - A call was received that a man was on the lawn of 45 Elm St., apparently the victim of a vicious beating.

Officers Dowling, Churchill and Sgt. McEachern responded immediately and administered first aid.

They then sought out eyewitnesses to the beating. The victim passed away a short time later.

Detectives Murphy, Smith, MacDonald and Rogers were assigned to investigate the homicide.

"Because of the excellent initial handling of this case by the Patrol Division, these detectives were able to apprehend three culprits and charge them with the crime of murder," said Finn, who commended the men for their professionalism.

Officers Robert Clark, Robert Hanna, Kathleen Roche and Richard Savard - All officers of the Quincy Police Department who had anything to do with the emergency evacuation of the 24 patients from the Merrymount Manor Nursing Home were commended by the chief.

"The communications personnel did a superb job and I want particularly to commend Officers Robert Clark, Robert Hanna, Kathleen Roche and Richard Savard, for their rapid response and professionalism in evacuating the patients and assisting the Quincy Fire Department," said Finn.

"Undoubtedly, these elderly patients that had to be taken out into the bitter cold might have suffered complications had you not all acted as professionally and promptly as you did," he said.

Finn also commended the QUINCY FIRE DEPARTMENT and MR. and MRS. JOHN L. FORBES and FAMILY of Edgemere Road, who opened their home to the 24 elderly patients at the nursing home.

MRS. LORRAINE BRENNAN of 49 Cheriton Rd. was commended for assisting the injured at a toxic chemical spill. She was also commended to Quincy City Hospital as a result of the incident.

WILLIAM RYAN, MIKE PICCUTO, STEVE KISSELL, MARLYS LITCHFIELD and THOMAS PERREAULT of Bay State Ambulance were also commended for their professionalism at the scene and at the hospital in caring for the victims.

License Board Tired of Tires

By LINDA WILKINS

Charles D. Hudson was again called before the Quincy License Board concerning conditions at 93-95 Federal Ave.

Michael Shaheen of the city's Health Department said tires, batteries, and parts of cars Hudson had been told to remove from the property during a previous board meeting were still on the lot.

"It turned out to be a bigger project than I thought," Hudson said, adding that he had already taken four dumpster loads of debris off the property.

"He has made some effort, some of the stuff has been cleaned up, but some of it was pushed to the side," Shaheen said.

Hudson said he works at cleaning the area "all the time" and that some of the debris in the yard does not belong to him. He told the board he should make considerable progress cleaning by the end of January.

The board voted to suspend Hudson's repair service license for 30 days effective Feb. 4 "unless the Health Department says otherwise," said City Clerk and board chairman John Gillis.

If the board decides not to suspend the license at that time, it will suspend the suspension.

Planning Board Meeting

The Quincy Planning Board was scheduled to meet last night (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. in the second floor conference room at City Hall.

Among the agenda items were public hearings on proposed zoning changes of Elcott/Poplar Road, 20-28

Mallard Road and Northfield Ave. from residence A to open space.

The board was also to consider a request from Wendy's Old Fashioned Hamburgers, 512-526 Southern Artery, for a ground sign.

'Tremendous Asset'

Bargain Center Project Seen Quincy's 'Copley Place'

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

"If they can do everything they hope to do, it will be a tremendous asset for the downtown," says the president of the downtown business group about plans to turn the Bargain Center and nearby property into the "Copley Place of downtown Quincy."

"The combination of retail, office space and living quarters will really help downtown," said Stephen Gillig, president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

"We hate to see the Bargain Center go, but we're getting something very nice in return," he said.

That something nice is a $45 million project which will include retail, commercial and residential space.

In addition to the draw of retail stores, the office workers and people who live there should provide somewhat of a "captive audience" for local merchants, said Gillig.

"Whether or not you'll see Quincy as Shoppertown, USA, again - I don't know," said Mayor Francis McCauley at a Friday morning news conference.

"As it was - probably not. But plans are all coming together and we've got a combination of things going."

McCauley announced at the news conference that Ricciardi Company of Quincy has purchased the Bargain Center property for about $3 million and will join with Campanelli Industries of Braintree in developing it.

The Boston Five Cent Savings Bank will finance, and be the principal tenant, of the 225,000 square foot project.

There will be sufficient off-street parking, said McCauley who called the project another major step for downtown Quincy.

Planning Director James Lydon said it is the single largest development project ever in downtown Quincy. "It's the Copley Place of downtown Quincy," he said.

Lydon said the project would stretch from the Old Elks Building on Hancock St. to the Bargain Center, and from there down to the old Quincy District Courthouse on Coddington St.

If other properties are not purchased privately, urban renewal could come into force and the city could take some land by eminent domain, said McCauley.

Stephen Ricciardi of Ricciardi Co. said the Bargain Center has up to a year to vacate the building.

Building 19 has announced that it will liquidate the Bargain Center's entire inventory at the Quincy Square location. The sale began Monday.

Ricciardi said that construction will take about 12 to 14 months on the building which will be of modern design, and hopefully complementary to the other buildings in the historic district.

Robert DeMarco of Campanelli Industries said that his company has had very good experience with the nearby Quincy Center Plaza which it built. It has been fully occupied since the day that it opened, he said.

Peter Blampied of the Boston Five said his company is pleased to be able to take part in the project.

Maxwell Van Dam, Martin Ross and Joel Clark operated the Bargain Center, a Quincy Square landmark for 49 years.

THE BARGAIN CENTER, a Quincy Square landmark for nearly 50 years, was recently sold for about $3 million to Ricciardi Company of Quincy. The building and nearby property will be developed by Ricciardi and Campanelli Industries into "the Copley Place of downtown Quincy."

Readers Forum Cuts Having Negative Impact on Medicare

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As a conservative political activist for a number of years, I am usually supportive of conservative ideas and plans when it comes to fiscal affairs and social issues.

However, I am shocked by the continuous zeal of "conservative" members of Congress and those within the Reagan Administration whose proposals threaten to have a severe impact on the nation's Medicare population.

In 1985, the Medicare program was the major source of health insurance for more than 29 million older Americans. When Congress created Medicare back during the Johnson Administration, it made a promise and commitment to the elderly that they would have access to good medical care during their "golden years" when they would most need it.

Up through 1980 that promise was kept but budget cuts since have begun to eat away at that Medicare commitment. Both the Reagan White House and Congress have imposed a series of cuts and restrictions on the Medicare program that go beyond reductions in other areas of the national budget. Massive cuts in Medicare and severe cost containment measures will lead to a second-class health care system for older Americans and that was not the commitment being mentioned by President Lyndon B. Johnson or the Congress of twenty years ago.

To date, Medicare has survived through all the Reagan cuts but they are taking their toll and conservative and neo-liberal cutbacks are beginning to have a negative impact on the health care of Medicare beneficiaries.

Medicare can not continue to sustain these cutbacks without impairing delivery of services. America's commitment to the elderly population is in trouble. In seeking a balanced budget, Congress and the White House must look elsewhere for savings and not continue to use Medicare for a disproportionate share of cuts. U.S. Senator John F. Kerry recently stated, "It's an ideological war we're caught in, not just a budget crisis...because of their (White House) belief that government can't and shouldn't help people...The deficit is the club they use to do away with programs they simply don't believe in."

While Kerry was not talking about Medicare directly, his words on the Reagan deficit and domestic cutbacks can be quoted to show the dangers faced by the elderly for needing those Medicare dollars that bring much-needed health care! Cutting the deficit should never be more important than keeping a 20 year national commitment to providing high-quality health care for the elderly.

Do Landlords Have Rights?

In Massachusetts, rental property ownership is a highly regulated business. Whether you own 100 units or two or three-family house, it pays for you to use sound and proven management practices. It also pays to understand just how the law regulates the landlord-tenant relationship, and how it defines your rights and responsibilities.

Future Mayors, Anyone?

If you glanced around the City Council chamber some Monday night for a possible future mayor your eye probably would catch James Sheets, Richard Koch, Jr. or Steve McGrath.

Of the three, Koch probably is the least interested in moving into the mayor's office.

But both Sheets and McGrath, it would appear, are much interested.

SHEETS

In fact, he could very well get another free ride to re-election if he runs for a fourth term. And all indications are that he plans to do that.

If he were to run unopposed, he would be the only mayor in Quincy's history to get two terms without opposition.

Right now, he and former Mayor Thomas Burgin are the only two to be re-elected to second terms unopposed.

McGRATH

Neither Sheets nor McGrath are the type to go out and commit political suicide by banging their heads against an unbeatable incumbent mayor.

Of course, things could change in the next two years to lessen McCauley's popularity.

A critical issue or two could suddenly hatch and turn things around.

And the cemetery, as someone once said, is full of

KOCH

Neither has to rush to make the move. Both are young enough to bide their time especially McGrath who is only 32. Sheets is 50.

And, that's important because as of the moment, incumbent Francis McCauley looks unbeatable.

McCAULEY

people who were once thought to be indispensable.

No one is indispensable. The city of Quincy would continue to function without McCauley as mayor. The country went on without George Washington. There is always someone in the wings waiting to step into the spotlight.

If McCauley continues to perform his mayoral duties as well as he has in the past, he could very well pick up a fourth term with no strong opposition or even token opposition.

Whether or not something like his proposed four year terms for mayor and the City Council boomerrangs on him remains to be seen.

Some people think the mayor should get a four year term but not City Councillors. Others are flatly opposed to both.

If the mayor's term now was four years McCauley wouldn't have to worry about opposition until 1989 instead of 1987.

And Sheets or McGrath would have to wait until at least 1988 to seriously consider running.

A four year term for mayor would seem to take a lot of the fun out of looking for prospective mayoral candidates.

Too long between looks.

THE QUINCY POLICE Department briefly found itself on the receiving end, rather than the enforcing end, of the new state seat belt law.

A memo was sent to the department stating that all city employees who drive a city vehicle must wear seat belts. Under the law, police officers operating a motor vehicle while in the performance of duty are exempt from the law.

"It went down there in error," said Mayor McCauley. "We got a couple of calls on it. We're not trying to force people to wear seat belts who are exempt from the law. The memo was meant to remind other city employees that they should be wearing seat belts," he said.

Doris Oberg Interim Curator Quincy Historical Society

By LINDA WILKINS

The Board of Governors of the Quincy Historical Society has designated Doris S. Oberg acting director/curator of the society until a new director is appointed.

Mrs. Oberg, immediate past president of the society, will fill the position vacated by Lawrence Yerdon, who left to become head of Hancock Shaker Village in Pittsfield.

Mrs. Oberg, who has worked at the society since 1958, was the first woman to be president. She feels a "good group" of people will apply for the director's position.

DORIS OBERG

tions, and in various other capacities.

"The Executive Committee has been appointed as a search committee for a director," Oberg said, "and with the help of the officers and trustees, we will continue to carry on."

According to her, "we" includes the over 20 volunteers who "come in faithfully" to work at the society.

"The society has a dedicated group of officers and trustees and in the past the volunteers have done a good job and helped out a lot," she said.

The society's volunteers work in the library, museum, as academy aides who serve refreshments at society func-

Volunteers also have been working for the past 25 years at cataloging artifacts, manuscripts and books.

"Volunteers have taken Quincy history to the schools with slide lectures and bus tours," said Mrs. Oberg, who has been "going into schools to talk on Quincy's history" for 20 years.

Every fourth grader now has a whole week of Quincy history through the school program working in Quincy's past, she added.

"We have a wonderful group of people here," said Oberg, who has been librarian, registrar, vice president, and president of the society.

Brownell Poll Shows Constituents

Want Tax Line Held

Two hundred Quincy constituents, responding to a poll by State Rep. Thomas Brownell on 10 issues, favor holding the line on taxes, have the state buy Long Island for a park, and see improvement progress on Southeast Expressway and the MBTA's Red Line.

The survey was mailed to 500 registered voters, chosen at random in Brownell's district, which includes Houghs Neck, Germantown, Merry-mount, and parts of Wollaston.

The results indicate:
• Eighty-one per cent of Brownell's constituency supported the repeal of the state's 7.5 per cent income surtax, while only 10 per cent were opposed, 11 per cent undecided.

• Seventy-seven per cent are opposed to a two per cent tax on home sales for funding a Land Bank for open-space preservation. Only 15 per cent are in favor, 9 per cent undecided.

Voters expressed a strong preference for the state to buy Long Island from Boston and incorporate it into the Boston Harbor Island State Park. Some 62 per cent are in favor, 22 per cent opposed, 17 per cent not sure.

Almost two-thirds of the respondents favor legislation creating a Consumer Utility Board, a private, non-profit corporation devoted to representing the interest of utility consumers. Sixty-four are in support, 22 per cent opposed, 15 per cent undecided.

Quincy residents appear to be seeing progress in improving the X-way and the Red Line. Some 49 per cent are satisfied with the progress, 39 per cent are not, and 11 per cent undecided.

When asked if welfare benefits should be increased to the poverty level, 54 per cent said yes, 31 per cent said no, and 15 per cent were not sure.

On the question concerning personal liberties and public safety, 57 per cent are against the new mandatory seatbelt law, 37 per cent are in favor, and just 6 per cent are undecided.

In regard to criminal justice, 59 per cent are in favor of presumptive sentencing legislation which would limit a judge's discretion in sentencing defendants found guilty of criminal action, and increase the time served by the average defendant. Only 18 per cent were opposed, 23 per cent were not sure.

Sixty per cent voted in favor of establishing limits on recoveries in order to curb the cost of medical malpractice premiums of physicians. Twenty-eight per cent voted in opposition and 12 per cent stated they were unsure.

On the question regarding "Press Shield" legislation which would immunize newspaper and TV reporters from revealing to a court of law the knowledge they might have about a crime, 43 per cent said they would be in favor of such a law. Thirty-five per cent opposed and 15 per cent undecided.

Wollaston Girl Receives 'Get Well' Card From FDR

Leona Merrill, 14, of 146 Bromfield St., Wollaston, left Quincy City Hospital after four weeks of treatment for injuries suffered in a skating accident and she took with her a "get well" card from President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Six years before, Leona may have saved FDR's life when she spotted a gun in the hand of an assassin in Miami, Fla., and screamed a warning. The President escaped injury but Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago was fatally wounded.

BURGIN WARNS ABOUT DRINKING

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin warned members of the Quincy Police and Fire Departments that it would cost them a nine-month suspension if they were found to be drunk on duty. A second offense would bring dismissal.

"Due to the fact that we have had some cases of intoxication recently in these departments, I decided it was time to take a definite and firm stand on this matter," said the Mayor.

"I specified 'on duty' in my warning but of course a policeman or fireman is technically never off duty under the law."

The Mayor's warning was read to the firemen and policemen at roll call by Police Chief John J. Avery and Fire Chief William J. Sands.

SKATERS ON THIN ICE

Youngsters from the Atlantic section who skate on the frozen area of Denison Airport were warned to quit taking a short cut across the runways or they would lose their skating privileges.

Pilots of small aircraft using the runways reported several landing and takeoff near misses with kids bound for the skating rink.

Atlantic boys and girls got a warning from the Park Department, too.

If they didn't stop throwing stones, in cans and tree branches into the flooded area of O'Neil Playground the Park Department wouldn't bother to flood it and another skating spot would be lost to them.

PERILS OF MAXIE

Max Baer, the former world heavyweight boxing champion, refereed the battle royal among wrestlers Teddy Germaine, Chief War Eagle, Wild Bill Dolan and Quincy's Al Taylor at Quincy Arena and would up the only casualty.

Germaine, who billed himself as the roughest wrestler in the world, tossed Maxie out of the ring early in the bout and the former champ suffered a split lip.

New Low Interest Home Improvement Program

State Reps. Thomas F. Brownell, Michael W. Morrissey, and Robert A. Cerasoli, announce a new state-sponsored low-interest home improvement loan program.

The program will aid borrowers in the rehabilitation of one to four family, owner-occupied homes in Quincy and 37 other communities in the state.

Offered by the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency (MHFA), and a part of Gov. Michael S. Dukakis' Massachusetts Housing Partnership, the program is making $7.7 million available, state-wide, for home improvement loans. Funds are available in Quincy at 3, 5, 8, or 11 per cent for a term of up to 15 years.

Rep. Brownell said, "This is a great opportunity for many homeowners to make improvements which they might not otherwise be able to afford. Individuals, as well as the community, will benefit by this revitalization program."

Rep. Morrissey added, "With real estate prices at an all-time high, this is an opportunity for homeowners to improve their living standards without moving to a new home."

To be eligible to receive a loan through the program, homeowners must be credit-worthy, and meet income guidelines and other program requirements. Information for prospective borrowers is available from the Quincy Office for Planning and Community Development. Contact Rick Domas at 773-1380 ext. 373.

That office is working with the MHFA to help borrowers through the loan application process. All borrowers must work with this agency to receive a MHFA Home Improvement Loan.

MHFA Home Improvement Loans may be used for improvements needed to comply with state or local

Welcoming All Milton Dieters

I kept gaining and losing the same 20 pounds.
Then I said, this time
it's going to be different.

I tried every pill, every gimmick to lose weight. Only to feel miserable when I gained it all back. Finally I said no, never again—this time I'm going to Diet Center. I lost the weight, without hunger. And I'm keeping it off.

My only regret?
Not going sooner!

You're going to make it this time.

Survey Shows Vocational Schools Effective

A state survey on the effectiveness of post-secondary vocational education has revealed employers and students alike are generally satisfied with additional training the students received.

The survey was conducted by officials of the Division of Occupational Education, part of the Massachusetts Dept. of Education located in Quincy.

State Education Commissioner John H. Lawson said ratings were highest for work quality, work attitudes and work habits, qualities engendered in the state's vocational school network.

Comm. Lawson also said students scored high in most survey categories.

The survey, the third follow-up survey on the pragmatic aspects of public school offerings focused on 12 aspects of post-secondary vocational training, including basic and technical skills and technical expertise.

Post-secondary trained employees rated somewhat higher than those who had no post-secondary training, Comm. Lawson noted.

All three surveys conducted point to the many advantages of a post-secondary vocational education, Comm. Lawson said.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK:

It has been said that nothing gives a man a sense of failure so often as an over-developed sense of perfection. Probably the most disappointed people in the world are those who set standards of performance and behavior for themselves and others which few can meet. They claim there is a perfect way to do everything, and what a paradise this world would be if everything and everyone in it were perfect. . . . But isn't it true that we all have to fulfill our destiny in the world the way it is, not the way we would like to have it? Isn't it true that we have to live with people the way they are, tolerant of their faults and grateful for their virtues? All in all it is not a bad world in spite of its imperfections. And it is possible to live with most people in an atmosphere of friendliness and goodwill. The perfectionists of this world would be happier, indeed, if they would be satisfied to work merely to make things better without demanding that they be absolutely perfect.

Perfection is good in moderate doses, but when over-developed it results in feelings of guilt over failures when, by ordinary or extra high standards, a person would be judged a success . . .

'God's Family' Christian Science Lecture Topic Jan. 20

"We're All Included in God's Family" is the subject of a Christian Science lecture Jan. 20, at 8 p.m., at First Church of Christ, Scientist, 20 Greenleaf St.

Edwin G. Leever of Winter Park, Fl., will be the guest speaker. God's love for man is "at the very heart of Christ Jesus' teachings," notes Leever. And one can begin to feel the "touch of the Christ" and see its effect in daily living, he continues, as the effort is made to follow Jesus' example.

Leever recalls many familiar Bible passages which, he says, indicate the true relationship between God and man. He cites from Jeremiah, "Yea, I have loved thee with an everlasting love; therefore with loving kindness have I drawn thee;" and another from Romans, "The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God."

During the lecture, Leever mentions specific examples of Christian healing and regeneration. Loneliness, sickness, family discord and hatred are being healed, as the speaker puts it, "by living Christianity more."

He makes a point of emphasizing that "Christian Scientists do not ignore discord in their lives. Nor do they pretend it doesn't exist in the human scene. But they do endeavor to heal it by turning to God."

In 1964 Mr. Leever resigned from a career in the aerospace industry to devote full time to the public healing practice of Christian Science. He travels extensively now as a member of The Christian Science Board of Lecture-ships.

Free parking and child care will be provided at the church for those attending the lecture.

by Hazel Mayne and Diane Lindblad.

At the first service, Dr. Langevin spoke on the subject, "How to Pray As a Christian." Deborah Stohlberg and Sarah Mildram were the ushers. Andrew Ogilvie and Mary Ruth Scott were the guitarists.

tory anthem. Mary Ruth Scott directed.

A Quincy firm which allegedly "changed from a repair shop into a junkyard" must clean its property or face losing its repair and gasoline storage licenses, the city's License Board voted at its meeting Tuesday.

"This shop falls into the category of a junkyard," said Police Chief and board member Francis Finn of Hedlund Motor Co., Inc., which is located at 330 Quincy Ave.

Finn made the motion to suspend the company's licenses for 30 days effective Jan. 28 if the conditions are not rectified.

"If the health department, fire department and Environmental Inspection Unit come in here on the 28th and say they're satisfied, we will suspend the suspension for three months," Finn said, adding that close watch will be kept on the company to ensure that the area remains clean.

At the end of the three month period, Robert Hedlund, owner of Hedlund Motor Co., will have to reappear before the board to ascertain that he has kept his commitments.

According to Robert Michelson of the Environmental Inspection Unit of the city's Department of Public Works, the unit performed inspections of the property Nov. 25, Jan. 6 and Jan. 7 and found debris, a discharge pipe exiting the building, evidence of pollutants in and around the area, and "junk automobiles, engines, and parts."

Two 55 gallon drums observed on Nov. 25 had been removed and much of the smaller debris placed in dumpsters when the unit returned in January its report stated, but Michelson said a major environmental problem still exists at the site.

"The major environmental impact there is a pipe coming from the building which is emitting a soapy substance which has an oil-based product in it," he said.

Michelson said the ground at the site is "super saturated with oil."

Harold's Bill For Funding Signed Into Law

Gov. Michael Dukakis has signed into law Quincy State Sen. Paul D. Harold's bill to establish a program to provide funding for regional planning agencies.

Harold said that due to cutbacks in federal funding, regional planning agencies are unable to provide solutions to sewerage, waste disposal, water supplies and transportation.

Establishment of this program for annual funding through the Executive Office of Communities and Development will allow the agencies to continue to address these problems on a regional basis and offer technical assistance to communities.

Under the grant program each regional planning agency is to receive $20,000 and the remainder of the funds provided for the program are to be distributed to the agencies on the basis of population and the number of cities and towns which are members of each agency, Harold added.

W. Quincy Firm Told To Clean Up Or Face Suspension

By LINDA WILKINS

The city's License Board will suspend the repair service and gasoline licenses of Joseph H. Vissa & Sons, 18-20 Furnace Ave., West Quincy, if the company does not clean its surrounding area by Jan. 28, board members voted Tuesday.

Police Chief and board member Francis Finn said the licenses will be suspended for one month if the city's health department does not present a favorable report of the property to the board at its Jan. 28 meeting.

"If the health department gives you a good report, we will suspend the suspension for three months," Finn told Robert Vissa, owner of the company. During the three month suspension, Vissa will have to erect a fence around the property, Finn added.

Vissa was originally called before the board Oct. 15 after the board received complaints from Joseph R. Valante of Valante Mechanical Contractors, Inc. that Vissa had "created an eyesore in what is basically a residential area."

Michael Shaheen, who represented the health department at the meeting, said a steel smoke stack, trucks, and fill were located on land on and beyond Vissa's licensed lot. Shaheen added that the land had been "somewhat cleaned up," but Valante, who was also present at the meeting, said Vissa had not moved any of the vehicles.

Vissa told the board he uses the vehicles to plow and transport and that he removed the vehicles which were inoperable.

"You have to be concerned with housekeeping, not just moving the vehicles," Finn said.

Council On Aging To Meet Jan. 23

Quincy Council on Aging will hold its first meeting of the new year Jan. 23, at 2 p.m. in the conference room of City Hall Annex.

Guest speaker will be Susan Young, Executive Director of the South Shore Elder Services Inc. (SSES).

SSES approves the disbursement of grants to local councils on aging and community organizations for services to the elderly.

That agency recently approved a $12,000 grant to Beechwood Community Center to do outreach, information and referral, and personal assistance to vulnerable older people. SSES also recommended that the Beechwood Center continue to coordinate its senior citizen activities with the Quincy Council on Aging.

A $4000 grant was approved for the Protestant Social Service to fund a coordinator for the shared living home in Quincy sponsored by the Bureau. The coordinator will assist people living in the home to adjust to the shared living experience.

The South Shore Center for the Blind which meets regularly at the Quincy Council on Aging Drop-In Center received SSES approval for a $2000 grant to provide transportation for the organization's blind singing group and to assist in the arts and crafts programs.

Following the remarks by Susan Young the council on aging will discuss activities being planned for 1986. Council coordinator Brian Buckley will report on the annual trip to the flower show in March.

The council has taken action on several issues of concern to Quincy's senior citizens including:

- Supported the request for city funding to pay for security services on a temporary or partial basis at the Tobin and Sawyer state housing facilities for senior citizens.

- Voted to oppose the closing of the Quincy office of the Internal Revenue Service because of the hardship that would impose on the many senior citizens who seek consultative advice at this IRS sub office.

- Opposed the increase of the MBTA senior identification pass from 50 cents to $3. State T officials held a public hearing recently at the Lincoln-Hancock school on the proposed increase.

- Opposed an 11 per cent increase in Medex payments last year.

The 15 member board of the council meets the fourth Thursday of each month in City Hall Annex. All meetings are open to the public.

Presidents Bow To Brockton

John Franceschini, first-year coach of the Quincy boys' basketball team, is finding it no bed of roses, especially in the strong Suburban League.

The Presidents put up a strong battle against Brockton's defending state Division I champions but lost to the Boxers, 85-63, last Friday, dropping their record to 1-8.

The Quincy boys went from the frying pan into the fire Tuesday night when they faced the Suburban League co-favorite, Cambridge Rindge and Latin. The Presidents will host Friday night at 7:30 and will play at Newton North next Tuesday at 7:30.

Quincy didn't go down without a fight to Brockton as the Presidents moved to within eight points of the Boxers in the third quarter, but Brockton, with its 6-10 front court, used its size and speed to advantage and quickly pulled away.

Brockton took a 26-12 lead in the opening quarter, after jumping off to a 9-0 lead and, after Quincy whittled the lead, the Boxers had a 26-16 advantage in the final quarter.

Steve Austin, returning from an injury, had 16 points for Quincy and Bob Connolly added 10.

"I was pleased with our comeback and with the effort of Austin, who had missed four games with a broken hand," Franceschini said. "Dave Britt and Connolly turned in fine games at guard. We know how tough it is playing powerhouses like Brockton, Cambridge and Brookline, but the boys are giving their all and I can't ask for any more from them."

Earlier in the week Brookline walloped Quincy, 72-46, improving its record to 8-0.

Brookline's strong inside game was too much for Quincy to handle as the Indians had a big 38-18 halftime lead and continued to pour it on in the last two quarters.

Connolly paced the Presidents with 18 points and Frank Freedman contributed nine points and seven rebounds.

--TOM SULLIVAN

STEVE GOLDEN of Quincy, a sophomore at Suffolk University, was a member of the varsity soccer team this fall and will be a key player next season. A 1984 graduate of North Quincy High, he is the son of Peter and Dolores Golden.

Cambridge Routs Raiders

The last three games for the North Quincy boys' basketball team are proof of how the Raiders, as well as Quincy, would be better off if they could move out of the strong Suburban League.

Ed Miller's North team buried by Cambridge Rindge and Latin, co-favored with Brockton's defending state champions to win the league title, 82-27, last Friday, dropping its record to 3-6.

North will play at Quincy Friday night at 7:30 and will host Waltham next Tuesday at 7:30.

Rumeal Robinson, the most sought-after high school player in the state who has decided to enter the University of Michigan, paced the Warriors with 17 points and his usual brilliant floor game, and Greg Dotin added 16. Cambridge rolled to a big 46-17 halftime advantage.

Sophomores Dave Lawless and Dennis Cronin had six points each for North, which couldn't penetrate the Warriors' strong defense.

Earlier in the week North bowed to Newton North, 60-35, as it had its troubles both shooting and passing and couldn't keep up with Newton's offensive pace.

Lawless, who has been a standout all season, and Bob Salton paced the Raiders with eight points each.

North Swimmers In First Loss To Newton N.

The North Quincy swim team, up to another good start, suffered its first loss last week to Newton North, 89-82, after winning its first three meets.

The 3-1 Raiders are 1-1 in the Suburban League.

Bill Walker's North team faced Brookline Tuesday, hosted Middleboro in a non-league meet yesterday (Wednesday) and will be at Brockton next Tuesday at 3:30.

The depth of the Raider squad has been evident, especially in last week's two meets. North had only four first places, including the 400 freestyle relay team, against Newton, and only three wins, including the 400 freestyle relay, in an earlier win over Cambridge Rindge and Latin.

In the Newton meet Dave Stockless won the 500 freestyle in 6:03.7. Dan O'Sullivan won the 50 freestyle in 25.4. Eric Giordano won the diving with 152.20 points and the 400 freestyle relay team of Rick Stanton, Stockless, Mike Melanson and Steve MacKay won in 3:51.6.

North second places were taken by Stockless, 200 freestyle; Melanson, 200 individual medley and 100 freestyle; Greg Toland, diving; MacKay, 100 butterfly; O'Sullivan, 100 backstroke, and Jason Moriarty, 100 breaststroke.

Placing third were MacKay, 200 individual medley and Stanton, 500 freestyle and 100 freestyle.

Earlier in the week North defeated Cambridge, 90-78, in its league opener.

MacKay won the 100 butterfly in 1:06.2. Melanson won the 100 freestyle in 56.3 and the 400 freestyle relay team of Brian Ramos, MacKay, Melanson and Stockless won in 4:03.4.

Taking seconds were Fred Cawthorne, 200 freestyle; Melanson, 200 individual medley; O'Sullivan, 50 freestyle and 100 backstroke; Toland, diving; Stockless, 500 freestyle, and Moriarty, 100 breaststroke.

Placing third were Ton Huynh, 200 individual medley; Stanton, 50 freestyle and 100 freestyle; and Paul Nitschke, 500 freestyle.

Dudek Hopes To Play More In Senior Bowl

North Quincy's Joe Dudek, who broke the intercollegiate touchdown record with 79 career touchdowns for Plymouth State College, played in his biggest game last Sunday, the prestigious Japan Bowl in Yokohama.

Dudek played with Heisman Trophy winner Bo Jackson and Notre Dame's all-time scoring leader, Alan Pinkett, for the East team, while Chuck Long of Iowa, a close second to Jackson in the Heisman voting, played quarterback for the West.

The East, led by Jackson, won, 31-14, but Dudek's playing time was cut when he re-injured his right ankle early in the third quarter.

Dudek carried only four times for 10 yards and played on the special teams.

The former North Quincy High star is scheduled to play in the nationally-retevised Senior Bowl Saturday in Mobile, Ala., as the top backfield alternate. If he is able to play, his ankle probably will slow him down.

Joe also will go to New Orleans Jan. 31-Feb. 2 for the National Football League's scouting combine at the Superdome and he will be represented by Boston agent Bob Woolf. Dudek is expected to be a high draft pick.

North Upset By Cambridge, 6-3

The North Quincy hockey team, which had been doing well all season, suffered an obvious letdown last Friday when it was upset by Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 6-3, at Boston University, dropping its record to 4-3-1.

Kevin Jago's Raiders met Quincy last night (Wednesday) and will host Newton North Saturday night at 7:50 at the Youth Arena.

Matt Ostiguy, Dave Fasano and Mike Haynes scored the goals in the disappointing loss to Cambridge, following a thrilling last-second 5-5 tie with Brockton in the Suburban League opener.

In the Brockton game North trailed, 5-4, with three minutes left and the faceoff in its own end.

Jago called a play and it worked, resulting in a break-out for the Raiders that produced a goal by Haynes to give the Raiders a hard-earned tie with a team that had lost only once in seven games.

"We practiced that break-out play several times the other day," Jago said. "We saw the weak-side defenseman cheating in so I gave Mike the signal."

Haynes won the draw and sent the puck around the boards and past the point man.

Fasano raced after the puck but was dragged down. He got up and sent the puck into the slot where Haynes fired it past Brockton goalie Jeff Krauthamer.

North dominated the first period as the offense clicked, while goalie Kevin Jeffers was stopping all Boxer shots. Haynes set up Dave Tapper for a goal seven minutes into the game and just before the period ended Haynes and Tapper set up Fasano, who scored from in front of the net.

Things did not go well for the Raiders in the middle period as Brockton's Mark Payson scored in less than a minute. Three minutes later Fred McEnroe tied it up for the Boxers. Tapper scored his second goal to put North in front again. The lead lasted three minutes when Bernie Cassell again tied it for the Boxers. Less than two minutes later Mark Zimmerman made it 4-3, North, with Ostiguy getting the assist.

The third period also was wide open. McEnroe tied it for Brockton at 2:32. He completed a hat trick to give the Boxers their only lead, and Jago then called "the play" which gave the Raiders the tie.

In its previous game North turned in one of its finest performances of the year but bowed to Medford, the heavy favorite to win the Greater Boston League crown, 6-4.

The Raiders rallied from a 4-1 deficit and threatened to tie the game before an empty-net goal by Joe Sacco clinched the win for the Mustangs.

"We played super," said Jago. "You'd think it was a tournament game and our goalie, Kevin Jeffers, was outstanding. It was the best single-game effort we've had in quite a while."

Tapper had a hat trick for the Raiders and he pulled North to within 4-3 with a short-handed goal with Paul McGrath and Haynes (four assists) assisting. With the score 5-3, Tapper scored from Haynes and Fasano with 4:37 left, but the Raiders' hopes were dashed by the open-net goal.

Furtado had scored the first North goal on passes from Haynes and Tapper.

"I was pleased with the play of our third line of Mark Ostiguy, Mark Zimmerman and John Pacino," Jago said. Jeffers had a big night in goal with 43 saves, 17 of them in the final period.

Raiderettes Rebound, Defeat Cambridge

The North Quincy girls' basketball team bounced back from its only loss of the season to defeat Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 48-30, last Friday, improving its record to 8-1.

Paul Bregoli's Raiderettes will host Quincy Friday at 5 p.m. and Tuesday will play at Waltham at 5.

The North girls outscored Cambridge in every quarter behind a solid defensive effort by the entire team.

Anne Marie Hughes and Anne McGuigan did not feel well before the game and junior guard Marybeth Maloney started in place of Hughes. She responded well, playing a fine floor game and shining on defense. She had two steals and two assists.

North fell behind early, 4-0, as Cambridge's leading scorer, Rhonda Greene, hit a jumper and two foul shots. However, Karen Runge, playing her finest all-around game, found Eileen Warren on a fast-break basket and Nancy Flukes under the hoop to tie the game. Runge then hit a jump shot and Flukes hit a jumper and a baseline layup as the Raiderettes took a 12-8 first quarter lead. Hughes, who entered with three minutes left in the quarter, held Greene to six points in the next two and a half quarters, a key in the win.

Flukes and Runge continued their superb all-around play in the second quarter as Flukes hit for eight points and had three assists and Runge went three for four from the line and took down nine rebounds as North led, 25-16, at half time.

North's defense increased the pressure in the third quarter as Runge, Flukes and Warren dominated the boards, while Runge had three steals and Jean Welby had two. Sophomore guard Karrie Pistorino also played tough defense and had an assist and a steal as North increased its lead to 33-20 going into the fourth quarter.

Runge and Flukes were the offensive keys again in the final quarter, with McGuigan and junior Maureen Donovan also playing well.

Flukes had a career high 21 points with nine for 12 from the floor. She saw her foul shooting streak end after hitting 17 in a row in the last four games. She also had 12 rebounds and five assists. Runge had 11 points, grabbed a career high 15 rebounds and had six steals and three assists. Warren, while not scoring heavily, had 11 rebounds, three steals and two blocked shots.

In a battle of undefeated teams, Newton North came out fired up earlier in the week and defeated the Raiderettes, 53-40.

After their emotional win over Brockton, the North girls came out flat and Newton scored the first eight points of the game and took a 14-2 lead after five minutes. Flukes' four points brought North to within 17-6 at the end of the first quarter.

North was hurt by early turnovers and defensive specialist Hughes picked up three quick fouls. Without her in the game, Newton's leading scorer, Carol Ventura, scored 15 of her game-high 23 points in the first half. North cut the Newton lead to 25-18 at the half.

The Raiderettes closed to 35-30 after three quarters as Hughes and Warren scored four points each in the quarter. They could have had the lead but missed seven layups.

North closed the gap to three with five minutes left, but never got any closer.

Flukes had 10 points and five assists and Warren scored 10 points, had 11 rebounds and two blocked shots.

"I feel we are right on schedule towards qualifying for the state tournament," Bregoli said. "Our ability to bounce back after the loss to Newton with such a great team effort, particularly the defense, shows that the girls know what it takes to win and achieve their goals."

"The Cambridge game also showed other teams they can't key on Eileen Warren and expect to beat us. We have other offensive threats as Runge and Flukes showed in that game."

Quincy Icemen Lose To Newton N., 10-2

Quincy's hockey team has been finding the going rough and last Saturday lost to Newton North, 10-2, dropping its record to 2-6-1.

Bob Sylvia's Presidents

faced North Quincy last night (Wednesday), will play at Brockton (Asiaf Rink) Saturday at 4 p.m. and will host Cambridge Rindge and Latin next Wednesday at 6:40 at the Youth Arena.

Quincy had seven third period penalties against Newton and was forced to play almost the entire period short handed as Newton scored six goals and win going away.

The Presidents took a 1-0 lead in the first period with Steve Conostas scoring and Tony Scola assisting. Newton came back to take a 2-1 lead and took a 4-2 lead into the fateful third period.

In their previous game the Presidents were edged by Waltham, 2-1, in one of the best played games of the season.

Earlier Quincy lost to Peabody, 6-1, with Conostas scoring the goal unassisted. Peabody scored on three of six power play goals.

ence. North Quincy's Jack Brown, Barrett's favorite receiver, was named the team's Offensive Player of the Year. The wide receiver, who started his college career as Barrett's backup at quarterback, set two school pass receiving records this past season.

Prayer Through Application To The Holy Spirit

Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, light all roads so that I can attain my goal. You who give me the divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances of my life you are with me. I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things as you confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you, even and in spite of all material illusion. I wish to be with you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy toward me and mine. The person must say this prayer for three consecutive days. After three days, the favor requested will be granted, even if it may appear difficult. This prayer must be published immediately after the favor is granted without mentioning the favor. Handicap Parking Regulations Strengthened Representative Michael W. Morrissey, (D-Quincy), notes that Governor Michael Dukakis has signed a bill which strengthens handicap parking regulations.

The bill was filed by Rep. Morrissey.

This new legislation will authorize the registrar to issue "special parking identification cards" to be used instead of handicap plates.

The special parking identification card would be numbered and contain the name and photo of the person to issued.

Rep. Morrissey explained the card must be displayed through the left portion of the windshield and would be for the exclusive use of the person to whom the card is issued.

He concluded that the card will give handicapped persons who do not own a car the same privileges as those who do.

City Officials, Residents Back Deer Island Sewage Site

By DAN CONNELLY

Empty seats outnumbered the spectators at a hearing Monday night in North Quincy High School as some 60 city officials and residents backed Deer Island as the new sewer plant site.

The formal hearing marked the first of three that the state Water Resources Authority and the federal Environmental Protection Agency are required to call this week as part of their final environmental impact statement to allow public input. Both groups have tentatively selected Deer Island. A final decision is due next month.

A number of city officials and residents spoke. Most were supportive of plans to choose Deer Island and not Nut Island or Long Island to house one of the largest treatment plants in the world.

Many who addressed the hearing also backed mitigating measures proposed by the state and federal government to help cushion the sewer plant's blow on nearby Winthrop, including moving the Deer Island Prison, ferrying construction workers to reduce commuter traffic, odor control and limits on the use of liquid chlorine.

Mayor Francis X. McCauley said the authority's decision where to locate a new treatment plant was a difficult one and it is unfortunate that Quincy and Winthrop were pitted against each other. "Someone had to win, someone had to lose. But it was a good decision. We will see a cleanup of Boston Harbor and Quincy Bay in the years ahead."

Public Works Commissioner Paul Anderson told EPA regional Administrator Michael Deland and water resource authority officials that "Quincy is more at rest because state and federal authorities made the right decision."

State Sen. Paul Harold was out of town but a representative of his office said Harold approves Deer Island as the most viable site for the sewer plant.

In a brief statement State Rep. Michael Morrissey applauded the Deer Island decision.

Water resource advisor board member Leo Kelly said there is a need immediately to remove all sludge and industrial waste from both Boston Harbor and Quincy Bay so the natural ecology can rejuvenate itself.

Ward One Councilor Michael Cheney said the decision will hopefully clean up Quincy Bay and Boston Harbor "in my lifetime." Cheney also urged chlorine be barred as a disinfectant of waste. He feels an alternative agent can be found.

The lack of attendance at the quiet, 90-minute hearing, fell far short of the nearly 2000 who were at the noisy, six-hour session 10 months ago when people expressed concerns that Nut or Long Island might be selected.

Two more public hearings are scheduled -- Tuesday night at Faneuil Hall in Boston and Wednesday at Winthrop Junior High School.

The EPA will continue to take written comments from the public until Jan. 21; the water resources authority will do so until Jan. 24.

Open Space Plan Unveiled

The plan lists as the city's conservation goals:

• To preserve all salt marshes in the city.

• To move more aggressively to acquire land for conservation purposes as funds and opportunities present themselves.

• To protect vulnerable waterfront and inland areas from stormwater flooding.

• To maintain and protect commercial and sport fishing resources.

• To preserve, utilize and manage open spaces and scenic areas in manners consistent with sound environmental policies.

Recreation goals include:
• To move more aggressively to acquire land for recreational purposes as funds and opportunities present themselves.

• To provide a diversity of recreational experiences through an active recreational program.

• To develop an aesthetically pleasing park, playground and city environ.

The plan also lists five year action plans for conservation, which includes such things as acquisition of Butler Pond, and for recreation, including outdoor recreation renovation program.

The mayor commended the Planning Department for its work on the project, particularly Richard Meade, Elizabeth McElaney, and Rick Dumas.

The plan has been submitted to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts for review and comments.

Tony Siciliano Sun's

Year'

Anthony (Tony) Siciliano, Deputy Director of Quincy Civil Defense, is The Quincy Sun's first "Citizen of The Year."

Siciliano was selected for his outstanding community service by a panel of judges from among 31 nominees submitted by readers of The Sun.

Siciliano, who has been with Quincy Civil Defense since 1968, has been Deputy Director for the past six years and Auxiliary Police Chief since 1976.

All of his service has been without pay.

"We were greatly impressed with the large number of outstanding nominations," said Sun

Publisher Henry Bosworth.

"The selection was not an easy task for the judges because so many of the nominees were more than worthy of receiving the honor.

"We congratulate not only Tony Siciliano for being selected as the final winner, but all of the other 30 nominees who are deserving of recognition, and we commend them for their service to the community and to the less fortunate."

Siciliano has given hundreds of hours of his own time, often under the most adverse weather and pressure conditions.

His service includes the Blizzard of 1978, the big northeast storm that hit Quincy in April, 1982 and Hurricane Gloria last year.

Civil Defense, under Siciliano and Police Chief Francis Finn who is the Civil Defense Director, logged over 50,000 man-hours during the Blizzard of '78 with 600 volunteers assisting.

During disasters like that, and other storms, Civil Defense helps evacuate families in flood areas, sets up shelters, transports doctors and nurses to and from Quincy Hospital, and key of those in need and offers general assistance to anyone needing it.

"I'm astounded," Siciliano said when informed he was to be the recipient of the first "Citizen of The Year Award" to be presented by The Sun.

"I find it hard to believe. I know there are many others more deserving than I am. I consider this a tremendous honor."

The "Citizen Of The Year Award for 1985" will be presented at a reception Sunday, March 9 at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center.

$45 Million Project Then Underway Bargain Center Demo Seen By Summer

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The Bargain Center, which has attracted shoppers to downtown Quincy for nearly 50 years, is expected to be under demolition by the summer.

Quincy Planning Director James Lydon said it is expected that the Bargain Center's inventory will be liquidated by then. Building 19 is undergoing that process.

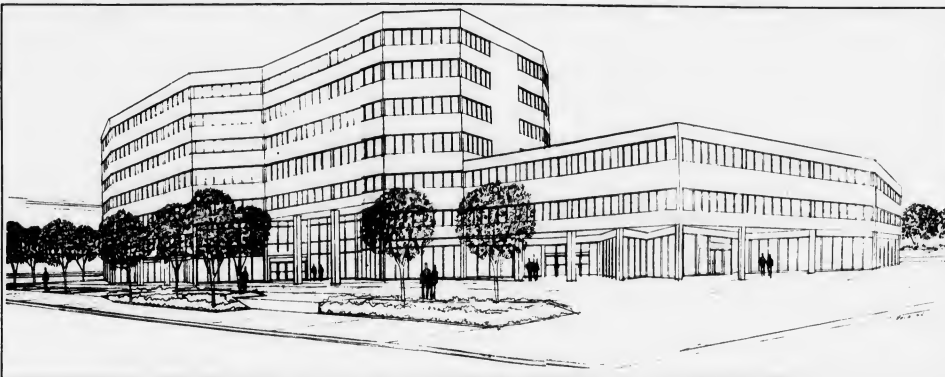

Once that is completed, demolition will begin, Lydon said.

"Our goal is to get the project running next summer," according to the Planning Director.

A $45 million project, which will include retail, commercial and residential space, is planned for the Bargain Center and nearby property.

Ricciardi Company of Quincy purchased the Bargain Center property for about $3 million and will join with Campanelli Industries of Braintree in developing it.

The Boston Five Cent Savings Bank will finance, and be the principal tenant, of the 225,000 square foot project.

It is expected to stretch from the old Elks Building on Hancock St. to the Bargain Center, and from there down to the old Quincy District Courthouse on Coddington St.

Lydon said the ground level will be used for retail space. It has not yet been determined if there will be a large retailer or small specialty stores, he said.

No determination has yet been made on the old Quincy District Court which the developers have expressed interest in buying.

The court house, owned by Norfolk County, provides classroom space for Quincy Junior College.

The college has been a tenant at will for the last several years. It has no lease.

Mayor Francis McCauley told the school committee that the developers are sensitive to the situation and would not arbitrarily evict the college.

Lydon said he expects to go before the City Council in February and March to make recommendations on UDAG applications for the project.

Seeks Federal Funds Retention

McCauley In Washington For Mayors' Conference

A retention of federal revenue sharing is the focus of the mid winter meeting of the U.S. Conference of Mayors in Washington, D.C., being attended by Mayor Francis McCauley and other city officials.

Accompanying the Mayor at the conference, which began Wednesday and continues to Friday, are the mayor's executive secretary Peter Kenney, Planning Director James Lydon and City Council President Stephen McGrath.

"The main thrust of the meeting will be retention of federal revenue funds scheduled to be shut down at the end of the fiscal year," said McCauley before he left on the trip.

"We are strongly opposed," said McCauley. "Federal revenue sharing has worked very well for the cities in this country."

"We're very concerned that it's going to be shut down."

The mayor said the main use of the funds in Quincy is to offset the salaries of the police and fire departments.

"We expended $1,800,000

this year in revenue sharing funds for the police and fire departments.

"That's 13% of the total budget of each department," said McCauley.

"The loss would be a serious blow to the City of Quincy," said McCauley.

If the program is faded out, McCauley said he doesn't expect to lay off any police officers or fire fighters.

"We've cut back by attrition over the past few years and the departments are at a point that I'm comfortable with. I wouldn't want to cut them back further," said McCauley.

One solution to the loss of funds might be for the state to pick up a portion of the loss, said McCauley.

"How much they could pick up would be problematical," the mayor said. "Hopefully, the Reagan administration will reconsider its action."

Also during the trip, McCauley will attend a meeting of the Community Development, Housing and Economic Development Committee, and meet with Andy Card, White House Aid.

The delegation is expected to return Friday about 2 p.m.

Germantown Variety Granted CV License

By LINDA WILKINS

The 3 N 1 Variety, 231 Palmer St., Germantown, which for many years has been Lester's Variety, was granted a common victualer license by the Quincy License Board at its meeting Tuesday at City Hall.

The license was granted with the stipulation that the store's trash receptacles be taken care of daily and will be subject to the approval of the city's Health Department.

Anthony P. Damata Jr., who purchased the store in December, said he requested the license to sell take-out sandwiches and coffee. The name of the store, 3 N 1, was derived from Demata's parentage—he is the father of three daughters and one son.

In a letter to the board, Ward 1 Councilor Michael Cheney said he favored the granting of the license provided a trash receptacle be placed outside the store and maintained by the proprietor and that the proprietor be required to pick up debris along the perimeter of the store at least once a day.

Cheney's letter further stated "that the waste produced from making submarine sandwiches be placed in such manner as to protect the environment" and "that the license be granted for take-out only and not to be expanded to include consumption of food on the premises."

Damata said he will have someone clean the front of the store and sections of Palmer St.

"It's up to you to maintain and keep the area clean," City Clerk and Board Chairman John Gillis told Damata. Gillis said he considered granting a common victualer license to Damata "a necessity for the business."

Because Damata plans to live above the store, the board strongly recommended he place two smoke detectors in the store and one in the basement.

Board Fire Chief and board member Carl Valenti told Damata he should install smoke detectors which would be linked together should a fire start in the store.

"It's for your own protection," Valenti said.

Causes $60,000 Damage

3-Alarm Blaze Injures 3 Firefighters

A three-alarm fire Jan. 16 at 167 and 169 Kendrick Ave., South Quincy, resulted in an estimated $60,000 damage to the two family, wood construction house and its contents.

Three firefighters were injured.

Firefighter William Center of Tower 1 suffered smoke inhalation and was admitted to Quincy City Hospital. He was later released.

Treated at Quincy City Hospital and released were Fire Fighters Robert Craig of Engine 1, who was injured when a ceiling fell on him, and John Ganel of Engine 4, who suffered smoke inhalation.

According to Dep. Chief Thomas Gorman, the fire Jan. 16, started in the first floor kitchen. It is believed to have been caused by careless disposal of smoking material, he said.

The fire spread to the second floor kitchen through the pipes, he said, and it was stopped on the second floor.

There was heavy fire loss to the first floor, moderate fire loss to the second floor, heavy smoke damage to the second and third floors, according to Gorman.

The first floor was occupied by Gail Johnson, niece of the owner, Lillian Hanson, who was in the second floor apartment, he said.

Acting Chief Carl Valenti was on the scene, as were 11 pieces of fire apparatus, for about three hours.

The house will be unlivable for quite some time, said Gorman.

Bill Would Give School First Chance To Buy Old Courthouse

Rep Michael Morrissey has agreed to file legislation that would give the School Committee the first chance to buy the former county courthouse, committee member Mary Collins said.

The old Quincy District Court is owned by Norfolk County and provides classroom space for Quincy Junior College which is run by the school committee.

Developers of a $45 million project which includes razing the Bargain Center have expressed interest in buying the courthouse which is under the jurisdiction of county commissioners.

The college has been a tenant at will for the last several years. It has no lease.

Mrs. Collins felt negotiations for the proposed state takeover of the college might be hindered by the developer's plans to buy the building.

The developers are sensitive to the situation and would not arbitrarily evict the college. Mayor Francis McCauley, school committee chairman, said.

QCJ president Dr. O. Clayton Johnson said the developers appear to be willing to work out a solution with school officials.

Break At Farmers Exchange

A break was reported Jan. 15, at the Farmer's Exchange, 14 Faxon Ave., Quincy Center. Police said the intruders tore a large rear overhead door from its rails and pushed it back.

It was unknown if entrance was gained or anything taken, according to police who said the exchange had recently been broken into eight times in three weeks.

Romros Kadsianis of Post Island Road, Adams Shore, reported to Jan. 15, police that three gates were stolen from his fence.

Viet Vets Disclaim Tie To Man Jailed For Soliciting Funds

The president of a Quincy Vietnam veterans group wants to make sure that local residents are aware that his organization has never been associated with a Braintrust man recently found guilty of unlawful solicitation of funds.

David D. Lawson, president of the Quincy Chapter of Vietnam Combat Veterans Combined Armed Forces, said he was aware of the fund-raising activities of the 38-year-old ex-Marine, founder of the Quincy chapter of Vietnam Veterans of America.

Charles R. Manfredi was given a two-year sentence by a superior court judge after he pleaded guilty to fraudulently soliciting money for charity. He was ordered to serve 60 days and placed on probation for three years.

"I want to assure every combat-era veteran as well as the general public, which has so generously supported the VCVCAF that there has never been an association between Mr. Manfredi and our group," Lawson said.

He added that his veterans organization was incorporated last February 1985. "It has struggled organization-ally and financially but we are proud to report that our original commitment to serve the 2500 Vietnam era veterans from Quincy remains of priority."

Working with the Quincy Veterans Council this chapter has taken a leadership role in representing the veterans on important issues which include: Senate Bill 762, an act to provide treatment for delayed stress syndrome; Agent Orange - the court settlement and plans to construct a memorial to those killed and missing in action in Southeast Asia.

License Board Briefs

The License Board took the following action at its meeting Tuesday at City Hall:

● Granted a request from Thoroughbred Auto Grooming, 222 Willard St., West Quincy, for a permit to store 100 gallons of gasoline in the tanks of cars, and for limited use of installing car radios, phones, sunroofs, auto alarms, radar detectors, and pinstrips.

Jackie Quirk, legislative aide, who represented Ward 4 Councilor James Sheets at the meeting, expressed concern for parking in the area and the business' hours of operation.

Matthew Shanley of thoroughbred Auto Grooming told the board there is parking for four or five cars and that patrons will not park on the street.

The license was granted with the stipulation that there be no offstreet parking and that the hours of operation be from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m., six days a week.

● Granted a request from North Quincy Taxi Service, 2 Billings Rd., North Quincy, for three additional cabs, making a total of 23.

The license was granted with the stipulation that there be no offstreet parking. Wayne McCauley of North Quincy Taxi Service, told the board the taxis will park in a lot off of Linden St.

● Continued to Jan. 28, a hearing regarding a police report dated Dec. 16 and alleged violations noted in Chief Probation Officer's letter of Dec. 13 regarding Bentley's Steakhouse, 579

Southern Artery.

The hearing was continued due to the absence of representative from the Quincy Police Department.

Members of the department were attending the funeral of patrolman Robert Forde.

● Continued to Jan. 28, a hearing regarding a request from Hercules Fuel Corp., 116 Copeland St., West Quincy, for a license to repair trucks and automobiles.

Hercules Fuel Corp. currently has a license to store gasoline above ground and repairs its own trucks. The corporation requested the repair license to extend the business to automobile repairs, said Paul Viglas of Hercules Fuel Corp.

The hearing was continued so board members can survey the site.

● Placed on file a request from Town House of Pizzeria, President Plaza, for a common victualer license after the applicants did not appear at the meeting.

● Granted a request from St. Joseph PTA for a one day all alcoholic license for Saturday, Feb. 8, 7 p.m. to 12 midnight, for a function to be held at the Fore River Clubhouse.

● Granted a request from the Parent's Club, Woodward School for Girls, for a one day all alcoholic license for Saturday, Feb. 8, 7 p.m. to 12 midnight, for a function to be held at the school.

● Granted a request from Wollaston Chapter, O.E.S., to conduct the Antiques Show and Sale at the Masonic Temple, 1170 Hancock St., Quincy, Saturday, Feb. 15, 6 to 10 p.m., Sunday, Feb. 16, noon to 8 p.m., Monday, Feb. 17, noon to 8 p.m.

2-Alarm Blaze Causes $75,000 Damage in N. Quincy

A two-alarm fire Monday afternoon at 96 and 98 Botolph St., North Quincy, resulted in an estimated $75,000 damage to the wood construction, two family house.

Firefighter John Martell of Rescue 1 was injured when he fell 35 feet from the roof and received shoulder, back and foot injuries.

He was taken to Quincy City Hospital by Bay State Ambulance, treated and released.

The fire broke out in the living room of the upstairs apartment, according to Dep. Robert Curtin. Officials theorize that the fire may have started with an Atari game on a carpet.

The cause is being investigated by the State Fire Marshall's Office and Quincy Fire Department Fire Prevention Bureau.

The building is owned by Bruno Mastracola, according to Curtin. The first floor is occupied by Filomena Mas-

Mrs. Bette McElaney said she returned home to find the house ransacked and a south side window broken.

Reported stolen were a Williamsburg glass decanter worth $100, crystal glasses, $30; mahogany tray, $100; and two antique glass containers with sterling silver tops, $100.

VCR Stolen

Kathleen Mitchell, a librarian at the Quincy Junior College library, 30 Coddington St., reported to police the theft of a JVC portable VCR worth $250 Jan. 16.

Alfred Fairbairn of Brickell Rd., Stoughton, reported to police Jan. 19, that his car was jacked up and four new tires worth $110 each were stolen while it was parked on Larry St., West Quincy.

Finian's Pub Expansion Approved By Board

By LINDA WILKINS

Finian's Pub, 1657 Hancock St., was given permission Tuesday by the city's Licensing Board to expand its premises to include an additional 39 seats in the dining area and new kitchen facilities.

The board stipulated, however, that the expansion plans be revised to include installation of a trash compactor and a food waste disposal unit. Also, the exterior of the building and its signs will be subject to the approval of the building inspector. Final approval of the license will be given after the city's fire, building and health departments survey the site.

"If it's a condition of this license that a trash compactor be put in and we find it's not economically feasible, we'll come back before the board," said Atty. Robert Fleming, who represented James A. Hession, president and manager of Finian's Pub, Ltd.

Fleming said the building's architecture and signs will not be changed by the remodeling.

"The bulk of the work will be to expand the kitchen into a more workable area than it presently is and to expand the restrooms," Fleming said. The expansion will also include 39 seats in addition to the 136 seats in the main dining area.

Councilor-at-Large Joseph LaRaia, who attended the meeting, expressed concern about the disposal of waste products at the restaurant. LaRaia told the board he has received complaints of overflowing dumpsters and refuse abutting the general area.

Fleming said Finian's has daily pick-ups of its three dumpsters but Building Inspector and board member Allan MacDonald said an industrial disposal with a grease trap and a compactor would keep the area cleaner.

"Some day we will see no dumpsters because they're very unhealthy," said acting Fire Chief Carl Valenti.

MacDonald said he thinks

"the whole city should go that way in the future," meaning all Quincy businesses should have compactors.

When City Clerk and board chairman John Gillis questioned whether small business owners could afford such units, MacDonald said he believed they could be rented.

LaRaia also told the board he was concerned about parking in the area.

"Parking is a tough problem up there," MacDonald said.

Fleming told the board that expansion to the restaurant will be minimal where seating is concerned. He added that Hession had talked to neighbors of the restaurant and they were "all overwhelmingly supportive" of the expansion.

"I think a lot of merchants have made available what objections their lots to parking. Mr. Hession sits in a favorable position with neighbors who accommodate his customers' parking," LaRaia added.

NATURAL GAS THE MODERN ALTERNATIVE

Take a big load off laundry costs with a new gas dryer.

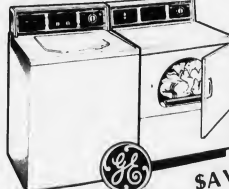

- Nothing dries clothes more economically than a natural gas dryer. Clean, efficient gas dries more loads than electric dryers do for the same cost.
- Nothing dries clothes faster than a natural gas dryer. It moves more warm air through the drying drum.
- A reliable gas dryer maintains its efficiency year after year. Your dryer lasts longer.

Burning calories before you eat them? Take control with a gas range.

- Professional chefs demand natural gas ranges for the precise temperature control they need.
- Only a clean, gas flame adjusts instantly from high heat to low, low to high and everything in between.
- A gas range's flexible flame hugs every size pot and pan perfectly, for total heat distribution.
- With gas, there's no warm-up or cool-down delay. You start cooking instantly, and have control to stop boiling over, burning and spattering.

Jobs For Bay State Aid Quincy Seniors In Work Search

Two key officials in labor and education will address Quincy high school seniors about preparing for positions in the labor market.

State Secty. of Labor Paul Eustase and State Rep. James Collins, a member of the House Education Committee, will be talking to Quincy and North Quincy students who will officially join the Jobs For Bay State Graduates Inc. at a ceremony Jan. 30 at 7 p.m. in Quincy High School Method Center. Eustase will explain the vital role that jobs play in the successful readiness needed for young people seeking responsible future employment.

He will tell how participants emerge from school fully equipped with the essential skills of resume preparation, proper dress, attitude, and employment interviewing. He will also touch on subjects like establishing credit, checking account maintenance and budgeting. Collins will explain his involvement with the graduates program. He is a past chairperson on that association's board of directors.

The legislator said he takes pride in the fact that Jobs has demonstrated a history of excellence by maintaining an unprecedented 92 per cent placement rate for its' participants following graduation.

Also in attendance will be business, civic, and education leaders from the Boston/South Shore area, many of whom have demonstrated their commitment to the program by becoming members of the association's area Advisory Council.

YOU AND YOUR AGENT

QUESTION: I have just been transferred and need to buy a home fast. I know the area I'd like to live in. What's the best action to take now?

ANSWER: The quickest method of selecting a home is knowing ALL that's available on the market. You won't get that information by charging around from one "For Sale" sign to another. Your best course is to seek help from a REALTOR—Preferably, one who is active in your selected neighborhood.

Be candid about your finances and what you can afford. This information will come out sooner or later and you'll waste your time looking at houses beyond your means.

BEING CANDID with your Realtor about financial facts will save you both time and money.

Getting Ridiculous

The Patriot Ledger's Phil Dine is sobbing over his typewriter.

Dine is editorially whining over the fact that some City Hall news conferences are called for Tuesday afternoons.

He complains that the conferences are being "orchestrated" to time them to The Quincy Sun which hits the street Wednesday afternoons.

His gripe, he says, may sound a bit self-serving, as he piously hastens to add that Tuesday afternoon press conferences force the public to wait for important news.

You're right, Phil. Your beef really does sound self-serving.

What you really mean is that when there are Tuesday afternoon press conferences, The Sun has the chance to run that news on the same day as the Ledger—not the day after or a week later.

The Ledger has five other days in the week to get most of the City Hall news first. What's wrong with The Sun staying even on one day?

We're still not beating the Ledger out with the story. We are both coming out on the same day.

Dine got upset last week when on the same Tuesday afternoon, Mayor Francis McCauley called a press conference to announce a master plan to increase open space in the city.

McGrath

Everyone got a fair shake.

Though the two announcements were important, there was nothing matter-of-life-and-death about them that they had to be made Tuesday morning instead of Tuesday afternoon.

There was no immediate effect on or threat to the lives of any Quincy resident. There was no crazed gunman loose in the city. There was no bomb ticking

DINE

McCauley

And new Council President Steve McGrath called one to announce his council committees and chairmen.

The Sun ran the two stories on Wednesday. The Ledger ran them on Wednesday. WJDA ran them on Wednesday. And Sun Ch. 8 ran them on Wednesday.

away. There was no crisis of any kind.

It would seem McCauley, McGrath and any other public official should have the right to call a Tuesday afternoon press conference so that the city's news media can all get an announcement simultaneously and, use it simultaneously.

It would seem they have the further right to reach the largest audience by allowing all the media to have the story while it is fresh.

The Ledger doesn't own the town. Once upon a time it pretty much did. That was before the coming of WJDA, The Sun and cable television.

Quincy, quite frankly, is a healthier town today because it is no longer a one-newspaper town.

And elected officials would be doing the public a service by helping to keep it from ever becoming one again.

What Dine would like to do, we can't help but suspect, is to shut off the Tuesday afternoon press conference (and, there really aren't that many in the course of a year) so that the Ledger can beat The Sun to the stories.

Neither Dine nor the Patriot Ledger has a legitimate beef over Tuesday afternoon conferences.

The Patriot Ledger relinquished its role as Quincy's newspaper some 20 years ago when it took the name Quincy off its banner and spread into other areas as a regional newspaper to seek its fortune.

The Quincy Sun is Quincy's hometown community newspaper.

We could get as ridiculous as Dine by insisting that public officials hold all their news for us.

C'mon, Phil.

You've been in town a couple of years. You're not an expert on Quincy yet.

Last summer you were trying to tell the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association how to run the Miss Quincy Bay Beauty Pageant.

Now you're trying to tell elected officials how and when to run news conferences.

Next you'll probably be trying to tell us how to trim our toenails.

And, that's just about how ridiculous this whole thing is.

Public Health Dept. Warns Of Space Heaters Burning Used Oil

The state Department of Public Health issued an advisory to Quincy residents who operate space heaters to be sure that exhaust gases are vented to outside air.

The agency reported there are two types of space heaters that are designed to burn waste oil: vaporizing and atomizing burners.

The former operates by heating a film of oil below the combustion zone to cause vaporization of the oil, which is then burned. Atomizing burners use low-pressure air to create an atomized mist of oil in the combustion zone, and the mist is burned.

Public Health Commissioner Dr. Bailus Walker Jr.

said that tests conducted by the Federal Environmental Protection Agency have determined that unvented space heaters that burn used oil may produce levels in workplace air that could be 6 to 1400 times greater than the lead levels known to cause toxic effects in adults.

"Excessive levels of this lead in inhaled air can cause toxic effects, including nerve and irreversible brain damage, kidney failure, anemia, high blood pressure, various blood and metabolic disorders, and gastrointestinal disturbance," Walker added.

Siciliano Sun's 'Citizen Of Year'

The award, which will be an annual honor, is for outstanding community service or for an outstanding single achievement.

Sun readers have the opportunity to nominate persons they believe deserving of the honor and a panel of judges selects the final winner from those nominees.

Although other organizations recognize outstanding individuals, The Sun's award is unique in that the public is invited to participate in both the nominations and the final selection.

"It gives the community input in the choice," said Bosworth. "It makes it a community award."

This year's panel of judges:

Senator Paul Harold, Dr. Clayton Johnson, president of Quincy Junior College, Rabbi Jacob Mann of Beth Israel Synagogue; Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, director of Pupil Personnel Services in the Quincy public schools; Kathryn Roberts, Republican state committeewoman, member of the Quincy Planning Board and businesswoman; Thomas McDonald, post commander

George F. Bryan VFW Post and former state commander of the VFW; David Leitch of Burgin Platner Insurance and past president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and Richard Realini, president of the Quincy Sons of Italy.

Rabbi Mann and Realini were unable to be present at the actual selection of the winner.

Barry Welch Wins State Recognition

City Recreation Director Barry J. Welch has been recognized by the Massachusetts Recreation and Park Association as a master professional in the field of Recreation, Parks and Leisure Services.

Certification has been granted by the Professional Certification Board of the Massachusetts Recreation and Park Association, an affiliate of the National Recreation and Park Association.

Certification is earned on the basis of proven commitment in the delivery of leisure services, educational degrees completed, and remaining current in the field through the completion of Continuing Education Units. Certification requires continuing work and educational experiences with recertification required every two years.

Welch, a longtime employee of the Quincy Recreation Department, has been director of recreation since February, 1982 and is among the first in the Commonwealth to achieve this important distinction.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Urge Rapid Transit Cars On RR Lines

A special legislative commission recommended daytime use by the Metropolitan Transit Authority (MTA) of three railroad commuter lines, including the Old Colony branch of the New Haven Railroad.

The commission promised: "Communities which fear the coming of the MTA because of its huge deficit might find that the marriage of the MTA to railroad commuter lines would expand passenger traffic to such an extent that the deficit might melt away and even disappear."

George A. Yarrington, executive secretary of the Quincy Taxpayers Association, also waxed enthusiastic over the commission's conclusions.

"The report," he said, "contains the solution to the problem of our deficit-ridden railroad commuter service."

TRANSPORT PROBLEM SNAGS MAP

City Planning Director Regis J. Harrington had transportation problems of his own.

Seems the Planning Department's request for an automobile of its own was cut from the 1958 budget, leaving Harrington with no way to tour the city's streets while preparing an official map.

He complained that there was no city-owned car for his use and his $45 a month travel allowance was not enough to enable him to complete the mapping job by rented car or taxi-cab.

CHAMBER NAMES FIRST WOMAN

Miss Joan Sullivan of 50 Albion Rd., Wollaston, was named special projects secretary of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, the first woman to hold an executive post in the Chamber's history.

Miss Sullivan, who has been a Chamber secretary for several years, will have charge of the Christmas Festival as well as historical affairs and anniversary celebrations.

CITY COUNCIL DIVIDED

It was reported that the Quincy City Council was dividing into two distinct voting blocs.

One, called the "Old Guard" was made up of Councillors Thomas S. Burgin, Edna B. Austin and David S. McIntosh.

The other was composed of Council President James R. McIntyre and Councillors Charles L. Shea, Carl W. Anderson, Joseph E. Brett, William C. Ellis and John J. Quinn.

Santoro Urges Convention Trip Money Be Used For Basketball

Newly inaugurated school committee member Frank Santoro thinks his fellow committee members should reinstate a school basketball program rather than attend a national convention in Las Vegas.

Santoro said the money would better be used to reinstate an interscholastic middle school basketball program for boys and girls.

However, Mayor Francis

McCauley, who is also school committee chairman, said the convention would be worthwhile, especially for new members such as Santoro and Margaret Nigro.

They would be able to exchange ideas with school committee members from across the country, said McCauley.

Committee member Mary Collins tabled the matter until the board's next meeting

Feb. 5 because of the absence of fellow member Frank Anselmo.

Supt. John Osterman said the School Committee has allocated about $12,000 for out of state travel for members this year.

The convention, which will be held during the first week in April, will cost between $1,000 and $1,500 for each member chosen to attend, he said.

Chemicals Awareness Symposiums For Athletes

The Quincy Athletic Department will sponsor two chemical awareness symposiums for all athletes, coaches and parents involved in winter sports.

The first will be held tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at the North Quincy High auditorium.

The second will be Monday night at 7 at the Quincy High Method Center.

During the past two years the National High School Coaches Association has developed a program patterned after one started in Minnesota to combat alcohol and drug abuse among teenagers. The Mass. High School Coaches Association, the Mass. Interscholastic Athletic Association and the Suburban League athletic directors have endorsed the program.

All winter sports athletes and coaches are required to attend these meetings and one or both parents of each athlete is requested to attend.

The Quincy School Committee has wholeheartedly approved this effort.

Refreshments will be served to open each meeting and principals Peter Chrisom of North and Lloyd Hill of Quincy will welcome the guests.

The speakers at each meeting will be Supt. of Schools John A. Osterman, Coordinator of Athletics Martin Finnegan, Julie Doherty, executive director of the State Coaches Association; William Gaine, assistant executive director of the MIAA, and Father John McVernon, director of community education, the Mediplex Group, Inc., of New York City.

A film, the Minnesota Experience will be shown and Bruce McPherson, director of health for the Melrose Public Schools, will present a film, "What Wheel."

Jews For Jesus To Speak At Glad Tidings Church

What do the Jewish Passover and Jesus' Last Supper have in common? Tuvia Zaretsky, staff evangelist with Jews for Jesus, will answer that question as he presents "Christ in the Passover" at Glad Tidings Church, 158 Washington St., Quincy, Sunday, Jan. 26, at 2 p.m.

The purpose of the "Christ in the Passover" presentation is to enhance the Christian understanding of the New Testament by showing a Jewish background for the Communion celebration. Ancient and modern Jewish customs are discussed and described with an emphasis on the aspect of redemption that Christ accomplished at Calvary.

A table is set with the traditional Jewish Passover items, including representative foods which are explained, but not eaten. Members of the Jews for Jesus group have given this demonstration in more than one thousand different churches. It was originally written in 1956 by Moishe Rosen, the founder and leader of Jews for Jesus. It was abstracted from the writings of the former rabbi Leopold Cohn, who came to Christ in 1894 and died in 1936.

Rosen contends that some of the most important elements of Christianity doctrine, such as the Trinity, the principle of substitutionary atonement, and salvation through a personal relationship with the Messiah, are implied in the Seder (Passover feast) as observed by Orthodox Jews even today.

Jews for Jesus, an evangelistic agency, is best known for its creative materials. Their literature, called "broadsides," deals with contemporary themes ranging from nuclear disarmament to Pac-Man. Broad-sides use humor and clever illustrations, yet have a serious message: namely, that Jesus is the promised Messiah for Jews and Gentiles.

Raiderettes Cruise By Quincy, 66-46

The North Quincy girls' basketball team, ranked fourth in the Eastern Mass. coaches' poll, cruised past Quincy, 66-46, last Friday to improve its record to 9-1 (3-1 in the Suburban League). Quincy fell to 2-9 (1-4 in the league).

The North girls will host league-leading Brookline Friday at 5 p.m. and will be home to Brockton Tuesday at 5.

Quincy will be idle Friday and will play at Waltham Tuesday at 5 p.m.

The Raiderettes, using a pressure defense and a devastating fast break, rolled to a 12-0 lead before Patti Morrell hit a baseline turnaround for the First Ladies' first points. North then ran off 10 straight points for a 22-2 lead and held a big 29-5 edge at the end of the quarter.

The entire first five contributed to North's scoring with Eileen Warren having eight points, six rebounds, three blocked shots and two steals.

She sat out the entire second quarter. Karen Runge and Nancy Flukes scored seven points each, Anne Marie Hughes had four and Jean Welby two.

North received a scare when Hughes was hit in the eye with a finger and experienced some blurred vision. Julie Abouzeid hit the foul shot for Hughes and stayed in to play some aggressive defense. North's 29 first quarter points were the most ever scored in one quarter by a North girls' team as it shot 60 per cent from the floor.

Coach Paul Bregoli substituted freely in the second quarter with Marybeth Maloney, Karrie Pistorino, Anne McGuiggan, Nancy Lyons and Maureen Donovan seeing most of the action. McGuiggan looked especially good with a basket, six rebounds, three steals and an assist. North led, 35-16, at halftime.

Quincy made a mild run and cut North's lead to 15 points midway through the third quarter behind good outside shooting by Terry Duggan, Julie Coste and Sue Parry. Runge answered with eight third quarter points and four rebounds and Hughes added three assists and four steals. The Raiderettes increased their lead to 56-33 going into the fourth quarter.

North maintained its comfortable cushion in the final quarter behind the rebounding of Lyons and McGuiggan and the fine floor play of Donovan and Abouzeid.

Runge, playing a superb all-around game, led all scorers with 15 points, added 12 rebounds, and tied the school record with eight assists (tied with sister JoAnn). Warren, the Boston Globe's Player of the Week last week, scored 14 points and had 14 rebounds and five blocked shots, tying Julie Watts' school record. She played less than two and a half quarters. Flukes, who played with a broken finger, had 13 points, eight rebounds and five assists. Hughes had 10 points, five assists and four steals and Welby had five points, three assists and three steals.

Terry Duggan paced the First Ladies with 10 points.

"Our kids played a great first quarter. We came out firing on all cylinders, playing excellent defense, rebounding well, fast breaking well and finishing off at the offensive end," said Bregoli.

The Raiderettes need only three wins to qualify for the state tournament with the season only half over. They are averaging 55 points, 41 rebounds and 11 steals a game.

Warren is averaging 15.7 points a game along with 11 rebounds a game. She has 24 blocked shots. Flukes averages 13 points, six rebounds and four assists a game. Runge averages 10.3 points, seven rebounds and three assists a game. Hughes averages 7.6 points a game and leads in steals with 31 and Welby has sacrificed scoring to run the offense while dishing out 37 assists and has 20 assists.

Earlier last week the Quincy girls lost to Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 45-30, with Ginny Duggan scoring eight points and freshman Chris Kraunelis seven.

YMCA Strypers Upset Brockton

The South Shore YMCA Strypers girls' swim team defeated previously unbeaten Brockton, 49-37, with a dramatic victory in the final event, the 200-yard freestyle relay. The victory enabled the girls' B team (13-14) to remain unbeaten.

Karen MacDonald, Jennifer Henehan, Loretta Orlando and Karen Walsh swam a

1:57.0 to edge Brockton by just 33 seconds.

The boys' team competed against Somerville Y, winning in all age groups except the D (9-10) class.

The (11-12) team, paced by David Cangiano, Michael Martarano, Richard Griffin and Christopher Henderson, remains undefeated as does the E (8 and under) team.

ASBESTOS LUNG DISEASE

Asbestos dust causes serious lung ailments; the diseases appear suddenly, years after exposure. Today numerous SHIPYARD WORKERS, MASONS, and PIPEFITTERS of the 1930's-1970's have lung afflictions because they inhaled asbestos particles many years ago.

If you worked in one of those professions then and now have a lung disease, you may be eligible to receive money damages or workers' compensation. Relatives of living and deceased victims can also recover in some cases.

• Basketball North Edges Quincy For First League Win

A year ago the North Quincy boys' basketball team's only Suburban League win was a squeaker over Quincy and Quincy's lone league win was a close one over North.

Last Friday night Ed Miller's North team gained its first league win and it was another close one over Quincy, 45-40, in a fine defensive battle. Quincy still hasn't a league win as it fell to 1-10, while North improved to 4-6 (one more win than it had all last season).

North Quincy will play at Brookline Friday at 7:30 and will be at Brockton next Tuesday at 7:30. Each team has lost only once in the league.

John Franceschini's Quincy team is idle Friday and will host Waltham Tuesday night at 7:30.

North played without its leading scorer, Dave Lless, who has been outstanding in every game but was out with an injury, but Miller said, "We got a total team effort to win this one."

The Raiders' Chris Rossi, who had 14 points, and Brian Morris, who scored eight, dominated the offensive boards, setting up many second and third scoring chances, while their work off the defensive boards kept the Presidents to few second chances.

Both teams had shooting problems in the first half, which ended tied at 17. North had taken a 13-6 first quarter lead, only to have the Presidents battle back.

"We made some adjustments at halftime in our zone offense to help free up some people," Miller said as the Raiders took control in the last two quarters.

Three turnovers and a jump shot by Steve Austin, who had another good night for Quincy with 14 points, put Quincy ahead, 22-19, but Morris and Rossi combined for six successive points as North took a 25-22 lead into the final quarter.

Robert Connolly, who had seven points for Quincy, dove in for a layup early in the final session, but the Raiders pulled away as Mark Scanlan, who had 15 points, and Rossi sparked a 10-4 spurt which put North up, 39-32.

Dave Britt had a fine all-around game for the Presidents and scored seven points.

Earlier in the week Quincy was dominated by Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 87-51, as the Hawks roared to a 26-3 lead in the opening quarter.

Quincy came back with 14 points from Connolly and 11 each from Britt and Don Parry, but Cambridge, unbeaten in the league, was never in trouble as Steve Dotin had 23 points.

Raiders Rebound

By TOM SULLIVAN

The North Quincy hockey team rebounded from a disappointing loss to Cambridge, Rindge and Latin with two victories last week.

Saturday night the Raiders played their last game of the year to top Newton North, 7-2, and improve their record to 6-3-1.

Kevin Jago's North team will face one of its major tests Saturday night when it hosts Waltham at 7:50 at the Youth Arena. The Raiders will be home to Brookline next Wednesday at 6:40 at the Youth Arena.

"The Newton game had to be our best of the season as the team clicked in all departments," said assistant coach Rick Avery. "Seven different players scored, the defense was outstanding and Kevin Jeffers played a fine game in goal."

Mike Haynes had a goal and three assists. Dave Fasano a goal and two assists and Matt Furtado, Mark Zimmerman, John Pacino, Matt Ostiguy and Tim Duff a goal each.

Earlier in the week North bombed Quincy, 8-1. But Jago wasn't happy about the Raiders' play and was especially unhappy about the large number of penalties.

North was assessed with 11 penalties to only four for Quincy.

"We didn't play disciplined hockey," said Jago. "We have to stay out of the box."

North took a 2-0 first period lead on goals by Haynes

(from Derek Holt) and Furtado (from Duff).

The Raiders widened their lead to 4-0 in the second period as the Raiders scored with assists from Pacino and Duff and Holt scored with Dave Tapper assisting.

North exploded for four third period goals by Tapper (from Haynes), Furtado (from Ostiguy), Fasano (from Haynes) and Zimmerman (from Ed Bagley and Furtado).

Quincy averted a shutout on a goal by Tony Scota with seconds left in the game.

Jeffers, a transfer from Madison Park High School who has been having a fine season, had another good night in goal and Brian Mahoney played the last five minutes in relief of him.

Quincy In Strong Effort, But Bows

Quincy's hockey team is having a rough season, but last Saturday the Presidents turned in one of their strongest efforts of the season before losing to strong Brockton, 6-3.

The loss dropped Quincy to 2-8-1, while Brockton improved to 8-1-1.

Bob Sylvia's Quincy ice-men will host Brookline Friday at 4:20 at the Youth Arena. It then will be idle until Saturday, Feb. 1, when it meets Waltham at 7:50 at the Youth Arena.

The Presidents held a 3-1 lead early in the second period at Brockton, but the Boxers came back with five unanswered goals.

Mike Bille and Steve Constatas gave Quincy a 2-0 lead in the first period. After Brockton made it 2-1, Tony Scota scored to give Quincy its 3-1 lead three minutes into the second session.

Brockton scored twice to tie it, 3-3, going into the third period when it added three more goals.

Despite the loss Tony Sandonato had a good night in the Quincy goal, making a number of excellent saves.

Earlier in the week Quincy lost to North Quincy, 8-1, with Scota scoring the lone goal for the Presidents late in the game with Constatas assisting.

"We can skate with any team in the league, but we just can't score with them," Sylvia said. "I said at the start of the season we would have to score a lot of goals, but we just haven't been doing it."

SUPER BOWL XX

LETS "Berry" THE BEARS

Super Bowl Fever Sky High

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN
Quincy has Super Bowl Fever, but no one is looking for a cure.

Local merchants are offering everything from "Berry the Bear" T-shirts and bumper stickers to cupcakes and other goodies for fans of the New England Patriots as they wait for the big game against the Chicago Bears Sunday.

Kick-off time is 5 p.m. at the Louisiana Superdome in New Orleans, and even non-football fans are getting caught up in the excitement.

The Pats have a 14-5 win loss record, including playoffs, compared to the Bears' 17-1, but most Quincy fans are giving them a good shot at winning Super Bowl 20 after winning their first AFC title.

Some of their predictions and assessments of the New England team's strengths:

Joseph Gildea, chief press box steward for the New England Patriots since 1960: 17-10, Patriots. "They're very strong defensively and they've proven they're capable of an upset."

Acting Deputy Chief Theodore Kressler of the Quincy Fire Department: The Patriots are going to win if they can force enough turnovers. It may go according to the breaks."

Tony Siciliano, Deputy Director of Quincy Civil Defense: 31-10, Patriots. "I know they're going to win. I've only watched two football games in my whole life, but I'm learning and it certainly is exciting."

Tom Sullivan, veteran sports writer for the Quincy Sun and formerly The Boston American: 17-3, Bears. "The game will depend on defense and quarterback Tony Eason.

I think the Bears are going to be too strong defensively, but I hope that I'm wrong."

Ruby Pearl, community outreach, Quincy Cable systems: 22-14, Patriots. "The amount of support the team has received from the fans, and its positive response to that support, will help the Patriots win."

Tom Gilmartin, political analyst and former City Councilor: 20-14, Bears. It will be a good game; 75 percent of the scoring will be done on the ground, 25 percent by passing."

Super Bowl Fever Sky High Here

Barry Welch, Quincy Recreation Director: 21-17, Patriots. "The Patriot's defense will help them pull out the victory."

Mary Catherine Iannoni, head counselor, Central Middle School: 14-10, Patriots. "The confidence that coach Ray Berry has built in time is exactly what every teacher in the business ought to be doing. He has built winners out of what have historically, traditionally been losers."

Stephen McGrath, City Council president: 14-7, Patriots. "The Pats are up enough to beat Chicago. Chicago is still a really good team, but the Patriots have the talent to do it."

James Lydon, Quincy Planning Director: 24-22, Patriots. "They're on a roll. They've been very lucky thus far, they've played well. Assuming their luck will hold they can win the Super Bowl."

Francis McCauley, mayor of Quincy: 28-10, Bears. "I'm rooting for the Patriots and I hope my prediction is wrong. The Bears' defense is so strong that they'll put a lot of passing pressure on the Pats, and the outcome will depend on whether Tony Eason is up to it."

Eleanor Reidy, the mayor's personal secretary: 27-21, Patriots. "It's going to be very close, but the Patriots strength lies in their enthusiasm. They're up for it."

Joseph (Jay) MacRitchie, City Solicitor: 24-21 Patriots. "The Patriots are just peaking. Chicago has already peaked. It's only one game and anything can happen."

Paul Delahorde, duty office, Quincy Police Department: 24-17, Patriots. "I think they can do it."

Pete Zoia, assistant football coach at North Quincy High School, longtime football player and coach: 27-9, Bears. "The Pats have done well up to now, and we all should be proud of them, but I think Chicago is a little too much for them. The Pats can't run on Chicago, they may be able to pass. There's where Chicago will come out on top."

Kevin Kelly, assistant football coach and head track coach at Quincy High School: 24-21, Bears. "The Bears' ability to pass and run, and the inability of the Patriots to run against the Bear defense will determine the outcome of the game."

John Gillis, City Clerk: 21-17, Patriots. "We'll beat 'em. It will be close but we have a better defensive team. They'll stop Walter Payton; they won't be able to run against New England."

Richard Koch, Sr., executive director, Parks, Forestry and Cemetery Departments: 21-17, Patriots. "I think the New England team is determined and is the team of destiny this year, the Cinderella team. They've overcome the odds to win the last three games, and I think they'll go all the way."

Carmen Hendrick, advertising salesperson: 24-20, Patriots. "Who can lose with Ray Berry there and Daryl Stingley in his wheelchair?"

Charlie Ross, WJDA sports director and Party Line host: 20-3, Bears. "The Bears have a better offense, and I think their defense will stop the Patriots. It will be really close until well into the third quarter, and the Patriots defense will wear down."

Patricia Ridden, Houghs Neck Community Center director: 27-23, Patriots. "I'm betting $5 on the Bears, because if the Patriots win, it will be the happiest $5 I've ever paid out. If the Patriots win, it will be with a lot of Irish Luck."

More Money Needed

New Faxon Shelter Funds Total Over $26,000

By DAN CONNELLY

Recent contributions totaling over $26,000 are keeping the Faxon House temporary shelter for the homeless alive; but additional funding is needed to keep it financially well.

Nancy Powers, director of Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition who is operating Faxon House, located on the grounds of Quincy City Hospital, said maintaining this type of program requires a constant flow of operating capital to enable the coalition to meet the day-to-day demands.

"In other words Faxon House is constantly looking for new funding," he said.

New contributions totaling $26,829.68 was realized in the following funding: $14,329.68 from individuals, churches and corporations, $5,000 from Project Bread; and an additional $7,500 from that Boston-based agency recently.

"There was also a terrific response from the community in the form of food, clothing and equipment worth $7,000, and the volunteer work by the local trade unions in renovating Faxon House for occupancy has saved us $10,000 in labor costs," Powers added.

In the shelter's search to raise additional capital they have established a raffle worth $3,500. The donation of a trip-for-two to Spain is the top prize. Tickets are $1 a piece, or a book of 6 for $5. The drawing will be held on St. Patrick's Day, March 17. Tickets can be purchased at Faxon House, St. John's Church or from any members of the board at Faxon House.

The facility can accommodate 33 persons. Since the first of the year they have been operating at near capacity.

Support groups like the Salvation Army are providing assistance for 5 homeless people and the Hingham Family Shelter is caring for two families.

Faxon House recently placed three people in a private rooming house and one family in an apartment.

When Faxon House opened its doors Dec. 23 they had already been promised $206,000 from state public welfare funds to cover 75 per cent of its 1986 budget. But, before the coalition could qualify for that money they had to somehow raise $50,000 immediately for operating capital.

Money funded by a state agency does not cover food or nursing service which we will provide. We will have to pick up that cost by applying to other private and public funding groups.

In her continuing search for a monetary cash flow Powers is always appealing for funds. They can be sent to Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition, Post Office Box 2512, Quincy 02269.

Faxon House has a 24-hour a day program that offers shelter, showers, clothing, food, personal hygiene items, and a full range of social services to the homeless. The day program provides classes in stress management, nutrition, health and hygiene, and alcohol education.

A story in The Quincy Sun Tuesday Dec. 31, 1985 stated that growers for the Quincy Farmer's Market turned over more than 200 pounds of a variety of fruits and vegetables to the needy at the end of the growing season. The amount should have said 2500 pounds.

Firms Ranked For New Animal Shelter

The city has taken the first step in replacing its antiquated dog pound.

The Designer Selection Committee has ranked the top three of five proposals for the award of design services for a new animal shelter.

According to Deputy Commissioner David Colton of the Department of Public Works, Gale Engineering of Braintree was the top choice, followed by Whitman and Howard, and DiMarisini and Wolfe.

Any of the top three firms can be chosen, said Colton, but Gale Engineering is expected to be selected.

The proposals will be reviewed over the next two weeks and a final selection made, said Mayor Francis McCauley.

An engineering study and cost estimate will follow said McCauley.

"The pound is really deplorable," said McCauley. "Hopefully we can make progress on replacing it in 1986."

Thomas S. Burgin: 'Mr. Quincy'

Thomas Skudder Burgin gave Quincy more than a half century of distinguished service in municipal and state government and in civic causes.

Thirty eight of those years were as city councillor, mayor, state representative and state senator.

His political career began in 1924 when at the age of 22, he was elected Ward 1 City Councillor — youngest ever elected to the council.

In 1935, he was elected mayor at age 33 — third youngest to hold that office. He was so youthful looking then, newspapers called him Quincy's "boy mayor."

Time marched on as it always does and as the years went by, the "boy mayor" became Quincy's "elder statesman," and as he liked to call himself, "the old gray mayor."

To many, however, he was Mr. Quincy. Tom Burgin loved Quincy and took pride in being its chief executive and representing his city in the State House as a representative and later, senator.

If Quincy had a "Mayoral Hall of Fame" he would have been one of the first in it.

He was a self-made man.

Thomas Burgin: 'Era Of Good Feeling'

City Bids Farewell To A Beloved Son

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Former Mayor-Senator Thomas S. Burgin was laid to rest Tuesday morning at Mt. Wollaston Cemetery overlooking the city he loved and served during a distinguished political career which spanned 38 years.

Mr. Burgin was 83. He died Friday night after a battle with cancer.

"His occupation of the mayor's office over five terms was marked in Quincy by what was called in an early American President's Day

"an era of good feeling," according to Judge Paul C. Reardon, former Chief Justice of the Massachusetts Supreme Court and a long-time friend.

"Tom's personality was the large reason for that and Quincy citizens will thus recall Tom as an individual who, by simply being himself, helped to produce over a long period of time what was in the main, a happy and peaceful community," stated Reardon, also a former Massachusetts Supreme Court Justice.

The eulogy by Judge Reardon, who recently underwent throat surgery, was read by Forrest I. Neal, Jr., another close friend and former chairman of the MBTA during a simple but touching memorial service Tuesday afternoon at United First Parish Church, Quincy Sq.

of the service were specified by Mr. Burgin before his death.

More than 170 people attended the service which was conducted by the Rev. Dr. Cynthia Edson, interim minister, the Rev. Keith C. Munson, minister emeritus, and the most Rev. Robert D. Fay, associate pastor of St. Theresa's Church, Billerica, and a long time friend of the Burgin family.

Rev. Munson spoke of Mr. Burgin as a politician "in the true and highest sense."

"Part of his skill," said Rev. Munson, "was that he could sense when things were ready to happen. Then he was an enabler helping things to happen."

Rev. Munson said the former mayor was also a religious man, though it was "not something that was overtly showing all the time."

"During his years as mayor, when he had a difficult decision to make, he would often leave his office across the street (at City Hall).

"He would enter here and stay until he felt comfortable about the decision he was going to make.

"Death this year has picked a man whose kind we shall never see again," said Rev. Munson.

Rev. Fay, whose cousin was the late George Fay, Quincy Christmas Festival chairman, noted that Mr. Burgin donated the cross in the church in memory of his mother and father. Another cousin was Robert Fay, late Quincy Savings Bank executive.

Rev. Fay read a poem, requested by Mr. Burgin, which began, "Sometime at eve, when the tide is low, I shall slip my mooring and sail away..."

During a meditation portion of the service, Rev. Edson suggested that those attending "pause to incorporate in thought the seven peo-

Man's Body Found In Merrymount Fire

The body of an unidentified man was found in the basement of a Sea St. dentist office following a fire there Tuesday afternoon.

The fire department responded to the fire at 234 Sea St., a cottage-style wood structure with an attached garage. The address is directly across the street from Our Lady of Good Counsel Church and is listed to a Dr. William L. Mahoney.

When the blaze was out and firemen were probing the rubble they found the body.

Fire Chief Carl Valenti alerted police Chief of Detectives Dave Rowell and the medical examiner Dr. William Ritter.

After a preliminary examination Dr. Ritter ordered the body taken to Quincy City Hospital where an autopsy was to be performed later in the evening.

State detectives were also called in to assist Quincy in the investigation.

There were no further details at the present time.

Health Commissioner Petition To Legislature

Quincy hopes to be able to fill by early summer the position of health commissioner which has been vacant since the death of Dr. M. Grace Hussey in January, 1985.

Mayor Francis McCauley signed a home rule petition Tuesday dropping the requirement of an MD degree for the city's health commissioner.

The petition, also signed by Ordinance Committee chairman James Sheets, will now be sent to the legislature for its approval, a process expected to take several months.

"We hope to get someone on board by early summer," McCauley said.

The City Council voted unanimously Jan. 21, to approve the home rule petition introduced by McCauley after he had difficulty finding a medical doctor to take the job for the salary of slightly over $40,000 the city was offering.

City Councillor Michael Cheney said the petition was easy to support because of the good job that acting health coordinator Richard Stuart has done. He has no

M.D. degree.

Stuart recently suffered a heart attack and is recuperating at home.

McCauley had earlier submitted a home rule petition to establish an unpaid, five member Board of Health and a Health Commissioner appointed by the mayor for three years.

The council added amendments, introduced by Councillor and mayoral candidate Joanne Condon, to the petition which McCauley rejected.

Over $6 Million Collected In Overdue Taxes

More than $6 million in overdue property taxes has been collected over the last four years, according to Mayor Francis McCauley. "Since we took office Jan. 4, 1982, we have collected $6,039,552 in back property taxes," said McCauley.

The figures are as of last Friday, noted McCauley.

Plan Birthday Celebration

Sterling Students Await 'Adopted' Illinois Girl

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Emily Hoskins of Sreator, Ill., will celebrate her third birthday today (Thursday).

But the well-wishers will extend beyond the usual complement of family and friends.

And the celebration will last more than just one day.

For Emily has been "adopted" by Quincy students and others who are flying her and her family here for a four-day visit.

The celebration will include "Emily Hoskins Day" in Quincy Friday, tours of Quincy, Boston and the South Shore, and an assembly at Sterling Middle School where the whole idea began.

About three years ago, Sterling students began participating in math-a-thons to raise money for St. Jude's Hospital.

Students saw Emily's picture in St. Jude's Quarterly Newsletter and decided to "adopt" her.

"The students took a real interest in her," said teacher Robert Mattsson who coordinated the math-a-thons and is also helping to organize the family's visit here.

Students wrote to her and received letters and photos from her parents keeping them updated on the progress of the little girl who was born with a kind of cancer.

"Why don't we invite them here to visit us?" asked one student, and the idea for the visit was born, said Mattsson. Its supporters grew to include other schools, businesses and local residents.

The Hoskins family, which includes parents Linda and Greg, Emily and a baby brother, will arrive tonight at 6:50 p.m. at Logan Airport.

They will be greeted by math-a-thon winners, parents and Mattsson.

The Four Seasons Hotel in Boston has donated four days' free lodging for the family.

After having breakfast at a Sterling student's home Friday, the family will visit the school where an assembly is scheduled for 1:15 p.m.

The program will include cheers by North Quincy High School cheerleaders, a birthday cake and the singing of "Happy Birthday" to Emily, birthday cards and gifts, a nursery rhyme for the guest of honor, and an address by Emily's parents.

In a letter to the editor of this paper, Greg and Linda Hoskins expressed their appreciation in advance. The letter states, in part:

"We think it is honorable that so many students took the time to care about others that so desperately need help. St. Jude's is a fantastic place, helping many children each year. It can exist only through the generosity of fund raisers and donations. If it had not been for the care Emily received, we are sure our daughter's chances of survival would have been in doubt the first year. Instead, she is now diagnosed as cured of the cancer and will be celebrating her third birthday with the students of the Reay E. Sterling Middle School - students that are raising funds to help other children. Your community should certainly be proud of these young people."

Also during the program, math-a-thon certificates, t-shirts, tote bags and awards will be presented.

Later that day, Emily's parents will visit Quincy historical sites and have dinner at a local restaurant.

Saturday's itinerary will include breakfast at a student's home, a tour of Boston for the parents and dinner at the Winfield House.

After Sunday breakfast at another student's home, the family will have a tour of the South Shore and dinner at Greenfield's.

A visit to the Children's Museum and lunch in Boston are scheduled for Monday before the family departs for Chicago at 3:30 p.m.

All of the expenses for the trip were donated, according to Mattsson.

"I can't tell you how proud of the students I am," said Mattsson of the youngsters who have raised $4,000 for St. Jude Children's Hospital.

"It's unbelievable what a great job these kids have done."

Steering committee members for the Hoskins family visit are Cheryl Bartlett, Jeff Bina, Mrs. Judith Greenfield, Rachel Greenfield, Mrs. Geraldine Herbert, Richard Hutchinson, Joseph Long, Mrs. Mary Mariano, Robert J. Mattsson, Alexander Parzyck, Mrs. Joan Prezioso and Mrs. Carolyn Sullivan.

Sent To Ordinance Committee No Action Taken On 4-Year Terms

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Following what Councilor James Sheets called a "good exchange" with Mayor Francis McCauley, the Ordinance Committee of the City Council took no action Monday night on an act relative to four year terms for the mayor and council.

The home rule petition would extend the terms of office from the current two years.

"The sense of the membership is that no action be taken," said Sheets, who is chairman of the ordinance committee which is comprised of all the members of the City Council.

The act will remain in committee until a meeting is called in the future, said Sheets. The committee will then report its findings to the council.

Committee members discussed the topic for about 30 minutes after a presentation by the mayor.

McCauley, who first announced the home rule petition at inauguration ceremonies, explained to the committee that he has been considering the issue for a while and has talked to officials from around the country.

The terms of office in most cities and states are four years, said McCauley, and most officials felt two years was "nowhere near enough time to get their feet wet on the job before they ran again."

Mayors in Boston, Newton, Lawrence and Brockton have four year terms, McCauley said.

One of the problems with having a four-year term for mayor and leaving the term of office for city councilors at two years would be that "people don't come out to vote when there is no mayor's race," said McCauley.

The home rule petition would have to be passed by the City Council, signed by the mayor, approved by the legislature, and then would be placed on the ballot for the electorate.

"The final say would be by the voters of Quincy," said McCauley, who noted that, if approved, it would not go into effect until 1989.

A sampling of the committee members feelings:

Councilor Joseph LaRaia: "I'd be very much surprised if the public supported it."

Councilor Patricia Toland: "Everyone on the council was returned for two years. Maybe people are happy with things as they are."

Councilor Thomas Nutley: "Not all of us were returned (referring to his new status as Ward 6 councilor). I'd like more time to get the pulse of the community."

Councilor Michael Cheney: "Frank McCauley is a popular mayor. People may consider the extended term in terms of putting Frank McCauley in for four years."

Councilor Theodore DeCristofaro: "I find no problem with it, but what the people think is the main thing."

Councilor Stephen McGrath: "I'm still undecided. But there seems to be a lack of groundswell and demand."

Councilor John Lydon: "In most of the cities, are the city councilors part-time?" McCauley said they were.

Councilor Richard Koch, Jr.: (after the meeting) "I haven't made up my mind. But I wouldn't vote for it without a limitation of the number of terms an official could serve."

Another Taffrail Rd. resident, Orcutt Lamb also said his mail was opened that

When he received an honorary degree at Quincy Junior College in 1983 — the first in the college's then 25 year history — for his long and distinguished career in public service, he surprised the audience with this candid comment:

"This has very special meaning for me. I never went to college."

But he received a tremendous education in the "University of Life." Few could express themselves better on their feet. If he had a point to make, he made it, and no one had to wonder what he meant. He learned — and led.

After being elected mayor at age 33 he served nearly eight years before resigning in 1942 to enter the Navy as a lieutenant during World War II.

His tenure spanned some of the most difficult years and awesome events any Quincy mayor had to face.

There was the Great Depression years with thousands of people in Quincy on welfare and federal work projects.

"It was pathetic and I will never forget it," he said.

Then came the Hurricane of 1938, roaring into town completely unannounced and plunging the entire city into darkness, levelling 3,900 trees and knocking out all fire alarm and police boxes.

And, after that, the attack on Pearl Harbor. The following day, Tom Burgin faced the task of having (by that night) to billet 1700 soldiers rushed to Quincy because of the strategic Fore River shipyard.

He did it by commandeering Masonic, Knights of Columbus and church halls.

Tom Burgin was given the equivalent of an A-plus in performance as mayor in 1940 when he was unopposed for re-election to a fourth term. He was the first mayor accorded that honor. (Mayor Francis McCauley became only the second in 1983 — 43 years later.)

After World War II, Quincy again showed the high esteem in which it held Tom Burgin when he returned to the political arena in 1949 as a candidate for the seven-man City Council under Quincy's first Plan E charter election. There were 59 candidates seeking the seven seats. He easily topped the field, outdistancing everyone.

That January, his council colleagues honored him by unanimously electing him Quincy's first Plan E mayor. He voluntarily retired in 1951.

He then returned as a city councillor at-large as Quincy came back to Plan A serving from 1956 to 1959.

He left the City Council in 1959 and was elected state senator, serving from 1961 to 1962.

He suffered his only political defeat when he ran for re-election to the senate, losing to Democrat James McCormack as the district and the state went Democratic.

His political career was certainly a most successful one but he did not count it as his favorite achievement.

And although he was pleased and "humbled" when Upland Rd. was re-named the Honorable Thomas S. Burgin Parkway, that, too, was not his lifetime highlight. Not to him, anyway.

He considered the realization of the new YMCA building on Coddington St. as his favorite accomplishment.

He was president of the YMCA when the city's biggest fundraiser in history was launched and he spearheaded it. More than $1 million was raised to build the new "Y."

"I think," he said in a recent interview, "that would stand as the greatest memorial anyone would want to leave because it is dedicated to youth."

He himself, was an inspiration to youth to enter public service early and to serve well.

Although he considered the YMCA the greatest memorial, because it is dedicated to youth, his public service is a monument in itself because it was dedicated to all ages.

Tom Burgin showed us how to serve with distinction, dignity and honesty.

Boy mayor, elder statesman, Mr. Quincy — and the end of another political era in Quincy's history.

By Henry Bosworth

'I Want To Be Remembered For Having Tried'

Tom Burgin was frail but alert as he lay there in bed at the William B. Rice Eventide Home.

It was just a couple days before Christmas and though he had been very weak the week before, he was now feeling stronger and up to seeing a few visitors.

Tom had said he would like to see Dave Leitch and myself because of our long friendship with him.

Dave is co-owner of the Burgin Platter Insurance Co. that Tom founded in 1925 and recently bought his Dixwell Ave. home.

We started to reminisce and were soon recalling the day in 1942 when Dorothy Lamour came to Quincy for a defense bond rally at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Tom was mayor then and was her host and escort while she was here.

Dorothy Lamour, the "Saronc Girl" was young and beautiful and near the height of her movie career. She had the town in the palm of her hand that day as she sold thousands and thousands of dollars worth of defense bonds.

And, she was nice. She patiently helped get this writer who was then a part-time cub reporter while still a high school student, through an interview with his first celebrity as he stumbled over questions including "How do you like Quincy?" which he asked at least three or four times. She smiled and answered and then helped interview herself.

Ten years later she was appearing in a Boston night club and invited me in.

"Come on," she said as I arrived, "you're not a cub reporter anymore." And, with that, she took me by the hand to a corner where we were alone.

"Boy," I said to myself, "I must have really impressed her that day at the stadium in 1942."

"Tell me," she said, as we sat down, "how's that cute mayor back in Quincy?"

He was the one that had impressed her.

When I told Tom that story afterwards he laughed. And as he lay in bed at the Rice Eventide Home last month, he laughed again and fondly recalled Dorothy Lamour.

Then he suddenly turned serious.

One of his biggest disappointments in his life, he confided, was that because of his illness he was unable to attend the opening last November of the extension of the Hon. Thomas S. Burgin Parkway named after him.

"I hope," he said, "people don't think I could have gone and did not."

We assured him everyone understood.

"I've had a good life," he said. "It has been challenging, but a good life. I want to be remembered for having tried."

Well, he certainly tried.

He was trying hard that very moment against the inevitable. The odds were stacked against him but he wasn't going to give up. And he didn't to the very end last Friday night. He was 83.

He was called the "boy mayor" in 1935 when he was elected Quincy's chief executive in a special election at age 33 and years later became "Quincy's elder statesman."

He served nearly eight years under Plan A until he resigned in 1942 to enter the Navy as a lieutenant during World War II.

His tenure spanned difficult years and awesome events: the Great Depression, the Hurricane of 1938 and the attack on Pearl Harbor which plunged the nation into war and made Quincy with its strategic Fore River shipyard, a threatened target.

On his 82nd birthday in April, 1984 I had the opportunity to reminisce with him in an off-the-cuff interview for Sun Ch. 8.

We covered a wide range of subjects and this is how Tom Burgin remembered them from the period of "boy mayor" to elder statesman:

THE DEPRESSION: Some 10,000 people in Quincy were of relief rolls and another 1,800 on federal WPA and PWA projects. "It was pathetic and I will never forget it."

CALVIN COOLIDGE's visit to Quincy before Tom was mayor but a member of the reception committee. After touring First Parish Church, Coolidge was asked what he thought of it. Always a man of few words, he replied: "It's lovely." (Period).

LAMOUR

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT's visit to Quincy in 1936 when he was campaigning for re-election against Alfred Landon. Tom's daughter, Claire, then six, held a big bouquet of roses to present to Mrs. Roosevelt on behalf of the city.

Just before the Roosevelts arrived, her father noticed she had a Landon button pinned to her dress.

"You can't wear that, dear," he told her.

"Why can't I wear it?" she wanted to know. "I'm for Landon."

"So am I," her father, a Republican said. "But he is running against the President of the United States — the man you are going to greet and it wouldn't be nice for you to wear that button."

Claire finally gave in shortly before the Roosevelt motorcade arrived in front of First Parish Church in Quincy Sq.

A Secret Serviceman swung Claire up into the open car in which the President and the First Lady were sitting in the back seat and deposited her in Roosevelt's lap.

"Aren't those lovely roses," the President said to her. At that, Claire clutched the roses close to her, glared at the President and said: "These aren't for you, they're for Mrs. Roosevelt."

Roosevelt tilted his head back and roared with laughter.

Eleanor Roosevelt leaned across to her husband and mused: "That should take care of you for a little while."

HURRICANE OF 1938: "There were 3,900 trees down and all the fire alarm boxes and police boxes were out of commission. There was no electricity."

PEARL HARBOR ATTACK: He rushed back from Cape Cod where he had gone for the weekend and went 72 hours without sleep reading the city for the war. The day after Pearl Harbor, 1700 troops were sent to Quincy and he had to billet them that night. "We had to commandeer Masonic halls, Knights of Columbus halls, church halls — but we did it."

TOUGHEST OPPONENT: Leo Mullin who had the advantage of being acting mayor when Burgin first ran for that office in 1935. Later, as incumbent, Burgin went up against a few heavy hitters including Thomas McGrath and Charles Ross and defeated them. He was unopposed for a fourth term — the first mayor in the city's history accorded that honor.

HIS FAVORITE MAYORS: His was reluctant to name them but after some thought and prodding said: "Of the recent ones, Jim McIntyre. I was close to him. I thought the world of him."

"In the early days, I looked up to Perley Barbour and Joseph Whiton and had the highest regard for Charles Francis Adams."

PLAN E: Under Plan E, the mayor was like the City Council president and ceremonial head of the city while the city manager was actually the chief executive.

In the first Plan E election in 1949 a field of 59 candidates (that's right) sought seven City Council at-large seats. It was a PR election — preferential voting representation. Voters did not mark an X beside the candidates' names but a number: No. 1 for first choice, No. 2 for second and so down to No. 7. It took 130 counters six days to count the votes. Burgin topped the list and won the first seat on the first day of the counting.

The other six finally elected honored him by unanimously electing him Quincy's first Plan E mayor.

"I really didn't care for that kind of voting," he said. "I was never a fan of Plan E. I would rather have the people vote directly for mayor — not have seven councillors pick him."

RENAMING OF UPLAND RD.: to Hon. Thomas S. Burgin Parkway in his honor: "I was humbled. It was awfully nice of them to do it. How nice it is to give someone a pat on the back while he is here rather than send the flowers later."

FAVORITE ACHIEVEMENT: It had nothing to do with politics but the realization of the new YMCA building. He was then president of the old YMCA when more than $1 million was raised — the biggest fundraiser in the city's history — to build it. And that was when a million dollars was really a million dollars. "I think," said Tom, "that would stand as the greatest memorial anyone would want to leave because it is dedicated to youth."

Senate Adjourns After Harold Tribute

'He Added Gentlemanliness To Quincy Politics'

The Massachusetts Senate adjourned Monday in memory of Thomas S. Burgin on a motion by Senator Paul Harold who paid special tribute to the man who once held the same Senate seat.

Harold called Burgin "a former member of great stature" and said he added to Quincy politics "a courtesy and gentlemanliness."

The text of Harold's remarks to the Senate:

"With the passing of Thomas S. Burgin over the weekend, the Senate lost a former member of great stature.

"Tom Burgin served the city of Quincy as elected official and civic leader for more than half a century.

"First elected as Ward one councillor in 1924 at age 22, he was the youngest person ever elected to the city council. At age 33 he was elected Mayor of the city, serving five terms as the City's chief executive. He served in the Massachusetts House from 1929-30 and in the Senate from 1961-62.

"Even while not holding elected office Tom Burgin was active in a number of civic capacities; president of the

YMCA, president of the United Fund, commander of Post 95 of the American Legion, president of Eventide

Home, president of the Kiwanis and Neighborhood Club, commandore of the Quincy Yacht Club. Right up till his recent illness he had an intense interest in the future prosperity of his home city, and conferred often with mayors, senators, councillors and newspaper editors on planned developments and improvements.

"Only two months ago the state dedicated the new central artery, connecting downtown to routes 3 and 128 as the Burgin parkway, in recognition of Tom Burgin's distinguished career.

"With the passing of Tom Burgin, Quincy loses one of its last direct links to its founding Pilgrim fathers. He was a direct descendant of five Mayflower passengers and added to Quincy politics a courtesy and gentlemanliness that helped give the city and its government a unique character and prestige."

FORMER MAYOR Thomas S. Burgin appears to be in deep thought at the groundbreaking for the Hon. Thomas S. Burgin Parkway in August, 1984.

John Herbert Remembers Tom Burgin

By JOHN R. HERBERT

I will remember Tom Burgin for many things:

Despite his wealth and his political power, he was always a gentleman who mingled with the rich and the ordinary people with equal ease and poise.

His uncanny ability, as mayor, to pick able department heads and administrators and to then run the city as if it was a large corporation. He would hold regular weekly luncheons of his "board" to work on the problems of the community.

But I like to remember Tom as the yachtsman who truly loved the sea, and who loved to share it with others. When I was editor of the Patriot Ledger, it was Tom's custom to take the members of the city hall press corps out for an afternoon sail. His mother would make up a batch of sandwiches and his yacht, the Aries, would head for a harbor sail.

One year when we were not at war but harbor security was very tight we headed into Boston Harbor and some of the newsmen wanted to see "Old Ironsides." As we neared the Navy yard wharf, a very excited and red faced Marine guard ransomed the wharf and screamed to Quincy's mayor "Get that damn filthy tub out of here as fast as you can."

It was the only time I ever saw Tom get a little upset. Upset, not because his yacht was inside the security line at the Navy Yard, but upset because someone accused him of having a dirty boat. Tom simply did not have filthy boats. He could own a boat for years and it never lost its showroom luster.

If fact, a second hand Burgin boat was usually better than when new. When he decided to sell a Chris Craft seaskiff also named Aries, my brother and I looked it over. We each had a boat at the Old Snug Harbor Marina at Quincy Point where Tom kept his Aries.

He knew of our interest in his boat although what he did not know was that the price was over our heads. My brother was commissioner of public works for Quincy at the time. The Patriot Ledger's city hall reporter was the late, beloved Fred Hunt who had come to us from The Boston Post. One day Fred came back from his city hall beat and handed me a note from the Mayor, hand written, in pencil, on a scrap of paper. I think it is the only piece of poetry by Tom Burgin still in existence. Here is what it said:

The Herbert brothers, Charles and John

A used boat they bid upon One said "right" and the other "nine"

"Come on" said Tom. "You are doing fine

I'll sell the boat to only one And with it boys, you'll have some fun

When each bids nine we'll toss and see

Who gets the Aries right from me!"

Fred Hunt was an Ozark boy who came to Quincy by way of Texas and he never trusted Yankees. On the back of the note he had penned this comment which he had shown to the mayor before bringing the note to me: "Hunt to

His Father's Advice

Twenty-two year-old Thomas Burgin decided in 1924 that he wanted to run for the City Council.

When he made that decision known to his family, his father, Quincy banker Clarence Burgin said:

"Well, Tom, if that's what you want to do, go ahead.

"If you win, the experience can do you no harm—and if you lose, well, a licking may do you some good."

He ran and won.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

We all face many crises in our journey through life. Many times we do not know what to do — where to turn — how to cope. Major changes in our everyday routines are often unexpected. We find ourselves in the midst of a crisis — confused and uncertain — our minds filled with many fears and anxieties.

It may be helpful to know that the Chinese translate the word "crisis" by two characters meaning "danger" and "opportunity." So, a crisis presents a great danger, but also opportunity to act.

When such a crisis comes to us, let us not be afraid to express our fears to those we trust. Let us accept, perhaps even ask for, whatever help we need, for this is a sign of maturity and not of weakness. Let us not blame ourselves or others, because this distraction only keeps us from facing reality. Let us face whatever problems the crisis has brought, seeking for solutions even when none seem to exist.

During a time of crisis, we think this evening prayer by an unknown poet is most appropriate: "Give me the restful sleep I need . . . Before another dawn . . . And bless me in the morning with . . . The courage to go on."

January's Spotlight

In the field of teaching ceramics a studio in West Quincy has it head-and-shoulders over the competition by adding the personal touch.

Nancy Consalvi of Quincy, a qualified instructor in that fine craft field opened the Personal Touch Studio last May at 25 Copeland St. and soon discovered that there are a lot of people out there who have talent and lean toward ceramics to express their creativity.

Mrs. Consalvi, the mother of two children, ages 5 and 12, has a gracious, forthright manner which belies her active and demanding lifestyle in making her studio both educational and rewarding.

She structured Personal Touch to membership enrollment. For a $35 initial fee students receive one-on-one instructions in ceramic and plastic figurine crafting.

"Other studios give lessons but there are so many fringe attachments like studio rental space and supplies which can run into a lot of money," Consalvi said. "I prefer an initial enrollment fee. This enables my students of (all ages) to concentrate on their skills and not worry about additional costs in supplies and other incidentals."

"I teach them how to make and paint their creativity. If they wish, they have window rights to display their work for sale," she added.

Her philosophy is that if you can hold a paint brush she can teach you how to add that personal touch to your craft work.

Mrs. Consalvi, who has an inventory of some 1800 molds, is planning to host ceramic birthday parties. These parties will consist of anywhere from 5 to 9 children in attendance. A variety of bisque pieces (chosen in advance by the birthday child and parent) will be passed out to the young guests who will then be instructed in painting them in stain.

These parties will last for about 1½ hours with a $5 fee for each child to cover the cost of instructions and supplies. Ice cream and cake will have to be provided by the parent. Because of the limited time frame at the studio these parties will stay with simple pieces that can be easily stained to the satisfaction of the guests.

Personal Touch studio hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Tuesday and Wednesday. Thursday and Friday hours are from 4 p.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday the studio stays open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

THE PERSONAL TOUCH — Students surround Nancy Consalvi as she details how a ceramic creation should be painted at her West Quincy studio.

SHOULD YOU REFINANCE?

QUESTION: What are the reasons for or against refinancing a mortgage?

ANSWER: There are two good reasons for refinancing a mortgage — to replace a high cost loan with a cheaper one or to convert increased equity into usable cash. During inflation, your chances of reducing cost by rewriting an old loan taken are zilch. You will pay more for today's money.

However, there may be other good reasons for refinancing to raise cash. Even though interest rates are high, mortgaging a home still ranks among the cheapest way the ordinary person has to borrow sizable chunks of cash. Putting kids through college or a once-in-a-lifetime business opportunity might be worthy reasons.

THERE ARE IMPORTANT considerations to think about before refinancing a mortgage.

Bentley's Placed On 6-Month Probation For After Hours Violation

By LINDA WILKINS
Bentley's Steakhouse, 579 Southern Artery, was placed on six months probation by the city's License Board for allegedly serving drinks after hours.

The establishment was brought before the board after an incident which took place Dec. 16.

According to a police report submitted by Quincy Police Sgt. Angus McEachern, several people were inside the restaurant when he and three other officers entered the premises at 2:15 a.m.

"At one corner of the bar were two men and a woman. Both men were drinking what I assume was beer and continued to do so until I ordered them to stop and told the two bartenders who were behind the bar to take the drinks off the bar. There was also what I assume to be a mixed drink to the front of these three people. At another portion of the bar was a woman with what I assume to be a mixed drink," the report stated.

Kristie J. Henriksen, manager of Bentley's, said the people at the bar were employees who stayed late to clean.

"It has always been a policy that employees can have a drink after work but you can't do that anymore," said City Clerk and Board Chairman John Gillis.

"Even if they were employees, they had no right to be drinking after one o'clock," said Police Chief and board member Francis Finn. "It isn't feasible anymore to give employees a drink just because they worked all night."

Officer Joseph O'Reilly, who patrols the territory, said he has seen people inside the building at 3 a.m. He added that about five days after the alleged incident he shined his flashlight into a window of the establishment at 2 a.m. and saw a bartender who "ducked down behind the bar."

Gillis told Brian Leonard, owner of Bentley's, that employees should be out of an establishment by 2 a.m.

O'Reilly also said there often are several cars parked at Bentley's that late, but Leonard said several customers choose to leave their cars there because of the city's strong enforcement of the new drunk driving laws.

Gillis said Bentley's, which serves 1 3/4 ounce drinks, should use smaller drinking glasses at midnight.

It was also brought out at the meeting that Bentley's has been cited by the Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission (ABCC) eight times for alleged drinking violations.

"We have people we deny entrance to and they say if they're stopped they're going to say they had their last drink here," Leonard said.

"I don't think eight people are going to do that," Finn said. "One or two, maybe, but not eight."

Finn said Leonard should "tighten the reins" at the establishment.

"The people in this state and in Quincy are serious about drunk driving," he said. "Every single establishment in this city has to tighten its reins. If they don't, one of them will end up in a civil suit."

'Pentacostal Power' Topic At Squantum Church

Church pastor Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin spoke on the topic "Pentecostal Power" at the early service of the First Church of Squantum Sunday, Jan. 26. The talk was illustrated with cartoons.

Sarah Midram and Susan Scott were the ushers. Guitarists Mary Ruth Scott, David Williams and Andrew Ogilvie provided accompaniment for the congregational singing.

The subject of the sermon at the later service was

"How Can the Poor Be Blessed?" The pastor's text, which came from Jesus' Sermon on the Plain, was "Blessed are you poor, for yours is the Kingdom of God." (Luke 6:7)

Hymns during the second service included "Come, Thou Almighty King," "Jesus Calls Us, O'er the Tensult," "Fight the Good Fight" and "God Be With You Till We Meet Again."

The Chancel Choir sang Henry Purcell's "Rejoice in the Lord Alway" as the offertory. Mary Ruth Scott directed.

Virginia and Arthur Sorenson were the greeters. Stewart Scott and Tore Wallin were the ushers and Eva Martin and Katherine Hansen were in charge of the Fellowship Hour.

There will be two services this Sunday, Feb. 2. The guitar service is at 8:30 a.m. and the traditional service is at 10:30 a.m.

'The Excuse - Makers' Sermon Topic At Bethany

Holy Communion will be celebrated Sunday in Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spears Sts., Quincy Center, at both the 9 a.m. chapel and 10 a.m. sanctuary service.

The Rev. J. William Arnold, senior minister, will preach the Communion meditation at both services on the theme, "The Excuse-Makers" based on texts from the Gospel of Luke 14:15-24 and the Gospel of Matthew 18:7-9.

Reading the scriptures at the chapel service will be William F. Greene, and at the sanctuary service Kenneth F. Fernald. The Rev. Joel F. Huntington, associate minister, will be the liturgist. Deacons and deaconesses serving the Communion will be Robert L. Lockwood in the chapel, and Edith Arslan, Irene Belcher, Kinya Mika-mi, Darryl Mikami, and Corinne Mikami during the sanctuary service.

At 10 a.m. the chancel choir under the direction of Peter E. Krasinski, organist, will sing the anthem, "Turn Thy Face From My Sins," by Thomas Attwood.

The service will also be broadcast live at 10 a.m. over station WJDA, 1300 kc. Giving the Communion commentary during the radio broadcast will be Edith M. Arslan.

Sunday School will be in session from 10 to 11 a.m. with classes for pre-school through 8th grade. Nursery care will be provided for babies and toddlers, under the supervision of Allana O'Shea, Bethany's early childhood coordinator.

At 11 a.m. there will be a fellowship hour in the Allen Parlor. Individuals and families from the community are welcome to come and share in the worship and fellowship, and to enroll children in the Sunday School.

This Friday evening, Jan. 31, Bethany's Annual Auction will be held in the downstairs social hall, with viewing of the items at 6 p.m. and the auction beginning at 7 p.m. The auction is open to the public.

Beginning next Wednesday, Feb. 5, Pastor Arnold will teach a six weeks course on "The Covenant." The focus will be on studying the Bible as a whole, tracing the Covenant theme throughout the scriptures, understanding God's plan of salvation for the world as revealed in the Word. This course is open to the public.

THOMAS SKUDDER BURGIN
April 15, 1902 - Jan. 24, 1986

Depression Years Left Him 'Heart-Sick'

The depression years stood out as one of the most eventful periods of Thomas S. Burgin's career who was first elected mayor in 1935 at the age of 33.

Of the depression Mr. Burgin remembered:

"Literally thousands were out of work. Demands on the relief agencies of the city reached their highest figure. Governmental projects of all types were put in operation by Washington to help alleviate the situation. Local communities inaugurated projects of their own under federal supervision to provide jobs in the WPA and the PWA; and, under the circumstances, they not only provided work for many, but they produced several worthwhile improvements in Quincy, such as the municipal stadium, street and sidewalk construction, certain building projects, cemetery enlargement and the like.

"At the peak of the depression right here in Quincy we had over 10,000 people on our relief rolls and 1,800 on WPA projects, plus those employed by private contractors on various public building construction projects. This was probably the most depressing period I ever experienced in the mayor's office.

"Four secretaries could barely keep up with the task of handling the daily lines of unemployed, each wanting to personally discuss his or her individual out-of-work problem with the mayor. A 14-hour day in the mayor's office was not unusual and many nights I went home heart-sick over the tragic cases I had encountered.

Judge Reardon: Burgin's Tenure 'Era Of Good Feeling'

(Following is the text of the eulogy to former Mayor-Senator Thomas S. Burgin by Judge Paul C. Reardon, former Chief Justice of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, former Massachusetts Supreme Court Justice, and a long-time friend of Mr. Burgin.)

Judge PAUL C. REARDON

"Thomas Skudder Burgin will be particularly recalled in Quincy for his contributions to his native city in the field of its local government. Here he was born and here he lived his entire life—almost within a stone's throw of this church.

"He attended the Quincy schools and Milton Academy and at the early age of 22 was elected to represent the then Ward One of the city in the City Council. Thereafter, he ran for and was elected as a Representative to the General Court for the term 1929-1930.

"Chosen Mayor of Quincy at a special election held in 1935 he continued through four terms in that office, being unopposed for reelection to his fourth term in 1940.

"He organized over 5,000 persons, volunteers, in the civil defense effort in Quincy in the early days of World War II, then joined the Navy as a lieutenant in 1942 and retired as a lieutenant commander in 1945.

"He was the unanimous choice of the new Plan E Council for Mayor in 1950, and hence served a fifth term in that office retiring in 1951. Once again he served as a City Councillor from 1956 to 1959 and as a state senator in 1961-

"Throughout his lifetime he was active in a dozen local organizations—being of special support to the Quincy Y.M.C.A.—where he was director for 49 years—to the United Fund, to the Eventide Home, to the Quincy Neighborhood Club, to the Quincy Yacht Club and to other charitable and social groups in Quincy—of all of which he seems to have been president at one time or another.

"He was the recipient of numerous citations and awards—perhaps the most pleasing to him was the naming of the new Burgin Parkway in his honor—and only a week or so before his passing, family members, at a time when he seemed to improve a bit, were unable to give him a round trip tour of this new and important thoroughfare so appropriately named after him.

"He was the recipient of numerous citations and awards—perhaps the most pleasing to him was the naming of the new Burgin Parkway in his honor—and only a week or so before his passing, family members, at a time when he seemed to improve a bit, were unable to give him a round trip tour of this new and important thoroughfare so appropriately named after him.

"He was a gracious and generous host on innumerable occasions over the years when he entertained guests on "Skudder" while cruising the waters of Boston Harbor and its adjacent bays. It would not be wrong to conclude that his happiest hours were spent on his beloved boats.

"He was, as well, a successful business man, founding in 1925 a still thriving insurance agency,—from which he himself retired several years ago—and was for 51 years a Trustee of the Quincy Savings Bank.

"His family should take pride in that Tom will be remembered here in Quincy for his easy and pleasant manner. He had an ability to work his way around some difficult political problems with a certain dexterity which left no one deeply offended but which produced an equitable and principled result.

"He knew those in the community on whose good judgment and fairness he could rely and he was able to summon to assist him any number of citizens who understood his motives, supported his objectives, and who believed in him.

"His occupation of the Mayor's office over five terms was marked in Quincy by what was called in an early American President's day "an era of good feeling".

"Tom's personality was the large reason for that and Quincy citizens will thus recall Tom as an individual who by simply being himself, helped mightily to produce over a long period of time what was in the main a happy and peaceful community."

Newton Mayor Inspired Him To Enter Politics

In 1924 when he was only 22, Thomas Burgin went to the old YMCA on Washington St. to hear then Newton Mayor Edwin Childs address a group of young people.

He said later that meeting "that talk was the turning point of my life."

Childs had stressed the need for young people to become interested in public service and the challenge it presented to youth.

Childs also proved to be a political prophet.

"Who knows," he said, "it isn't beyond the realm of possibility that a future mayor of Quincy might be right here in this room tonight."

Burgin ran for the City Council that same year and was elected—the youngest ever—at age 22.

In 1935—at age 33—he was elected mayor, the third youngest to hold that office.

ple who have gone to explore other oceans," referring to the crew members killed when the space shuttle Challenger exploded earlier in the day.

Rev. Edson went on to describe her first, and only visit with Mr. Burgin in early December.

"In early December, he was given three days to live. The doctors may have known his condition and prognosis, but they didn't know Tom Burgin.

"He proved them wrong. Which reminds us all that we go a long way in creating our reality."

Rev. Edson said that Mr. Burgin recounted when he was sworn in as mayor.

"I promised to do my best," Burgin told Rev. Edson with tears in his eyes.

"He did that, in office and out," said Rev. Edson. "His promise was fulfilled. He did do his very best."

She concluded the 40-minute service with a prayer given to Mr. Burgin on his 12th birthday which began, "Now I lay me down to sleep..."

Among those attending the service were Mayor Francis McCauley, former mayors Arthur Tobin, Walter Hannon, and Joseph LaRaia; Sheila McIntyre, wife of the late former-Mayor-Senator James McIntyre; Police Chief Francis Finn, former Fire Chief Edward Barry, City Clerk John Gillis, Elmer Fagerlund, Marion Fantuccio, Assessor's Office; treasurer Franklin Jay, H. Hobart Holly, Quincy Historical Society; Councilor Theodore DeCristofaro; Peter Kenney, mayor's executive secretary; former State Rep. Joseph Brett, Martha Reardon, deputy state DPW Commissioner.

More than 20 members of the Burgin family attended, as well as local business people and other local residents.

Music included "O God, Our Help in Ages Past," "The Lord's Prayer," "God Bless America" and "America the Beautiful."

Mayor McCauley called Burgin "one of the great civic and political leaders in the city's history."

"His life was one of almost complete community involvement," said McCauley.

In addition to elective office, Burgin was a member of such groups as the Kiwanis Club, Grotto, YMCA, and Historical Society.

"The city of Quincy and its citizens in the past, present and future benefit from him."

"We are all the better for having had Tom Burgin in our midst for so many years."

Mr. Burgin was born April 15, 1902 in Quincy, the second son of the late Clarence and Minnie M. (Rodgers) Burgin, and a direct descendant on his mother's side of five Mayflower passengers.

The former mayor was educated in city public schools and graduated from Milton Academy, Class of 1922.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Claire Burgin Allen (wife of Dr. James C. Allen) of Charleston, S.C.; a son, Jon Harvey Burgin of New York City; a brother C. Rodgers Burgin of Milton; three grandchildren, David

Crawford Allen, Timothy Skudder Allen and Christopher Jon Allen; three nieces, Mrs. Griffith Buttrick of Canton, Mrs. Elisha Lee of Westwood, Mrs. James

Lawrence of Baltimore, Maryland; one nephew, William T. Burgin of Dover; one great-granddaughter, Katherine Claire Allen.

Mr. Burgin began his business career in the early 1920s when he was first employed as a teller with the Quincy Savings Bank and directed the school savings program in the city's public school system.

In 1925 he left the bank to establish an insurance agency under his own name which is known today as Burgin, Platner & Co., with offices at 1357 Hancock St. and located in the oldest business building in Quincy.

He retired from active management of the firm in 1968, and later sold it to the present owners, the two sons and a nephew of his former associate, Nelford J. Platner, Jr.

In 1925 he was elected a corporator of the Quincy Savings Bank and a trustee in 1926. He retired in 1977. He served as a member on the Board of Investment at the bank for 30 years. In 1977 Quincy Savings Bank honored Mr. Burgin for having served 51 years as a trustee, longest period of service for an individual in that post in the bank's history.

Mr. Burgin's career in public service began in 1924 when he was elected Ward 1 City Councilor at age 22—the youngest ever to hold that office.

He was elected City Council President for 1927-28 but voluntarily retired after one year in office when he won election to the Mass. House of Representatives for 1929-30.

Having moved his residence to another district in the city he subsequently was ineligible for reelection. Two years later he ran for office and was elected to the council as a member-at-large serving for the years 1932-33 until voluntarily retiring.

At a special election in June 1935, Mr. Burgin was elected mayor to fill an existing vacancy at age 33—the third youngest to hold that office since 1889 when Quincy became a city. The others were Russell A. Sears and Charles Francis Adams.

He served as mayor for nearly eight years, winning reelection to a fourth term unopposed in 1940. He was the first so honored.

Shortly after World War II broke out his administration organized and directed the city's first civilian defense program with over 5,000 persons volunteering their services.

In 1942 he resigned as mayor to enlist in the U.S. Navy as a lieutenant.

Following his honorable discharge as a lieutenant commander, Mr. Burgin returned to managing his insurance business. Later he re-entered the political arena and in 1949 was a candidate for the seven-man council under the city's new Plan E form of government. He topped that list of 59 candidates and was unanimously then chosen by that new council to serve as its first Plan E mayor from 1950-51. He retired at the completion of the term satisfied the new form of government was running well.

In 1956 he returned to politics and served as councillor-at-large through 1959.

He accepted another political challenge when he ran for a two-year term in the state senate representing Quincy and Braintree. He failed in his bid for re-election when the state and district went almost entirely Democratic.

Mr. Burgin was affiliated with many community organizations and worth causes. These included:

Member of the United First Parish Unitarian Church, Quincy Sq.

Past President (1952-56) of the Quincy Y.M.C.A. in that position he directed a fund-raising campaign that realized over $1 million in contributions which built the present Y.M.C.A. building on Coddington St. He was a director of the Y.M.C.A. for 49 years.

In 1958 he was the recipient of the Silver Beaver Award from the Quincy Council, Boy Scouts of America.

He was an honorary director of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce; past president of the Quincy United Fund; former director of the Quincy Chapter of the American Red Cross; past president and an honorary director of the William B. Rice Eventide Home.

He was also a charter member and past president (1927) of the Quincy Kiwanis Club.

In his elder years, Mr. Burgin received many tributes from the city. These included:

● Nov. 4, 1974 - Honored by the City Council on the 50th anniversary of his election to that body.

● November, 1977 - Upland Rd. was renamed the Hon. Thomas S. Burgin Parkway.

● June 5, 1983 - Awarded the first honorary degrees at Quincy Junior College on the 25th anniversary.

Funeral arrangements were by the Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., Quincy.

Rally From 5-1 Defecit

Raiders In Big Upset Over Waltham, 8-5

By TOM SULLIVAN

The North Quincy hockey team made one of the most remarkable comebacks in years last Saturday when it overcame a 5-1 deficit to upset Waltham, 8-5 at the Quincy Youth Arena and take over first place in the Suburban League.

Kevin Jago's Raiders met Brookline last night (Wednesday), will play Brockton Saturday at 4 o'clock at Brockton's Asiaf Rink and will be home to Cambridge Rindge and Latin next Wednesday at 6:40 at the Youth Arena.

North had its troubles early against Waltham, falling behind, 2-1 after a period and 5-1 late in the second period. The Raiders scored just before the end of the period and the momentum carried over into the third period when they dominated the visiting Hawks.

North scored seven unanswered goals against Waltham's Mark Archibald, an all-scholastic goalie last season.

North's starting goalie, Kevin Jeffers, was injured in the second period and sat out the final seven minutes with backup goalie Brian Mahoney out sick, junior varsity goalie Paul Hanscom played the last seven minutes of the period and blanked Waltham.

Jeffers returned and was outstanding in the final period as he blanked the visitors while his mates exploded.

Dave Tapper had four goals, three in the final period, and he also had three assists.

Mike Haynes had a goal and five assists, Mark

Zimmerman, Matt Furtado and Mark Simonelli had a goal each and Dave Fasano had four assists. Tapper and Haynes are among the top scorers in the league.

"This was one of the greatest comebacks I have ever seen and it was definitely the best period of hockey since I've been here," said a pleased Jago. "Everything clicked. Our passing and skating were tremendous and I didn't think it was possible to score like that against such an outstanding goalie."

"We were terrible in the second period," said assistant coach Rick Avery, "but we made up for it with that remarkable third period."

North improved to 7-3-1 with the big victory as it continues to march toward a third straight state tournament berth.

Presidents Strong But Drop Pair

The Quincy hockey team turned in two strong performances last week but the results were the same as the Presidents lost both games, dropping their record to 2-10-1.

Bob Sylvia's Quincy team will host Waltham Saturday night at 7:50 at the Youth Arena and will play Newton North Wednesday at 6:40 p.m. at the Watertown rink.

The Presidents lost to Brookline, 5-3, last Friday after taking a 2-1 lead in the opening period.

Quincy took a 2-0 lead as Paul Scola scored unassisted at 1:33 of the game and Shawn Craig scored at 10:45 on a pass from Rodney Davis.

Brookline scored late in the period, then scored three unanswered goals in the second period for a 4-2 lead.

Mark Winter scored the Presidents' third goal early in the third period, but Brookline iced it at 12:20 on a Tom Heffernan goal.

Earlier in the week Quincy lost to a much improved Cambridge Rindge and Latin team, 4-2.

Sean O'Neil scored the first Quincy goal and Steve Constat added the second early in the second period to tie it, 2-2, but that was all for the Presidents as Cambridge added two more goals.

Mark Sandomato had 18 saves in the Quincy goal, including some outstanding ones.

North Girls Move Into First Place Tie With Newton

The North Quincy girls' basketball team moved into a first place tie with Newton North in the Suburban League and improved its record to 11-1 (5-1 in the league) with a thrilling 59-55 overtime win over previous league-leader Brookline last Friday.

With seven games still remaining, the Raiderettes could clinch a berth in the state tournament with a win last Tuesday over Brockton and become one of the earliest qualifiers.

Paul Bregoli's North girls will be at Newton North for a big one Friday at 5 p.m. and will host Cambridge Rindge and Latin Tuesday at 5.

Brookline tried a triangle and two defense against North in the first half but the Raiderettes solved it with little trouble. North ran out to a 17-8 lead as Anne Marie Hughes, Jean Welby and Karen Runge consistently sought out and found Ellen Warren and Nancy Flukes under the basket for easy layups. Warren, in her best game of the year, had eight first quarter points and Flukes added five.

North increased its lead to 29-17 at the half with Warren and Flukes scoring all the points in the second quarter. Flukes hit a 35-footer at the buzzer.

Brookline came out in the second half with full-court man-to-man pressure. The Raiderettes went cold from the floor, missing many easy inside shots, while the visitors scored 21 points and North held only a 39-38 edge going into the fourth quarter.

North lost the lead early in the quarter and also lost its defensive specialist, Hughes, for the game as she crashed full-speed into the bleachers to save the ball from going out of bounds. Hughes, who had done an outstanding job on Brookline's top scorer, left the game with severely bruised ribs.

Ann McGuigan, North's sixth player, came off the bench and filled in nicely. She hit a foul shot and picked up a loss ball for a basket.

Brookline took a three-point lead with time running out, but Runge, who scored seven second-half points, scored three big ones. Brookline's Molly Furlong hit an 18-foot shot with three seconds left on the shot clock and 10 seconds left in the game to put her team up, 53-51. Welby quickly in-bounded the ball to Flukes, breaking alone at half court. Flukes drove the length of the court and tied the game with three seconds left.

In overtime North's experience and poise showed. After Brookline's Furlong scored to put her team in front, the Raiderettes blanked the visitors the rest of the way. North converted a beautiful fast break with Runge passing to Flukes.

who passed to McGuigan, who laid it in. The Raiderettes then clinched the big win with several clutch free throws.

Warren, who dominated Brookline all day, finished with 26 points and 20 rebounds, both career highs. Her 20 rebounds tied a school record. Earlier this month she was mentioned in High School Hoop Magazine as one of the "shining stars" in Massachusetts. The team was also mentioned for its fast start.

Flukes, only a sophomore, added 16 points and five assists. Runge had nine points, six rebounds and three assists and McGuigan had five points.

Earlier in the week North traveled to Waltham where the gym was hot but the Raiderettes were even hotter as they jumped off to a 20-8 first quarter lead and went on to a 57-41 victory.

Waltham led, 5-2, but Runge sparked a North run of 10 straight points. She hit for 10 first quarter points, and Hughes and Warren added four each.

North widened its margin to 32-16 at the half. Its offense cooled off a bit, but the defense and domination of the defensive boards began to wear down the home team. Warren and Flukes had four points each in the second quarter.

Flukes, playing with a broken finger, scored nine third quarter points as North's lead increased to 23 points and it led, 47-26, after three quarters.

Runge, who finished with a season high of 18 points, played well in the second half and added eight points after intermission. She also added nine rebounds, three assists and a blocked shot in her finest all-around game. Warren had 14 points, 16 rebounds and two blocked shots and Flukes had 13 points and seven assists. Also playing well was Nancy Lyons, who played excellent defense and rebounded well, and Marybeth Maloney, who ran the offense well.

"Both wins were special for us as the kids felt they owned both teams paybacks for losses last year," Bregoli said. "The Brookline win was especially pleasing because of the total team effort involved. Warren and Flukes were terrific offensively and several others also were outstanding. Runge, who was being keyed on early in the game, rebounded and passed well until she was able to get free in the second half. When Warren got in foul trouble, she also shut down Stephanie Butler, who had hurt us in the second half. I thought she was just great."

"Welby, who doesn't get much mention offensively, did a superb job bringing the ball up under tough pressure. She also took over against Nadia Hall and shut her out in the fourth quarter and the overtime. McGuigan also performed well in a high pressure situation. She has showed she can come off the bench and do the job all year. I think the whole team is concerned about Hughes' injury. She is important to the overall success of the team."

North Girl JV's Win 8th

The North Quincy girls' junior varsity basketball team improved to 8-1 last week with an easy 46-15 victory over Waltham.

Nancy Leonard led all scorers with 10 points, Marybeth Maloney had seven, Stacey Welch added five and Debbie Panaro scored four. North had a huge 26-6 halftime lead.

In its previous game the North girls defeated Quincy, 41-29, with freshman Deirdre Murphy scoring eight points, Maureen Donovan seven and Maloney five. The game was close most of the way with the Raiderettes having only an 18-17 halftime lead. However, North took command in the third quarter and outscored Quincy, 12-4, and coasted the rest of the way.

Earlier North had defeated Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 43-23, paced by Tricia Koski and Ann Anderlonis with eight points each and Patty Feeney with six. Feeney and Panaro did a fine job breaking Cambridge's full-court press and setting up the offense, while Jill Caldwell, Maureen Tolson, Melissa Miles and Kerri McDonald continued to play strong defense.

After suffering its only defeat, North Quincy came back to overwhelm Newton North, 40-18. Donovan had eight points, Anderlonis seven and Maloney five. Milton, McDonald and Caldwell played strong defense and controlled the defensive board.

'Ain't Misbehavin' At South Shore Performing Arts Center Feb. 11

Song and dance recreate the atmosphere of a delectably lowdown Harlem cabaret in the 1930s in the Tony award-winning musical revue "Ain't Misbehavin'." To be performed at the South Shore Performing Arts Center in Stoughton, Feb. 11 through 23.

Consisting of some 30 songs written or made famous by Fats Waller, the show offers foot-stomping renditions of such Waller classics as "Honeysuckle Rose," "Squeeze Me" and "The Joint Is Jumpin'" performed by the ebullient singing and dancing ensemble.

Leslie Barlow, Doug Esker, Boncella Lewis, Stanley Ramsey and Terri White, all of whom were members of either the Broadway, national or international companies participate in this joyous cel-

Detailed Plans On Bargain Center Unveiled

By DAN CONNELLY
More detailed plans for the $45 million Bargain Center development project were unveiled Tuesday by the city's planning director at a meeting of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association. City Planning Director James Lydon told the group, who met in the conference room at the South Shore Bank, 19 Chestnut St., that plans to develop the Bargain Center and nearby properties is "a major statement for Quincy," he said. "The project will include retail, commercial and residential space and will stretch from the old Elks building on Hancock St. down to the old courthouse on Coddington

St.," he said. Lydon, who labeled the proposed development as "The Copley Place of downtown Quincy" said the street level of the 240,000 square foot complex will house retail stores. The next several levels will be commercial office space and residential. The latter component will be 180 condominiums - probable price range starting at $125,000 and will offer a birds-eye view of the Blue Hills and Quincy Bay.

This part of the complex will straddle a parking garage. Access to this off-street parking will be from the old courthouse, owned by Norfolk County, and which currently provides classroom space for Quincy Junior College.

The planning director said whether the college will be included in the planned complex will be decided by the county. The college has been a tenant for the last several years. It has no lease.

Lydon said that barring any delays he hopes to get the project running by next summer with a time frame of from 12 to 18 months for completion-dependent upon the weather.

"What could delay the project is if a state environmental study is ordered. This could take from 6 to 9 months," Lydon said.

Ricciardi Company of Quincy purchased the property for about $3 million and will join with Campanelli Industries of Braintree in developing it.

The Boston Five Cent Savings Bank will finance, and be a major tenant.

With Lydon at the meeting was Kevin Shea, principal planner for Quincy, who outlined to the association a new city-sponsored program of low interest rate loan opportunities for merchants.

She said this commercial development plan, similar to one operating in Boston, provides from $15,000 to $250,000 in loans, three-quarter prime at flexible terms. The money can be used for acquisition of property, purchasing equipment or small machinery, renovations/alterations. The program is designed for small retail and other businesses and will be serviced through the city and the Bank of Boston. Shea added he will soon have brochures to distribute to the merchants explaining in more detail the loan program.

Shea briefly spoke about the planned 117-space garage to be built behind Quincy Fair. He said if ground tests prove satisfactory it could be ready in September. He agreed there will be some inconvenience during construction and the city will work closely with merchants to overcome obstacles.

In response to a query regarding vehicle speeding on the Burgin Parkway Extension, linking downtown Quincy with Route 3 in Braintree, Lydon said the road is still controlled by the state. "When they finalize their work the city will move in and quickly correct any excessive speeding problems."

New Acting Chief?

Fire Chief Appointment Up In Air

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The appointment of a permanent Quincy fire chief has been left high in the air and surrounded by speculation.

The speculation:

- Acting Fire Chief Carl Valenti will ask to be returned to the position of deputy chief which he held prior to his recent assignment.
- Deputy Chief Joseph Jackson, who passed the Civil Service exam for Chief, will accept the appointment. Or,
- Jackson, who last year said he was not interested in the position, will stick by that stand.
- Deputy Chief Thomas Gorman, son of late Fire Chief Thomas Gorman until another civil service exam is held. Gorman failed the first part of the test, and did not take the second part.

Take your choice of speculation:

Valenti and Jackson declined comment on the probable outcome.

The speculation followed news that Valenti, who passed the first part of the exam, failed the second part with a score of 65.7. Passing grade for the written part of the test given in July is 70.

"I was very disappointed with the mark I got," said Valenti. "I really thought I had passed it. I was quite shocked."

Valenti said he has filed an appeal with the Division of Personnel Administration in Boston.

"I felt the appeal was justified," said Valenti, who noted that the grade could be upheld, upgraded but not enough to pass, or raised to a mark above passing.

"But that takes months and months," said Valenti. "I'm not too optimistic. They're usually pretty firm on marks and the way they stand."

"But I have to take a shot and try."

Mayor Francis McCauley said that Valenti will continue as acting chief for now.

McCauley said he is reviewing the situation within the fire department as a result of the civil service marks, and hopes to work out a solution soon.

He also praised the work done by Valenti who was appointed after the retirement of Chief Edward Barry last summer.

"I've been very pleased with Valenti's performance as chief," said McCauley.

"I've enjoyed working with him over the last six months."

Council Kills 4 Year Term Proposal

Mayor Francis McCauley said he was "a little disturbed" by the City Council's decisive 8 to 1 vote Monday against his home rule petition which would increase the terms of mayor and councillors from two to four years.

But he predicted that four year terms will eventually become a reality in the city, though he has no plans to resubmit the petition.

"Change comes hard," said McCauley. "This isn't a radical proposal. In the majority of cities, it is working well."

"Personally, it doesn't effect me, but the voters should have had the opportunity to make their own judgement on the ballot."

If the petition had been approved by the council, mayor and legislature, it would have appeared on the ballot in the November state election.

Ward 2 Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro was the lone councillor to vote in favor of the petition which McCauley announced at inauguration ceremonies.

"I think there are more positive aspects than negative," said DeCristofaro, "I'd like very, very much to see it on the ballot to let the people decide."

His fellow councillors disagreed about the proposal.

"The phrase, 'if it ain't broken, don't fix it,' is very 'appropriate,'" said Council president Stephen McGrath.

"The system we have is a good system," he said.

Councillor James Sheets commented, "it would substantially change the balance of power. Several cities have gone to the four year term, but I'm not sure they have the plan of government that we have."

"Quincy is Quincy because of the two year terms," said Councillor Richard Koch, Jr.

8 New Patrolmen To Be Sworn In Friday

The city's police department will be getting eight new patrolmen following their swearing in this Friday, Feb. 7, at 10 a.m. in the Council Chambers at City Hall.

The new officers are: Henry Breen, 57 Samoset

Ave., David Coletti, 28 Wentworth Rd., Allen Gillan, 226 Billings St., Patrick Glynn, 279 West Squantum St., John P. Grazioso, 4 Curtis Ave., Michael Miller, 21 Rosemary Lane, all of Quincy. Also Leo J. Coppens,

The candidates were selected after an extensive background check, physical and psychological testing.

"If the yard is sold, we'll have input in what goes there if it is designated P.U.D.," said DeCristofaro.

Council Seeks Shipyard Re-zoning Study

The City Council voted Monday night to request that the Planning Board study the feasibility of recommending that the General Dynamics site be rezoned from Industrial B to Planned Unit Development.

"We don't know what will happen there," said Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro who submitted the resolve.

"If the yard is sold, we'll have input in what goes there if it is designated P.U.D.," said DeCristofaro.

Council To Define City Building Height

A public hearing to define city building heights will be held Feb. 10 at 6:30 p.m. by the City Council.

The Quincy Citizens Association urged attendance at the hearing. They contend the present ordinance of a 10-story height does not count above-ground garages in the stories allowed in any zones.

Cafe Told To Tighten Reins On Drinking

By LINDA WILKINS

The city's License Board voted Tuesday to place on file a hearing regarding alleged violations of the liquor license held by Chevy's Bel-Air Cafe, 79 1/2 Parkingway, Quincy Center.

According to a letter the board received from the Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission (ABCC), Chevy's has been mentioned 10 times as being the last place where persons were served alcoholic beverages before they violated the drunk driving laws.

The letter also said that the Commission has received notification from the Attorney General's Office that four persons, who were convicted of driving under the influence of alcohol during the period from July 13, 1985 to December 3, 1985, have stated that they were last served alcoholic beverages at the establishment.

"We have been notified that if local licensing boards don't take action, the ABCC will," said Police Chief and board member Francis X. Finn.

Finn told Carl M. Miranda, owner of Chevy's, that one or two persons may have falsely stated where they received their last drink, but that it is "almost inconceivable" that 10 people would make false statements.

"We are very sincere about watching you and expect you to tighten the reins," he said, adding that if the establishment did not adopt stricter policies toward drinking, the license board would take action.

Finn said the city has, in the past, always handled its own problems.

"We want to police the establishment ourselves, but we particularly want you to do it," he told Miranda.

According to Miranda, staff members of Chevy's attend a Training For Intervention Procedure by Servers (TIPS) program and receive one full day of training and in-house awareness. The program is designed to teach trainees acceptable standards of practice for serving alcohol.

Miranda added that he has also spent over $2,000 in cash fares for customers who are unable to drive home.

Acting Fire Chief and board member Carl Valenti said he was also concerned about an "overloading" problem at Chevy's.

Valenti said having too many patrons in the establishment blocks the means of egress and added that the Deputy Fire Chief would check the site.

"The city won't tolerate overcrowding," said Building Inspector and board member Allan F. MacDonald.

Nutley Backs Restrictions On New Building Heights

Ward 6 Councillor Thomas J. Nutley has asked North Quincy residents to support the mayor's proposed order to restrict the height of new residential buildings to 110-feet.

"It's important," Nutley said, "that residents attend the 6:30 p.m. meeting Monday, Feb. 10 at City Hall to indicate their support. We need to take strong steps such as this to moderate development and preserve our quality of life.

"For example, the proposed twin towers at the Boston Harbor Marina would be reduced two stories and 25 feet in height if this order is passed.

"Decisions such as this will affect our lives and our children's. I'm looking forward to a strong turnout of residents."

Kelly Reappointed Chairman Environmental Commission

City Council president Stephen J. McGrath announces the reappointment of former City Councilor Leo J. Kelly to head the council's Environmental Control Commission.

"It is my pleasure to reappoint Leo to this very important position," said McGrath. "The commitment, energy and knowledge that Leo Kelly brings to this position as chairman have served the city and the cause of the environment well."

"I envision the continued success of this commission, thank Leo for his past commitment and look forward to working with him."

Rowell Praises Detectives On 'Most Wanted' Cases

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Police Capt. David Rowell, Chief of Detectives, has praised a number of Quincy officers who recently helped apprehend two men who were on the "10 most wanted list" in the state.

Rowell praised Detectives Thomas Healey and Russ Miller, as well as Robert Crowley and Ernest Lijoi and three other members of the organized crime drug control unit.

"Detectives Thomas Healey and Russ Miller did an excellent job developing information which led to the arrest by state police of James M. LeBlanc," said Rowell.

LeBlanc, 24, was arrested Jan. 23, at Pete's Grill, 540 South St., Quincy Point, by the Violent Fugitive Squad of the State Police.

An escapee from MCI Cedar Junction, he offered no resistance, according to police.

He is wanted for an alleged rape Jan. 19, in Milton, as well as for other suspected rapes in Brookline, Waltham and Littleton, police said, and for violation of parole.

Detectives Healey and Miller said that they had been working on the case for a month.

LeBlanc had been seen in parts of Quincy on several occasions, they said, and through information they received knew he was expected at the bar that day.

Healey and Miller staked out the bar until about 6 p.m. when they were relieved by state police.

Healey said he had arrested LeBlanc about three years ago for a series of felonies.

Rowell also praised Crowley, Lijoi and three unidentified members of the Organized Crime Drug Control Unit for their work which led to the arrest of former Quincy resident Kevin P. Gildea Jan. 28 at the Quincy City Hospital Emergency Room entrance.

One of the most wanted fugitives in the state, Gildea was wanted for escaping from Woodbine, Ga., where he was doing time for burglary, as well as warrants from Maine and Vermont on burglary charges, one of which involved the theft of drugs, Rowell said.

There is also a warrant out of Stoughton District Court based on a raid conducted last year by the Norfolk County Drug Task Force at which time the Charter of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts was recovered in a Dorchester home, Rowell said. Gildea has been a suspect since that theft occurred, he said.

Detectives surrounded Gildea's car and made a safe and quick arrest, said Rowell.

They seized a fully loaded, 22-caliber Winchester rifle wrapped in a towel in the car, 15 rounds of ammunition, and also pills which are allegedly cocaine, according to Rowell.

"He was considered armed and dangerous," said Rowell, "and the detectives did an excellent job on that case."

Gildea was ordered held without bail until his next court appearance, by Quincy District Court Judge Albert Kramer who continued the case to Feb. 14.

McCauley said that he will submit the budget to the city council April 7. The council has 45 days to complete their review. The council may reduce the budget but can not increase the appropriation items submitted by the mayor.

Wollaston

Apartment Looted

A safe with miscellaneous valuables was removed from a bedroom and $900 cash, $1500 in coins and assorted jewelry stolen from the apartment of Claire Perry, Elmwood Park, Wollaston, Jan. 31.

Every working person (even a person already covered by a pension, profit-sharing, NEP or Keogh Plan) can put up to $2,000 into an Individual Retirement Account each year. With a non-employed spouse, the limit rises up to $2,250 per year. And if both work, each may contribute up to $2,000 a year, or a tax-deferred total of as much as $4,000.

The "No-Excuses" Individual Retirement Account.

You've probably thought about opening an Individual Retirement Account before. But you've put it off.

Perhaps because you thought you needed $2,000 to open an IRA. You don't. At Quincy Savings, you can open an IRA with just $10 and earn a money market rate. We're also offering a new IRA Club Account to make it easier to fund an IRA systematically.

Another excuse you may have used is that your retirement date is a long way off. That may be true. But don't forget that every year you contribute to your IRA it's deductible on your Federal income tax return. Which can save you a lot of money.

Depending on your tax bracket, there even are some advantages in borrowing what you want to open or fund your IRA at Quincy Savings, as our free "Net Tax Savings" analysis will indicate. If you qualify, we'll lend you up to $2,000 at an attractive rate, with a one-year repayment plan.

And if you've thought that a year's delay in opening your IRA doesn't make much difference, ask for our free computer-generated projection that will show you exactly how much money you'll lose by postponing your decision for just one year.

There's really no excuse for paying Uncle Sam extra taxes again this year. Especially when you can open your IRA at Quincy Savings for just $10, and select either short or long term certificates for larger amounts. And now Quincy Savings even offers mutual funds and self-directed plans as well.

So come to our nearest office soon, for one of our computer-generated projections and to open your IRA. Or call us at 471-3500, if you have any questions.

Readers Forum Hoskins Family Grateful To Sterling Students

Editor, The Quincy Sun and readers:

It is with great excitement that our family looks forward to our upcoming visit to your community. Many of your readers may remember a story about the students at Reay E. Sterling Middle School that you printed. The story told of the student's efforts to raise funds for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. We are very honored that our daughter, Emily, was chosen by Mr. Robert Mattson, the math teacher at the school, to be the inspiration of this worthy project.

It certainly is a great feeling to see the nice things that are being done by the youth in your community. Unfortunately, many stories concerning today's youth are negative nature, and it was nice to see the positive one being cited by your paper. We're sure it has helped their efforts considerably.

We think it is honorable that so many students took the time to care about others that so desperately need help. St. Jude's is a fantastic place, helping many children each year. It can exist only through the generosity of fund-raisers and donations. If it had not been for the care Emily received, we are sure our daughter's chances of survival would have been in doubt the first year. Instead, she is now diagnosed as cured of the cancer and will be celebrating her third birthday with the students of Reay E. Sterling Middle School—students that are raising funds to help other children. Your community should certainly be proud of these young people.

We would like to thank your paper and all of the people who helped with this project. We are looking forward to meeting each and every one of you when we arrive in Quincy January 30.

That Awful Explosion

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

May I write to you about the awful explosion on Tuesday, Jan. 28th?

Because as TV kept repeating and repeating that horrible sight and freeze framing it, I put my hand against the TV screen and that picture, as if by doing so, it hadn't happened and I could erase the sight from my mind.

But, instead I rewound the tape to the point in time where these Magnificent Seven were smiling, happy and waving to us as they entered the space craft. - I froze that moment on the TV and in my memory; because that is how they lived and that is how they died, never knowing the fear, horror, pain and sadness that their loved ones and we on earth experienced.

This is how they would want us to remember them, smiling, courageous, happy, exulting as they reached for the sky, "and touched the face of God."

Praises Quincy Hospital For High Quality Care

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Recently I accidentally fell near my home and severely injured my leg and ankle to the extent that it was necessary for me to be taken by ambulance to the Quincy City Hospital. Within a matter of minutes the Bay State Ambulance Company transported me to the hospital emergency room where I was treated and later hospitalized.

During my stay I received the utmost of concern, compassion, and care from a most highly skilled staff of professional personnel and volunteers. The attitudes of every person with whom I came in contact was of a very positive nature.

I cannot say enough for the doctors and nurses who provided me with the highest quality of medical care. My pain and suffering was assuaged because of the caring, dedicated and skilled professional health care providers on the staff.

Quincy residents can be justly proud of their hospital because it can provide such quality medical care when you consider the present limitations of its buildings and structures. The hospital will be in a much better position to provide even better services and care when its proposed rebuilding program is completed.

Heartfelt thanks to all staff personnel who made my stay at Quincy Hospital more comfortable.

It Didn't Need Fixin'

Mayor Francis McCauley's proposed four-year terms for mayor and city councillors got shot down by the council this week.

From where we sit, it was good shooting.

The vote was 8-1 with only Ward 2's Ted DeCristofaro in favor of it.

McCAULEY

Council President Stephen McGrath probably summed it up best when he observed: "If it ain't broken, don't fix it."

Quincy's present Plan A charter and its two year terms for both mayor and city council is anything but broken.

McGRATH

municipal government anywhere.

So why tinker with it?

Council members were cool to the idea when the mayor sprung the proposal in his third term inaugural address.

Some observers think McCauley included the four-year term for the council in his home petition proposal as a carrot to get the council's support for the four-year mayoral term.

But no one really jumped to take a bite.

The problem with the proposal is what McGrath had said earlier at an Ordinance Committee meeting: "There seems to be a lack of groundswell (support) and demand" for it.

It was initiated by the mayor, not by the people.

McCauley, appearing before the Ordinance Committee to make a pitch for the proposal noted that if the City Council and the state legislature flashed the green light, it would only put a referendum question on the ballot in this year's state election.

"The people would have the final say," he notes.

We think the people also should have had the first say.

But the people did not initiate it. There was no petition from them. No demand from them. Not even a little request from them.

It was strictly the mayor's proposal and he seemed to be the only one with any real enthusiasm for it.

Councillor Patricia Toland noted that all the City Council incumbents running for re-election last year were returned for two more years.

"Maybe," she said, "people are happy with things the way they are."

Well, if they are not happy with everything, they seem to be happy with two year terms for their mayor and city councillors.

It makes them accountable to the people sooner. And that's the way it should be — sooner and often.

Doubling the two-year terms to four would be going in the wrong direction and leave the mayor and councillors — regardless of who they are — too long a period before answering the people at the polls.

There were a couple of light notes to all of this at the Ordinance Committee meeting a week ago.

McCauley said if the four-year term became a reality, it probably wouldn't affect him since it wouldn't become effective until 1989.

But he hastened to add as reporters started scribbling: "For all the reporters busy writing that I'm announcing my retirement, I'm not."

To which Committee Chairman James Sheets responded with a big smile:

"If you are, three of us are announcing our candidacy."

The three, he obviously was referring to were himself, McGrath and former Mayor Joseph LaRaia.

Perhaps the best argument against four year terms are the wrong people in those posts. Four years can be a long, long time to make a needed change.

And perhaps one of the best arguments to retain the two year term is McCauley himself.

He has done a good job as mayor. He has been a good chief executive and his campaigning for re-election every two years has not hurt him, his re-election campaign, or the city.

More importantly, it hasn't hurt the people.

STEPHEN McGRATH has been wielding a pretty fast gavel as new City Council president.

Planning Director James Lydon noted at a recent meeting: "This is the first time I've spoken to the council as the last item on the agenda and it's only five minutes to eight."

The meetings begin at 7:30 p.m.

Councillor Joseph LaRaia also had an observation: "This is the first time anyone has ever addressed the City Council in two different shoes."

He was referring to the cast on Lydon's leg from a recent racketball accident.

OBSERVATION via the Quincy Kiwanis Club newsletter (and wherever they got it): "The bigger a man's head gets, the easier it is to fill his shoes."

Quincy's Yesterdays

Dog Track At Dennison Aiport Strongly Opposed

Proposals for a dog track on the site of Dennison Airport drew vehement opposition at hearings in the State House and City Hall despite a favorable referendum for it at recent Quincy elections.

Harold T. Dennison of 36 Curtis Rd., Quincy, president of the Dennison Airport Kennel Club, Inc., said his group planned to spend $150,000 to make it "one of the outstanding tracks of its kind in this country."

Feb. 5-11
51 Years Ago

The opposition was led by Rev. William B. Ayers of Union Congregational Church, Wollaston, Rep. Charles W. Hedges of Quincy and City Councillor John R. Shaughnessy, who said:

"There is nothing lower than a dog track. Three of the six operated in Illinois were controlled by Al Capone."

One of those seeking the permit to build the track was former Quincy Mayor William A. Bradford.

NORTH QUINCY ADDITION

The City Council authorized construction of the final wing of North Quincy High School with $349,000 in federal funds provided by the Public Works Administration.

Unfortunately, all present PWA funds had been allocated and construction of a North Quincy High addition would have to wait for Congress to pass a pending public works bill.

The Quincy Council of Parent Teachers Associations expressed concern that "political filibustering" would be used to delay construction.

The PTA's feared that the City Council, aware there were no PWA funds available, would borrow money for other city construction jobs, leaving North Quincy's youngsters high and dry.

HARD TIMES

The difficulties of the times were spelled out in the "Situations Wanted" columns on the classified pages: "Young man, 24 years old, would like work of any kind, cleaning cellars, etc. Will work by day, hour or week. 30 cents an hour."

"Capable man, age 40, drive car, keep books, willing to do anything. $7 a week and room and board."

Emily Cured Of Cancer

Sterling School Students 'Reach For The Stars' Aiding Illinois Girl

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

"Astronaut Christa McAuliffe urged students to be all they could be, to reach for the stars," said Joseph Long, the principal of Sterling Middle School in South Quincy Friday.

"And you've helped scientists reach for their stars and help Emily," said Long during a special assembly.

Emily is Emily Hoskins of Streater, Ill., and the assembly was a celebration in honor of her third birthday.

The help was the fact that Sterling students raised over $4,000 for St. Jude's Childrens Research Hospital which was started by entertainer Danny Thomas. They held math-a-thons to raise the money.

In the process, they saw a photo of Emily, who was born with a kind of cancer, in St. Jude's newsletter and "adopted" her.

One day a student asked, "Why don't we invite them here to visit us," and the idea for a visit was born. The idea grew into a four-day trip for the family with all expenses paid by contributions of money was well as services.

And even though the guest of honor fell asleep in her daddy's arms at one point, the celebration was a touching and memorable occasion for those who attended.

In addition to the birthday celebration, it also included recognition of students who raised the most money for St. Jude's Hospital, Memphis, Tenn.

It was because of St. Jude's that Emily was able to stride up the center aisle of Sterling's auditorium to begin the celebration.

Wearing a red and white dress and flashing a smile, she progressed up the aisle with the assistance of a walker to the applause of students, school officials, and visitors.

Her parents, Greg and Linda, followed behind. The family also includes Emily's six-month-old brother, Scott.

"I have two words to express how I feel," Emily's father told the assembly. "and they begin with G and W for 'Gee and Wow.'"

Within minutes of Emily's birth, we discovered that there was a problem, said Hoskins, advertising director for a daily newspaper.

She was transferred to St. Jude's and within 45 minutes her condition had been diagnosed and treatment had been started, he said.

"No family has ever had to pay anything to St. Jude's because of people like you who care enough to give," said Mrs. Hoskins, a pharmacy technician at a hospital.

The birthday celebration also included a cake, gifts and the singing of "Happy Birthday."

A proclamation was read which named Jan. 31 "Emily Hoskins Day" in Quincy.

There were also cheers by the North Quincy High School cheerleaders, several numbers by the Quincy High School musical group and a nursery rhyme presentation for Emily.

A presentation by sixth graders bearing cards began "A' you are adorable, 'B' you're beautiful..." and ended by spelling out "Emily."

In addition, certificates, T-shirts and tote bags were presented to the top math-a-thon winners by Emily's parents.

A plaque was presented to the school "in appreciation to the students, your friend forever, Emily Hoskins."

Plaques were also presented to math teacher Robert Mattsson, who coordinated the math-a-thons, by the Hoskins, his colleagues at Sterling, and from St. Jude's Hospital.

"The student body has been terrific," said Mattsson after the assembly. "Things couldn't have gone any better."

"We had a ball at the airport last night," said Greg Hoskins, before he joined the others for cake and ice cream in the cafeteria. The family was met by a contingent of Sterling students, teachers and parents.

"Emily was a little shy at first, but when we got to the hotel, they were taking her on adventures and she loved it."

The Four Seasons Hotel in Boston donated a suite for the family for their four-day visit.

Hoskins mentioned the friendliness of everyone he and his family had met.

"That's very nice," he said. The family had the opportunity to meet a number of people during tours of Boston, Quincy and the South Shore.

Hoskins also had good words about Emily's prognosis.

"She has a clean bill of health. After four months, the hospital said she was cured of cancer."

"They're monitoring her now, and she has check-ups every six months, for research. But she's cured as far as they can tell," he said, noting that prompt treatment was a big factor.

Her legs are permanently paralyzed, however, and she will always have to wear leg braces, he said. After the walker, she'll progress to hand crutches.

"We hope she may even shed herself of those in time," said Hoskins.

He described his daughter as "a bright child, outgoing... and stubborn."

"She's pretty much a success, story of St. Jude's," said Hoskins, "and this whole trip has almost been like a miracle."

"It's overwhelming what the Sterling students have done."

"It certainly is a tribute to the community. I've never seen anything like this."

He also had high praise for Mattsson, a teacher for 36 years.

"He is an inspiration to the children."

"He's not only teaching the students to read and write, he's teaching them something about life."

Mayor Francis McCauley and members of the Quincy Animal League are scheduled to meet this week to discuss concerns about the local animal shelter and pet population.

The meeting, being held at the request of the five-year-old organization, will also be attended by league president John McDuff and executive board member Althea Griffin, as well as dog officer Mrs. Phyllis Berlucci.

Mrs. Berlucci has assumed that position since her husband became ill.

McCauley said.

McCauley said he expected the discussion to cover general concerns.

Though the meeting is not specifically on plans to replace the animal shelter, that topic may come up, he said.

"We're always willing to listen to suggestions by concerned citizens," said McCauley.

Gale Engineering of Braintree has been selected for the award of design services for the new animal shelter, said McCauley.

"We will be meeting in the near future with Department of Public Works Commissioner Paul Anderson, Deputy Commissioner David Colton, Mrs. Berlucci, and members of the firm," said McCauley. "I'm interested in the kind of money we're talking about."

A $34,000 appropriation order will be sent to the City Council soon for a design study, said McCauley. The study will also assess the particular needs of Quincy.

"The shelter just isn't satisfactory. It's an old, tired place," said McCauley.

City Gets $3.6 Million Hike In Local Aid

The city will be receiving a $3.6 million increase in aid from the state, the largest in history, according to three local state legislators.

Reps. Thomas F. Brownell, Michael W. Morrissey and Robert A. Cerasoli announced jointly that Quincy will get $29.8 million in direct local aid for the fiscal year 1987. That amounts to an increase of 13.8 percent over the previous year.

Statewide, cities and towns will receive $1.9 billion, an increase of $242 million. Of the statewide increase, $72 million is earmarked for the Chapter 70 education aid program and $50 million is targeted for offsetting reductions in federal assistance.

The Quincy legislators said the figures represent what is known as "resolution aid," which must be ratified by the legislature during the budget process. However, the numbers have been agreed upon by Governor Dukakis and key members of the House and Senate.

Given the fiscal climate resulting from proposed federal cutbacks, there is little chance that amount of aid will not be forthcoming, they said.

"I am very pleased with these figures for increased state aid," Brownell said. "In light of Gramm-Rudman and the president's plan to scrap revenue sharing, the City of Quincy and all communities are going to need more help. Establishing a $50 million reserve to make up for federal cuts is very wise planning."

"This increase in local aid is a reflection of the state's interest in the fiscal well-being of local communities. The state may not always be able to make up for federal aid cuts, but we are taking advantage of this year's surplus of state funds."

Council Kills McCauley's Four Year Term Proposal

"I don't see the need to change it at this point."

Councillor John Lydon said, "I'm convinced in my district that people don't want a four year city councillor. A four year mayor and two year city council just doesn't work."

"I don't see anything wrong with constantly running for office," said Councillor Michael Cheney, who added, "if it (the petition) appeared on the ballot, it would become a personality issue."

"With two year terms, people know who the candidates are. If the mayor and city council work hard, they'll be reelected," said Councillor Thomas Nutley.

"If you extend the term, you get away from the people," said Councillor Joseph LaRaia.

"The balance of power is critical to the Plan A government," said Councillor Patricia Toland. "It would be transferred if the mayor was elected for four years and the City Council for two years."

NATURAL GAS THE MODERN ALTERNATIVE

Take a big load off laundry costs with a new gas dryer.

- Nothing dries clothes more economically than a natural gas dryer. Clean, efficient gas dries more loads than electric dryers do for the same cost.
- Nothing dries clothes faster than a natural gas dryer. It moves more warm air through the drying drum.
- A reliable gas dryer maintains its efficiency year after year. Your dryer lasts longer.

Burning calories before you eat them? Take control with a gas range.

- Professional chefs demand natural gas ranges for the precise temperature control they need.
- Only a clean, gas flame adjusts instantly from high heat to low, low to high and everything in between.
- A gas range's flexible flame hugs every size pot and pan perfectly, for total heat distribution.
- With gas, there's no warm-up or cool-down delay. You start cooking instantly, and have control to stop boiling over, burning and spattering.

Sacred Heart Celebrates Catholic Schools Week

Sacred Heart School will participate in the national Catholic Schools Week from Feb. 2 to Feb. 8.

The week's theme will be a Rainbow of Excellence. Like a rainbow, Catholic Schools brighten the lives of the parish community and avail students of a variety of subjects to help them learn about themselves and the world around them.

Several grades have well-planned projects underway for Catholic Schools Week. Our excited first graders will be performing a concert for the primary grades, while our anxious second graders are preparing for the Sacrament of Reconciliation.

Our third and fourth graders are diligently studying their multiplication facts for their upcoming math-a-thon. The fourth grade will also share in a special liturgy with Father Heery. Our sixth graders are preparing the liturgy for February's First Friday Mass. As it is Catholic Schools Week, the theme will be "A Rainbow of Excellence."

The seventh graders will exhibit their recently completed science projects. They will be on display in the Science Room and all are welcome to view them on February 2. Room 21 will be preparing a prayer service which incorporates the C.S.W. theme. Room 23 will be having a Super Pops project which pays tribute to the people who have changed the students' lives by something they have done or accomplished.

American Cablesystems Launches Anti-Illiteracy Program

In a unique move for a television company, American Cablesystems, serving Quincy, is urging subscribers to turn off their TV sets and read an hour a day.

It's part of that corporation's war against illiteracy among adults and also to encourage reading among children.

The campaign, "Reading Is All American," and launched this month, includes cablecasting of documentaries and live panel discussions to focus on the problems; a 45-part instructional series to help solve it; public service announcements; originally produced television programming; and a commitment to buying books for libraries and deserving children to help prevent it in the future.

The anti-illiteracy program was announced by Barry D. Lemieux, Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer of the 300,000 subscriber company.

"As many as one in five Americans, more than 46 million Americans, are functionally illiterate," Lemieux said. "This means that 20 percent of our friends, neighbors and customers cannot read well enough to understand the daily newspaper, simple written instructions, traffic signs, job advertisements, or other items necessary for heading a happy and productive life."

Lemieux said the company's "Reading is All American" campaign will include the following:

"A corporate commitment to fighting illiteracy among adults, and to encourage reading among children.

"The cablecasting of a powerful documentary on the illiteracy problem. That documentary will be shown on our local channel in 27 Massachusetts communities Feb. 13. It will be followed in each community with in-studio cablecast discussions on the problem and what can be done about it on a local basis.

"The regular cablecasting on our local channels of programming that teaches adults and children how to read, and how to read better.

"The pledge to use money from new subscriptions to promote literacy by buying books for deserving children.

"The creation and regular cablecasting of 30-second public service announcements urging people to emphasize reading at home, and take positive steps to fight illiteracy.

"Our active cooperation with national, state and local groups who are already fighting for literacy. This cooperation will publicize existing programs and toll-free referral numbers.

"Extensive use of our local television production facilities to create and cablecast an array of programs that discuss the problem, offer solutions and help teach reading to all segments of the population.

"Finally, said Lemieux, the company will urge subscribers to turn off their TV sets once a day and use the time reading.

American Cablesystems is a 7-year-old privately held multiple cable system operator serving more than 300,000 subscribers in Massachusetts, California, Florida, Illinois and New York.

Raiders Rebound, Defeat Brockton, 4-1

By TOM SULLIVAN

North Quincy's hockey team rebounded from a disappointing loss to Brookline to defeat Brockton, 4-1, last Saturday and regain first place in the Suburban League.

The big win, dropping Brockton into second place, improved the Raiders' record to 8-4-1. They need six points (three wins) in their last five games to qualify for the state tournament for the third year in a row.

Kevin Jago's North team faced Cambridge Rindge and Latin last night (Wednesday), will meet Quincy Saturday night at 7:50 at the Youth Arena and will play Newton North next Wednesday at 6 p.m. at the Watertown rink.

North Quincy turned in one of its better all-around performances at Brockton but it was an extremely costly victory as Mike Haynes, its leading scorer, suffered severed tendons in his ankle and was operated on Saturday night. He will be out for the rest of the season.

"This is a big loss for us, but the other boys know they will have to play even harder on offense and I think we will be all right," said Jago. "Dave Fasano (hat trick) took it upon himself to do the scoring for us and I feel we can overcome Mike's loss."

Brockton scored first when Mark Payson, the league's leading scorer, put a blistering slapshot to the far corner. After that Kevin Jeffers was tremendous in the North goal as he turned away 28 shots, stopping Payson on several occasions.

Fasano tied it, firing a wrist shot into the top corner and Fasano added a power-play goal when he tucked the puck in the net between the left post and goalie Jeff Krauthamer's pad.

Forty seconds later Payson argued for a call after he was knocked off the puck and was handed a misconduct penalty.

North then took control and Fasano added his third goal and Dave Tapper scored the other.

Jago and Brockton coach Bob D'Arcy were upset that two junior varsity officials were sent to handle such a big game.

"They're inexperienced and they became too much of a factor in the flow of the game," said Jago. "They shouldn't have been assigned to such an important game."

"I usually don't criticize the officials," said D'Arcy, "but those two officials were disgraceful. I can understand if they were making judgment calls, but they were making mistakes in interpreting the rules. We practice to play with five skaters, not three or four."

Greg McGlame had two assists and Tapper, Matt Furtado and Mark Zimmermann one each.

Earlier in the week North lost to Brookline, 6-3, as Brookline's goalie, Bill Marco, had a fantastic night.

North, which trailed, 1-0, after one period, was behind by only a 4-3 score after two but Brookline clinched it with two third-period goals.

Tapper scored twice and Pat Feeney once for the Raiders.

Jeffers had 31 saves to 24 for Marco, but many of Marco's were of the spectacular variety as North had many good scoring chances.

"We still need more consistency," said Jago. "We get up for the Brocktons, Walthams and Newtons, but when we play the Cambridge and Brooklines, we seem to take them for granted and get too complacent."

Quincy Icemen Bow To Waltham 6-3

Quincy's hockey team, having one of its most frustrating seasons, played a strong Waltham team on even terms for a period and a half last Saturday but lost, 6-3, dropping its record to 2-1-1.

Bob Sylvia's Presidents played Newton North last night (Wednesday), will play Quincy Saturday night at 7:50 at the Youth Arena and will host Brockton next Wednesday at 6:40 at the Youth Arena.

Quincy and Waltham were tied, 1-1, after a period but the Hawks took a 4-2 lead in the second period and never looked back. The Presidents were hit with 12 penalties, giving Waltham four power-play goals.

Michael Billie scored two goals and Adam MacGregor one for Quincy. Mark Sandanato had 16 saves in the Quincy nets.

Carroll In Key Role At Plymouth State

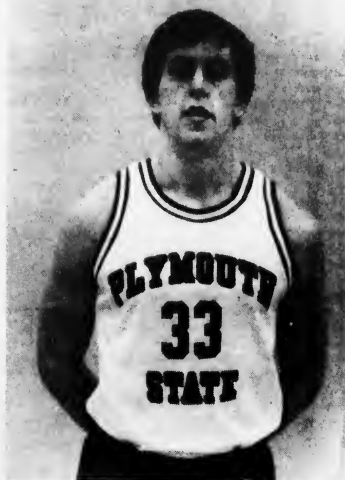

Ed Carroll, a former North Quincy High standout, is having a fine season for the Plymouth State College basketball team.

The 6-4, 200-pound starting forward is a co-captain and leads the Panthers in rebounding with an average of six a game. He also averages 8.2 points a game.

Carroll has demonstrated excellent leadership qualities and has started three of his four years at Plymouth State. He holds the single game rebounding record at PSC with 24 against New Paltz State two years ago.

Ed is a 1982 graduate of North Quincy High, where he played basketball and football. The son of Mrs. Helen T. Carroll is a senior meteorology major.

"Ed has been a very pleasant surprise for us this season," said Coach Phil Rowe. "He has given us much-needed rebounding strength and has provided excellent leadership as a co-captain and the only senior on the squad."

North Swimmers Defeat Dedham

North Quincy's swim team, enjoying one of its best seasons, defeated Dedham, 99-61, last week to improve its record to 7-3 (3-3 in the Suburban League).

Bill Walker's Raiders will compete in the league championships Friday at Brockton.

North took eight first places against Dedham with the 200 medley relay team of Dan O'Sullivan, Jason Moriarty, Fred Cawthorne and Sean Geary winning in 2:04.9.

North's individual winners were Dave Stockless in the 200 freestyle (2:09.6), Mike Melanson, 200 individual medley (2:21.1); Rick Stanton, 50 freestyle (25.4); Eric Giordano, diving (183.0 points); Steve MacKay, 100 butterfly (1:04.7); Cawthorne, 500 freestyle (6:27.3), and Ton Huynh, 100 backstroke (1:17.8).

Placing second were Huynh, 200 individual medley; O'Sullivan, 50 freestyle; Matt McCusker, diving; Geary, 100 freestyle; Paul Nitschke, 500 freestyle; and Moriarty, 100 breaststroke.

Taking third places were Brad Waltermire, 200 freestyle and 500 freestyle; Stockless, 100 butterfly; MacKay, 100 backstroke; and James Lou, 100 breaststroke.

ASBESTOS LUNG DISEASE

Asbestos dust causes serious lung ailments; the diseases appear suddenly, years after exposure. Today numerous SHIPYARD WORKERS, MASONS, and PIPEFITTERS of the 1930's-1970's have lung afflictions because they inhaled asbestos particles many years ago.

If you worked in one of those professions then and now have a lung disease, you may be eligible to receive money damages or workers' compensation. Relatives of living and deceased victims can also recover in some cases.

North Edges Newton No., 61-54

The North Quincy boys' basketball team, which won only one Suburban League game a year ago, defeated Newton North last Friday, 61-54, for its second league win, improving its record to 5-9.

The Raiders won only three games last season.

Ed Miller's Raiders played Cambridge Rindge and Latin Tuesday, will play at Marshfield Friday night at 7:30 in a non-league game and will host North Quincy next Tuesday night at 7:30.

North's full-court press in the third quarter enabled it to overtake Newton as the Raiders outscored the Tigers, 18-10, in that quarter to take a 44-38 lead, which they held the rest of the way.

Mark Scanlan scored eight of his 15 points in the third quarter, Brian Morris had 14 points and 11 rebounds and Chris Rossi scored 11 points. Joe DeGrandis and Bob Salton were outstanding on defense.

Earlier in the week the Raiders turned in a fine performance but lost to Brockton's giant team, 66-51.

Brockton's 6-10 center Curtis Jackson scored a game-high 20 points and took down 12 rebounds as the Boxers enjoyed a huge height advantage.

Despite the big height disadvantage, the Raiders kept plugging and kept the game close most of the way. They trailed only 30-24 at halftime and stayed within striking distance until the fourth quarter when they were forced to foul and Brockton took advantage of its free throws.

"I was very pleased with the way the boys performed tonight," Miller said. "Brockton has an awfully big team but our boys kept battling all the way and never gave up."

Rossi paced North with 17 points, DeGrandis and Morris had 14 each and Salton had eight points and nine assists.

Presidents Fade Against Brookline

As has happened so many times this season, the Quincy boys' basketball team stayed with its opponent for a half but faded in the last two quarters as it lost to Brookline, the Suburban League leader, 77-50, last Friday, dropping its record to 1-13.

John Franceschini's Presidents played Brockton Tuesday, will be at Cambridge Rindge and Latin Friday night and will play at North Quincy next Tuesday at 7:30. Quincy played an excellent first half as it trailed Brookline by only four points at the intermission.

However, the Indians had a big third quarter, outscoring the Presidents, 23-7, and that was that.

Don Parry had a good game with 11 points, four steals and four assists, Frank Freedman had 10 points and eight rebounds and Frank Garvey played a fine defensive game.

Earlier in the week Quincy turned in a solid performance before losing to Waltham, 57-48.

In this game the Presidents rallied in the fourth quarter, as Steve Austin scored 13 of his 19 points, to move to within five points but they couldn't overcome the Hawks' early lead.

Again it was the third quarter that sealed Quincy's fate as it was outscored, 15-4, after trailing by only 24-22 at halftime.

Parry had 13 points for the Presidents, while Robert Connolly was outstanding defensively, holding Matt Little, Waltham's leading scorer, to just eight points. In addition to his 19 points, Austin grabbed nine rebounds.

Raiderettes Qualify For Tourney, But Drop Out Of First

The North Quincy girls' basketball team became an early qualifier for the state tournament last week with its second win over Brockton, but the Raiderettes, playing what Coach Paul Bregoli called "our poorest game of the year," lost to Newton North Friday to drop out of a tie for first place in the Suburban League.

The Raiderettes will host Marshfield Friday night at 7:30 in a non-league game and will play at Quincy Tuesday at 5 o'clock.

The North girls are 12-2 and both losses were to Newton North.

Nothing seemed to go right for the Raiderettes at Newton as they lost 55-39, to drop into second place in the league.

North fell behind, 17-6, at the end of the first quarter and never recovered. Only Karen Runge could find the range with two field goals. Using a diamond zone defense, with Anne Marie Hughes covering leading scorer Carol Ventura, North was hurt by the scoring of Wendy Rogers. Ventura managed only three free throws in the quarter.

North's offense heated up in the second quarter as Nancy Flukes scored five points and Eileen Warren added three. But turnovers (20 in the game) hurt as North trailed, 32-18, at halftime.

The Raiderettes continued their sloppy play in the third quarter and fell behind by as much as 18 points before rallying late in the quarter. Runge had six points and Flukes four. North trailed by 11 going into the final quarter. The only bright spots in the finale were provided by Hughes, who scored on two driving layups, Lisa Mitton, who hit a three-point play and Jean Welby, who took three charges and came up with five steals.

Runge paced North with 12 points, Flukes had 10, Hughes finished with nine and Warren pulled down 14 rebounds.

Earlier in the week North came from behind in the fourth quarter to edge Brockton, 45-52, and qualify for the tournament after missing by one win a year ago.

The Raiderettes took command early, using a pressuring man-to-man defense and limiting the Boxers to one basket. Runge hit for five of her team's nine first quarter points and Welby added the other basket on a pretty fast break layup.

North, playing without Hughes, who was out with a badly bruised ribs, received a superb performance from Marybeth Maloney, who handled the Brockton pressure and was a defensive standout throughout the game.

North built a nine-point advantage midway through the second quarter behind the scoring of Runge and Anne McGuigan. Each hit for two baskets but the Raiderettes tied near the end of the quarter and Brockton pulled to within a point, 19-18, at the half. North did get some quality minutes out of Maureen Donovan and Mitton in the half.

North fell behind, 29-22, midway through the third quarter before Runge, with help from Flukes, began bringing the team back.

Runge made good on a three-point play and added four more points, while Flukes added four. North trailed, 33-32, after three quarters.

The Raiderettes continued to trail until Runge hit a long jumper to put them ahead, 39-38. They maintained their advantage as Flukes hit two pressure shots in the final minutes. Runge calmly sank two foul shots to seal the big win.

Runge finished with a career high 20 points and had eight rebounds, four assists and three blocked shots. Flukes, still bothered by a broken finger, had 16 points and three assists. Warren, the leading scorer, suffered through a sub-par offensive performance, but collected 17 rebounds and added two blocked shots.

"Our Brockton win was outstanding," said Bregoli. "We got terrific performances from each person who played. Maloney played especially well in a key game. Runge was excellent both on offense and off the boards."

"Our performance at Newton was probably our poorest of the year. I think our kids were too ready and were trying too hard. Each mistake made it tougher to come back in a very emotional game. I think Welby, who is playing with a slightly strained knee, played well and she showed a lot of courage, taking those three charges."

"This is the earliest North has ever qualified for the tournament. This is the third time in six years we have qualified."

Brookline Too Much For Quincy Girls

Things continue to go badly for the Quincy girls' basketball team as it lost to Brookline, 50-29, last Friday, dropping its record to 2-11.

The First Ladies played Brockton Tuesday, will host Cambridge Friday at 5 p.m.

and will be home to North Quincy next Tuesday at 5.

Junior co-captain Terry Duggan scored 10 points to pace Quincy against Brookline and senior co-captain Sue Parry added eight.

Earlier in the week Quincy bowed to Waltham, 44-38, despite one of its strongest showings of the season.

Terry Duggan had a big night for the First Ladies, scoring 20 points, 13 of them in its second half. Gayle Morrell added 10 points for Quincy, which trailed, 22-13, at the half.

North Wrestlers Pin Newton N.

The North Quincy wrestling team, enjoying one of its best seasons, improved to 9-4 with a 37-24 victory over Newton North last week.

Don Greenwood improved his record to 11-1-1 at 140 pounds with a 10-4 win. Other Raider winners were Gary Silverman, 107, pin; Dan Ward, 121, pin; Dan Pi-mental, 128, 15-7; Scott Fitzgerald, 134, pin; Kevin McCarthy, 187, pin, and Mike Mauriello, heavyweight, pin.

Earlier in the week North easily defeated Weymouth South, 54-18, with Tony Palma winning by forfeit at 100, Silverman by pin at 107, Ward by pin at 121, Fitzgerald by pin at 134, Greenwood by forfeit at 140, Al Histen by pin at 147, Trevor Ames by pin at 157, McCarthy by pin at 187 and Mauriello by forfeit in the heavyweight class.

The Raiders earlier had edged Quincy, 33-32, for their first win in 12 years over the Presidents.

North will host Randolph and Hingham Saturday at noon.

Quincy Wrestlers Lose To Waltham

Quincy's wrestling team lost to Waltham, 41-23, last week to lower its record to 0-10, but Dave Murphy and Ron Luisi continued to be outstanding.

Capacity Turnouts For Chemical Health Nights

Chemical Health Nights held recently at Quincy and North Quincy High Schools were presented to capacity turnouts.

Parents, athletes and coaches of all winter sports were eager to receive information relative to the problems of alcohol and drug abuse throughout the state and the nation.

Father John McVernon, community education director for Medplex, and a nationally-known speaker, was the featured speaker both evenings. He told the audience that chemical abuse is nothing new and has been around for years. He suggested there are three signs to watch for: When alcohol or drugs become an every day part of life, when alcohol or drugs are continually desired as a part of everyday life, and when alcohol or drugs become necessary to function when a person NEEDS them to have a good time, he or she is in trouble.

Father McVernon suggested that everyone give up alcohol or drugs for one week. "If you can do so and not miss the chemical, you are in pretty good shape," he said. "If you miss the chemical or you yearn for it and can't last the week, you have a problem. If you do last the week but can't wait for it to end, you, too, may have a problem."

A film, "The Minnesota Experience," was shown to demonstrate what that state has done to combat the problem.

Principals Lloyd Hill of Quincy and Peter Chisom of North Quincy welcomed those who attended and introduced Supt. of Schools John Osterman, who expressed his enthusiastic support for the programs.

Julie Doherty, executive director of the Mass. State Coaches Association, and Bill Gaine, assistant executive director of the Mass. Interscholastic Athletic Association (MIAA), emphasized the total backing and encouragement of their organizations, which have been supplying leadership in the movement.

Bruce MacPherson, director of health for the Melrose schools, led a communication exercise at North Quincy and Coordinator of Athletics Marty Finnegan did the same at Quincy.

Parents and athletes were exuberant in their reception of the programs with comments ranging from "this is a great night" to "the best thing that's ever happened in Quincy." Most people were in favor of many more such nights.

When questioned, Finnegan said, "This was just an effort by the athletic department to contribute to the overall program of chemical health throughout the school system. Much is ongoing within our system and we will be doing this for all sports, all seasons. We hope to carry these programs to all athletic teams in the city, park and recreation, YMCA, church leagues, etc. We all must be concerned. If we are not part of the solution, we are part of the problem."

Mayor McCauley and school committee members Frank Santoro and Margery Nigro were among those in attendance.

WEEK OF: FEBRUARY 6, 1986

AQUARIUS - January 21-February 19
Patience is accentuated in new relationships. Small gatherings are highlighted through the weekend. Relative is unexpectedly supportive but it's up to you to seek out his or her encouragement.

PISCES - February 20-March 20
You thrive in unfamiliar surroundings and may meet a new friend in a foreign setting. Financial favor may come your way now. Look for flaws before making purchases.

ARIES - March 21-April 20
Social event may lead to an important business connection. Partner is surprisingly liberated in his/her philosophy. Long-awaited family announcement arrives on or after the weekend.

TAURUS - April 21-May 22
Accent is on creativity in all spheres of life - especially domestic environment. Stay detached of friends' feuds. Behind-the-scenes happenings relate to your future role. Present yourself well.

GEMINI - May 23-June 21
An unpredictable week, with surprise news bulletins, unexpected visitors, spontaneous trips. New acquaintance may try to take you in to his/her confidence; caution is all-important here.

CANCER - June 22-July 22
Romantic situation shows signs of improvement but requires some nurturing on your part. Perception may not be as sharp as you think, rely more on logic, less on hunches.

LEO - July 23-August 22
Unhappy friend responds to your upbeat example. Expect new excitement on the job - and expect to find yourself inheriting some responsibilities. Financial news-brightener may arrive on weekend.

VIRGO - August 23-September 22
Cooling off period is required before presenting your complaints to a loved one or coworker. Unexpected repair work requires a professional hand. Platonic relationships are highlighted.

LIBRA - September 23-October 22
Expenses may be unexpectedly high and payments may be late in arriving. Health and recreation are spotlighted as this is a prime time for formulating a commonsense regime.

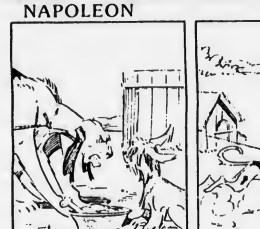

SCORPIO - October 23-November 21
Arranging functions is a current strong point during this socially upbeat period. Commitments made now can haunt you in the future; avoid overextending yourself in this area.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22-December 22
Recent career decision is subject to modification this week. Financial planning is favored through much of the period. In relationships, however, spontaneity is the current keyword.

CAPRICORN - December 23-January 20
Opportunities open up for joining clubs or taking on part-time assignments. Domestic obligations may become less costly but more time-consuming. Visitors may arrive ahead of schedule.

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
Idealistic, intellectual and occasionally inflexible. For you, relationships exist on both a mental and an emotional plane. Shifts in career direction or academic interests may develop late in 1986. In friendship or romance, a more spontaneous approach can lead to an enhanced partnership.

BORN THIS WEEK
February 6th, actor Rip Torn; 7th, actor Eddie Bracken; 8th, actor Jack Lemmon; 9th, actress Mia Farrow; 10th, singer Roberta Flack; 11th, actress Kim Stanley; 12th, actor Lorne Greene.

All Night Parking Permits Suspended In Snow Emergency

Quincy motorists are reminded that all night parking permits are suspended in the event of a snow emergency.

Vehicles must be removed from the street until plowing operations are completed, said Capt. Fred Laracy of the day uniform division.

If the vehicle is not removed, it will be subject to towing, Laracy said.

"We've been lucky so far this winter as far as storms," said Laracy, "but we're due for one and we want to remind motorists of the restrictions."

No all night parking is allowed in Quincy without a night parking permit, according to Laracy.

With the permit, motorists are allowed to park on the even numbered side of the street in even numbered years, and on the odd numbered side of the street in the odd numbered years, Laracy said.

Traffic Crackdown Continues In Square

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The traffic crackdown in Quincy Square has yet to produce a decrease in the numbers of violations, and police say they will continue their efforts until they see a difference.

Seventy written citations carrying fines of $25 to $50 were issued to motorists in the vicinity of Hancock and Temple Sts. from Jan. 22 to 31, said Capt. Fred Laracy, who is in charge of the day uniform division.

Numerous verbal warnings according to the circumstances have also been given by the two officers who are assigned there full time, Laracy said.

"Hopefully, we're making some progress," said Laracy, who noted the crackdown will continue for at least two more weeks.

Most of the citations involve going through a red or pedestrian light, said Laracy, and the majority have been issued in mid afternoon.

When a reduction in the number of citations does appear, the officers will be moved to another part of the city but the beat men will continue to monitor the situation and enforce the laws, he said.

There have been no repeat violators, said Laracy who noted that there was a similar crackdown prior to Christmas.

Other violations, such as warrants, unregistered, uninsured, and defective vehicles, have been discovered in a number of cases where motorists were stopped, Laracy said.

Speeding has not been much of a factor because of the number of traffic lights in the area, according to Laracy.

Laracy reminded pedestrians that they are expected to obey the law, as well, to adhere to lights and cross at proper times and locations.

New Power Generator For Atherton Hough School

Mayor Francis X. McCauley has signed a contract for $17,400 awarded to F.M. Emergency Generator of Canton, for the purchase and installation of a generator for the Atherton Hough School.

McCauley said that the school is a designated shelter for the Houghs Neck area in the event of a natural disaster such as a heavy storm or hurricane.

The generator will insure that there is power in the community if it should suffer a power failure.

BURGLAR-PROOF EXTERIOR DOOR

QUESTION: Our home was robbed last night. The burglar entered through a back door by using a credit card to slide the pin back, according to the police. What's the best kind of a burglar-proof lock for exterior doors?

ANSWER: On all hinged exterior doors, you should use a dead-lock. A separate pin on the flat side of the latch tongue stays stuck in the strike even when a burglar pushes back the latch tongue.

For maximum security, you can equip exterior doors with a separate night lock. In the latter, the lock and strike fit together like a mortise and tenon joint, and there is no way a burglar can pry them apart.

THERE ARE ways to make your front and rear entrance doors burglar-proof. Do it!

40 Ceremonies A Year

Weddings Nicer Pa

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The first time that City Clerk John Gillis performed a marriage ceremony, he was more nervous than the bride and groom.

"I had to look up the procedure," said Gillis, who is a Justice of the Peace by virtue of his office.

Twenty seven years later, it's second nature to Gillis who performs about 40 such ceremonies a year.

"It's one of the nicer parts of this job," said

Gillis. "I've met a lot of nice people. Everyone is happy -- usually."

The ceremonies range from simple to elaborate, and can take from five to 40 minutes. The most popular months are October and June, and there's usually a wedding on Valentine's Day.

There is a $25 fee for the ceremony, and $10 for a license.

The reason for going to a justice of the peace can range from differences in religion to the fact that it is not as costly as some other ceremonies, according to Gillis.

The location can be anywhere from the city clerk's office to a reception hall to a more creative spot.

"One couple wanted to be married at the summit in the Blue Hills on Christmas Eve," said Gillis.

"It was freezing. There was no snow, but it was bitter cold."

"The ceremony was supposed to be at 8 p.m., but I kept walking around and couldn't find the place until 9:30 p.m.," said Gillis, who added that the man and woman were skiers and were dressed in ski outfits.

Gillis also tells of the time that he was supposed to perform a ceremony at the Morrisette Legion Post, West Quincy.

"The bride never showed up," said Gillis. "After a while, both families opened the bar and ended up having a terrific time even though the wedding didn't take place."

's Job

Ceremonies in his office have been memorable as well, he said.

Members of the clerk's office have served as witnesses on many occasions.

"Years ago, we used to save the dots from paper punches and use them as confetti," said Josephine Carnali, assistant city clerk.

There have been weddings involving teenagers, senior citizens and newcomers to this coun-

Frank Kearns Named To Housing Authority

Frank J. Kearns, 73, of 162 West Elm Ave., Wollaston, has been appointed by Mayor Francis McCauley to a five year term on the Quincy Housing Authority, effective Feb. 28.

The appointment is subject to approval by the City Council.

If the expected approval is given, Kearns will replace Frank Terranova, an appoint-tee of Mayor Arthur Tobin, who has served for five years, two of them as chairman.

"We want to thank Frank for his good service over the years," said McCauley.

Kearns is well known in the area, said McCauley, and was elected last year to the Silver-haired Legislature.

Active in community organizations, he serves on the Board of Directors for the following: Quincy Council of Aging; Quincy Community Action; South Shore Elder Services and the South Shore Transportation Brokerage Committee.

Kearns is treasurer of South Shore Elder Services, Acting Treasurer for Quincy Community Action and Chairman of the Nutrition

No Insurance On Building

City Must Pay $100,000 Fire Loss At Vo-Tech

The city, which has no insurance on its public buildings, will have to pay from its own pocket to repair $100,000 in damage to the Quincy Vocational Technical School following a three alarm fire Monday.

"The insurance premiums are so high that we find it better to self-insure our buildings," said McCauley.

"The premiums for one year of insurance would probably be more than the damages at Vo Tech," according to McCauley, who said it has been the city's practice in recent years not to insure its buildings.

The money will come out of available funds or will be appropriated as a new item, he said.

"We'll meet the cost whatever it is," McCauley said. "I don't anticipate a problem finding the money to fix up the school."

The fire Monday morning started in the spray booth of an auto body classroom at Vo Tech, according to Deputy Chief Thomas Gorman.

There were no reported injuries, he said. Acting Chief Carl Valenti was also on the scene.

Prior to the fire, a woman complaining of chest pains was transported by Bay State Ambulance to Quincy City Hospital. The incident was unrelated to the fire, according to Bay State.

About 650 students and 50 faculty members were evacuated in an orderly fashion, said Gorman, and there was no panic despite the heavy smoke.

Principal Joseph Mazzarella said that most of the students were sent to Quincy High School and were dismissed at 2 p.m. after being allowed to pick up their coats at Vo Tech.

Cause of the fire is under investigation by the Quincy Police Department, Quincy Fire Prevention Bureau and State Fire Marshal's Office, according to Gorman.

At McGrath's Request

'Limited Moratorium' On Night Tagging

If you park your car on a Quincy street at night rather than in a driveway or off street, you have a two week grace period to make other arrangements or obtain an overnight parking permit.

Police chief Francis Finn said Tuesday that he is calling a two week, limited moratorium on ticketing for overnight parking, effective immediately.

"We'll just tag on complaints," said Finn, who was requested by Council President Stephen McGrath to call the moratorium.

The moratorium will not apply in the case of a snow emergency, Finn noted.

In a letter to Finn, McGrath stated, "A two week moratorium would enable residents who do not have off street parking to obtain the proper overnight parking permit."

"Many residents have contacted me to say that they were caught unaware at the sudden enforcement of the overnight parking ban and are being ticketed."

"A two week moratorium on this ticketing would be a fair way to enable people to have a chance to make parking arrangements or to obtain the proper permit."

"I understand the public safety concern of the chief, but I think in the absence of a snow emergency, we should give people a break and give them time to get a permit," said McGrath.

No all night parking is allowed on Quincy streets without a night parking permit, according to police.

With the permit, motorists are allowed to park on the even numbered side of the street in even numbered years, and on the odd numbered side of the street in the odd numbered years.

License Granted For Antique Shop

A second hand license for Second Wind Antiques, 1043 Sea St., was granted by the License Board at Tuesday morning's meeting.

The license was granted to Wayne Grono of Whitman with the stipulations that any signs be approved by the Building Inspector, and no items be displayed on the sidewalk.

Councilor Patricia Toland spoke in favor of the applicant.

Grono wrote in his application that he would sell such items as furniture, glassware and pictures.

He said the site was formerly rented by Vincent Sullivan, who also sold used articles and has moved to larger quarters down the street.

The matter had been continued from the Feb. 4 meeting to Feb. 18, but was moved ahead at the request of the applicant.

Valenti Stays On As Acting Fire Chief At Men's Urging

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Acting Fire Chief Carl Valenti will remain in that position at least until a new civil service list is established in the late winter or spring of 1988.

The announcement by Mayor Francis McCauley last week ended speculation which arose when it was learned that Valenti did not pass the second part of the Civil Service exam given last summer. He had passed the first part.

Valenti, whose score on the second part was 65.7, is appealing the grade but that is expected to take several months. Passing grade is 70.

He will take the Civil Service Test for chief again in March of 1987, said McCauley. There will be such a test this March, but the city missed the deadline of December to petition for it because it did not know there would be a need, according to McCauley.

Deputy Chief Joseph Jackson passed both parts of the test, according to McCauley, but said last summer and again last week that he is happy with his position and is not interested in becoming chief.

As acting chief, Valenti earns the same salary, $48,854, as permanent chief, McCauley said.

There was speculation that Valenti would ask to be returned to his former position of deputy chief.

"What really convinced me to stay was overwhelming support from all the officers and men who wanted me to stay and be their chief," said Valenti. "That swayed me."

"I discussed it with my family and they were in total agreement that I should continue on as chief."

"I'll take the (Civil Service) test when it comes up again."

"I really owe it to the men on the job, the Fire Department, the mayor and myself to stay on and give it another shot."

"If I walk away now, it will be like quitting. I never was a quitter."

"I'll accept this and try again next year."

Level Funding Course In Budget Hearings

Budget hearings for the city's departments are going smoothly, according to Mayor Francis McCauley, and April 7 is to be the target date for presenting a budget to the City Council.

"We're setting a course f level funding," said McCauley. "But some departments in which unions have settled will have a higher budget than last year."

The hearings began last Friday and Saturday, according to the mayor.

Meetings were scheduled yesterday (Wednesday) with the City Council president, Election Department, City Clerk's office, and License Board; Data Processing, and Building Department.

On Saturday, hearings will be held with the Fire and Police Departments, Parking Areas, Civil Defense, Animal Control, and Traffic Control.

Hearings on the Department of Public Works and Unclassified will be held Feb. 22, McCauley said.

The results of the hearings, as well as the Cherry Sheets, will than be reviewed, according to the mayor.

Letter Carriers Should Have

Safe Access To Homes

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
Last year letter carriers experienced a high incidence of injuries during inclement weather as a result of slips, trips and falls. The vast majority of these accidents could have been prevented if walkways and porches had been kept in good repair, clear of obstacles or had been shoveled, salted or sanded.

Last winter, a letter carrier suffered a serious injury because of a fall he took on a patron's property. This carrier is now out of a job and can no longer carry mail.

Sanding and sanding should only be done as a temporary measure to the problem. Eventually the salt and sand eat through the ice, the ice becomes loose, your letter carrier steps on it and takes a fall causing a serious injury. A safe path should also be cleared to your adjoining neighbors property line because it is a safety hazard for letter carriers to walk in the streets to deliver the mail. When a letter carrier suffers a serious injury due to negligence on your part, you as the home owner are personally liable for any medical and lost work time and injury compensation costs.

Where threatening walking conditions compromise letter carriers safety, curtailments of mail delivery can be instituted at a specific residence.

If you are one of the many customers who always maintain a safe route of delivery, we want to thank you for being responsible. Safe access to your property benefits us as well as all friends and family who visit you. We care about our employees and ask you to ensure safe access to and from your property.

A 'Thank You' For Inmate Books

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The Norfolk County Legal Secretaries Association would like to thank all of those persons who donated books for the enjoyment of inmates in local prisons.

Marie B. O'Neill, PLS, of Dedham, chairman of the project, recently delivered all books collected to the Dedham Jail and to the Women's Prison in Framingham. The books were gratefully accepted at both facilities.

Mrs. Florence E. McNeill, Scholarship Chairman of the Association, would also like to thank everyone who supported the Scholarship Committee's giftwrapping efforts recently at Marshall's, Pleasant Shops, South Weymouth, to raise funds for its annual scholarships awarded to students planning to follow a legal secretarial career.

Best wishes to all supporters for the New Year!

A Big Thank You

I also want to thank all my friends for the lovely cards they sent to me. A big thank you."

A Valentine Poem

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
I've been writing poetry, music, stories and one liners for almost 3 years, and I wrote this one last December. I wonder if it could be used on next Thursdays edition (Feb. 13), maybe as a Valentine Day poetry. I've seen poetry from time to time in your paper. As I extended my arm, to my lady with charm. She responded with a beautiful smile.

Then we started to dance, to music that did entrance. We did dance in elegant style. We went round and round, with joy that did abound. As we danced the night away. Too quick it seems, the music stopped, our dreams. Will have to wait, until we dance another day.

Can McGrath Or Sheets Make It?

The City Council presidency has long been considered the second most powerful political office in the city of Quincy.

There's no doubt that the man (maybe someday, woman) who wields the gavel in the council chamber has a lot of political clout.

He presides over the council and can effectively push matters through or stall them.

And he perhaps is the most sought out councillor for comment if the mayor and the council get into a shooting match over an issue.

But as far as being the political springboard to the mayor's office, the job seems to be somewhat overrated.

President Council President Steve McGrath is the 41st man to hold the post since Quincy became a city in 1889.

And, of the 40 before McGrath, only 11 went on to become mayor. They were:

Henry Fairbanks, John Thompson, Charles Bryant, Joseph Whiton, Charles Ross, Thomas Burgin, David McIntosh (Plan E), Amelio Della Chiesa, James McIntyre, Joseph LaRaia and Arthur Tobin.

McGRATH

McCAULEY

Myron Lane and George Burke were both elected Norfolk County district attorney. Clifton Baker, William Jenness and Charles Shea were elected state representatives.

But for most of the 40, the high spot of their political careers was being City Council president.

As time marches on, most of them are forgotten. Like Herbert M. Federhen, for example.

BURKE

Unless you're a Quincy history buff you're probably asking: "Who?"

SHEETS

wouldn't mind being the next.

Can they tilt back?

ELEANOR REIDY, Mayor Francis McCauley's personal secretary, is planning to retire around mid-April. Eleanor, who was with McGrath when he was president of the former Shipbuilders Cooperative Bank, joined him at City Hall when he took office in 1982. She retired in January, 1984 but came back in September of that year.

But this time she will stay in retirement to spend more time with her husband, Ted.

Eleanor is one of the most popular figures at City Hall. Always with a pleasant smile — doesn't know what a frown is.

ELEANOR

THE HOSKINS FAMILY of Streater, Ill. who recently visited the area as guests of Sterling Middle School students who "adopted" their cancer-cured daughter, Emily, have gone home with fond memories. Also, with some live lobsters.

And, they told Sterling teacher Robert Mattson they are going to buy a hunting dog. "They're going to call him 'Boston'," Mattson says. (Gee, why not Quincy?)

try. A deaf-mute couple was married with the help of an interpreter, he said.

The wedding that stands out in his mind, however, involved a young couple whose parents thought they were too young to marry. They were 17 and 18, said Gillis.

"They came in and I married them. She was beautiful and he was handsome.

"I see them today and they're happily married and have four kids.

"Everything worked out fine. Every time I see them, I smile.

"It's a success story. A happy ending."

Gillis said he has never talked a couple out of getting married. "It's not my job," he said.

The bride and groom can add to the usual ceremony or eliminate parts of it, said Gillis.

But there's one poem that Gillis especially likes to read.

"If they go by it, they'll have a happy marriage," said Gillis, who was married to his wife, Violet, 34 years ago at St. John's Church, Quincy Center.

Take time to work — it is the price of success.

Take time to think — it is the source of power.

Take time to play — it is the secret of perpetual youth.

Take time to read — it is the fountain of wisdom.

Take time to be friendly.

It is the road to happiness.

Take time to dream — it is hitching your wagon to a star.

Take time to love and be loved.

It is the privilege of gods.

Take time to look around —

It is too short a day to be selfish.

Take time to laugh — it is the music of the soul."

$350,000 Energy Fund Aids State Needy

Quincy residents in need of assistance to help pay overdue energy bills, brought on because of a financial crisis, can still take advantage of a unique program funded by the state's energy companies and their customers.

The fund, established last November and administered by the Salvation Army, has over $350,000 still available for distribution to needy Bay State households who can qualify for the Good Neighbor Energy Fund.

According to the mayor's office households could receive up to $200 in assistance if they are unable to pay for a deliverable fuel or a 60-day outstanding electric or gas bill. Also, a household must earn between $7,875 for a family of one, to $28,500 for a family of six.

"The money is available for people who earn too much to qualify for government energy assistance, but find that their income is not enough to meet all of their energy needs," Lt. Col. Donald Seiler, Salvation Army Divisional Commander said.

Students, Host Families Sought For Exchange Program

Linda Jowett, Boston area counselor for the American International Youth Student Exchange Program announces her organization is currently seeking students and host families for this year's program.

At present, American host families are being sought for 25 students from high schools in Europe and other foreign countries for the 1986 school year.

Jowett also said they are seeking American high schoolers, ages 16-19, who would like to spend a high school year with a European family or to participate in a 4-week family stay in Europe this summer.

Those interested in participating can contact Jowett at 764-4749.

Quincy Pound Animals To Be Listed In Sun

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN
Animals in the Quincy Dog Pound will soon have a greatly increased chance of being adopted.

For the first time, a weekly listing of the animals and their descriptions will be available to local newspapers, including The Quincy Sun. Other shelters on the South Shore regularly submit such information which is listed in an "Around the Pounds" column.

In addition, reports on the animals will be available in the City Clerk's office at Quincy City Hall.

The changes were requested by members of animal advocate groups who met with Mayor Francis McCauley last Thursday in a City Hall meeting.

"We had a good meeting with John McDuff, president of the Quincy Animal League, and Althea Griffin, president of the South Shore Humane Society," said McCauley. "Acting Dog Officer Phyllis Berlucci also attended."

"McDuff and Mrs. Griffin are interested in animals, especially dogs, in not only the city of Quincy but also the South Shore area."

"They had some requests relative to the advertisement of dogs for adoption in local newspapers and we're going to be able to do that."

"We're also going to make available reports on dogs in the city of Quincy."

"My administration has long been concerned about the condition of the dog pound. It's in antiquated condition; it's been there for many years."

"Just recently, we selected an architect and we are going to get an appropriation to design plans for a modern, expanded dog pound in the City of Quincy. It is much needed."

"We expect to be going to the City Council shortly on that matter. Once the designs done, we will have construction underway for a dog pound that will certainly be much more suitable than the present one."

McDuff also called the meeting, the first between the parties, "excellent."

"The mayor said his door is always open to us," he said.

QUINCY'S DOG POUND was among the subjects discussed at a recent meeting between the mayor, acting dog officer and animal advocates. The mayor said he will submit an order for a $34,000 appropriation for an architect's design for a new pound at the Tuesday, Feb. 18 City Council meeting.

McDuff also underlined the need to advertise the local pets for adoption.

"In 1985, 165 dogs were euthanized and only 65 adopted," said McDuff.

"Mrs. Griffin prepares a list of adoptive pets, and receives excellent cooperation from other communities."

Mrs. Griffin added "We were asked all the time, 'why aren't the Quincy dogs described so we know what's there?'"

"Fifty to 80% of the dogs in the 'Around the Pound' column are adopted," said Mrs. Griffin, who said she presented the mayor with 1200 signatures of people who want to see Quincy dogs listed in the column.

The animal advocates also expressed satisfaction that a drug known as T-64 which is used in euthanizing animals has been banned in Massachusetts since Jan. 13.

The drug, which has curare, a poison which paralyzes, was used in inter-cardiac methods of euthanasia, said Mrs. Griffin.

She said that the procedure involved putting an animal to sleep by injecting the drug into the heart after wrestling it to the ground.

"To put a needle into the heart of an animal would be likened to putting a pencil into the heart of a human being. I was told by a pharmacist," said Mrs. Griffin.

She said that Mr. Berlucci, dog officer before he became ill, told her that he used the inter-cardiac method of euthanasia.

"When I think of all the Quincy pets who have gone in this manner, it appalls me," said Mrs. Griffin.

"We're very happy about the drug becoming illegal, so good things are happening," said Mrs. Griffin.

McDuff said that now, if the animal has not been claimed or adopted in 10 days, the dog officer takes animals to be euthanized to a veterinarian who has been selected.

"In an emergency, the dog officer is allowed to shoot the animal," noted Mrs. Griffin.

"I hope because the animal's 10 days are up or because there isn't money in the budget to take it to the vet, that could be construed as an emergency."

McDuff expressed optimism for the future.

"I think we've taken rather tremendous strides over the past couple of years," said McDuff, whose Quincy Animal League is entering its fifth year.

"This was something that no one seemed to be taking a careful look at, and I think at this point, we have a mayor who is concerned about it."

"Apparently the City Council is concerned from statements they have made about funding a new dog pound."

"I think once we get away from the pound, we should start terming it a shelter and hopefully it will be that."

"We seem to have called attention to some of the problems, and I think it shows promise for the future."

"Mrs. Berlucci was quite cooperative with us in answer to our questions, and I would hope that we are entering a new era of good will between the animal organizations and the shelter."

"It has not been that way over the years, and I hope the time will come when even our members will be satisfied with the condition there."

Quincy's Yesterdays

Tax Rate Seen Rising Above $50.80 Mark

City Manager William J. Deegan Jr. submitted to the City Council an all-time record high city budget of $13,960,027.43, nearly a million dollars more than 1953.

"It may be impossible to avert a tax increase next year," he warned.

The Quincy tax rate for 1950 was $50.80 per thousand.

Three quarters of the budget increase was listed for items such as education, debt service and interest, and state and county taxes, over which the city manager had no control.

VA OFFICE THREATENED

Employees of the Quincy Veterans Administration office, located in the Chamber of Commerce building in Quincy Square, were waiting to learn if the office would be one of 17 closed on April 1.

Since its opening in 1946, the office has been shut down for four months in 1948 and threatened with closure in 1951, 1952 and 1953.

Herbert F. Carroll, contact representative in charge, said the office handles about 800 personal requests and 500 telephone calls a month.

COMFORT STATION URGED

Z. Cranston Smith, chairman of the parking and traffic committee of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, got behind the move to build a comfort station in Quincy Center.

A request for $60,000 to construct such a facility was contained in City Manager Deegan's 1954 budget.

"A comfort station in Quincy Center is overdue for many years," said Smith, noting that it was first proposed in 1918 by William A. Bradford, later mayor of Quincy.

RENT BOARD RIVALS

Arthur I. Burgess, former city solicitor and state representative, was elected chairman of the Quincy Rent Control Board, replacing Joseph P. McDonough, who didn't want to go.

McDonough said he planned to appeal to the State Supreme Judicial Court his dismissal from the Board by City Manager Deegan. He said he still considers himself a member and chairman.

'Peace Sunday' Observance At Bethany Church

World Peace will be the theme of the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday, Feb. 16 in Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Center. The usual 9 a.m. chapel service will not be held.

Guest speaker will be the Rev. Mr. Franklin A. Dorman from Cambridge, a member of the administrative staff at Harvard Divinity School. His sermon is titled: "Spiritual Activism: The Word Made Flesh."

Both of Bethany's pastors, the Rev. J. William Arnold and the Rev. Joel F. Huntington, will participate in leading the worship and liturgy.

Marilyn Bulli, soprano soloist, will sing two selections. The first is "Aus Liebe" from St. Matthew's Passion by Bach, and the second, "How Beautiful Are the Feet" from Messiah by Handel.

The chancel choir, under the direction of Peter E. Krasinski, organist, will present as the offertory, "The Psalm of David" by Lang.

At 11:30 to 12:30 in the chapel, there will be an Open Forum with Mr. Dorman for questions and discussion.

Mr. Dorman is a graduate of Drew Theological School, and also holds degrees from Middlebury College, Princeton University, and the University of Madrid, Spain.

An ordained minister of the United Church of Christ, he serves as the Peace and Justice Coordinator for the U.C.C. Massachusetts Conference.

Rev. Dorman has been an instructor at Tabor and Pingry private academies. From 1966 to 1971 he was the pastor of North Congregational Church, Amherst, and then served as Campus Minister and as Head of Residence at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, before coming to Harvard in 1979.

Rev. Dorman has been active in various peace and justice movements for the past 20 years. Most recently, he has organized the "Waging Peace Conference" at Harvard in 1981; and helped to arrange the "Bridges for Peace" Soviet Peace Committee visit, 1983. He was one of the organizers of the "Massachusetts Witness for Peace in Nicaragua," visiting that country in 1984.

He will be leaving for a second visit to Nicaragua Feb. 22.

The worship service on "Peace" will be broadcast live at 10 a.m. over station WJDA, 1300 k.c.

Sunday School will be in session from 10 to 11 a.m. with classes for pre-school through 8th grade. Nursery care will be provided for babies and toddlers, under the supervision of Allana O'Shea, Bethany's early childhood coordinator. The youth fellowship will meet Sunday at 6:30 p.m. in the parish house.

At 11 a.m., there will be a fellowship hour in the Allen Parlor following the worship service. Persons from the community are invited to attend the Peace service and the fellowship hour.

There will be a Lenten devotional service Wed., Feb. 19, at 7 a.m. in the Bethany Chapel. Paul H. Sangree, a senior at Andover Newton Theological School and a member of Bethany, will give the meditation on "Women and the Cross." Following the 30-minute service, a light breakfast will be served. Both the brief worship and the breakfast are open to the public and people can leave for school or work by 7:45.

Also on Wednesday evening, Feb. 19, from 7:30 to 9 p.m., Pastor Arnold is teaching a six-weeks course on "The Covenant," studying the Bible as a whole, tracing God's plan of salvation for the world as revealed in the scriptures. This course is free and is also open to the public.

For information concerning Bethany's ministries and programs, please contact the church office at 479-7300.

Marriage Vows To Be Renewed At St. John's Valentine Liturgy

Married couples may renew their marriage vows at a special Valentine liturgy Saturday, Feb. 15, at 7 p.m. at St. John's Church, Quincy Center.

The ceremony will take place during the regular 7 p.m. Mass.

The Spiritual Development Commission of the Parish Council has planned the liturgy to honor the concept of devoted family life and to provide a source of sanctification for those parishioners who dedicate themselves to the married state.

The Valentine liturgy represents an opportunity for husbands and wives to renew their marriage vows collectively, to offer prayers of thanksgiving and ask the blessing of God upon their union, their homes and families.

It is suggested that the couple in attendance take seats in the center section of the church.

All are welcome, from newlyweds to diamond wedding anniversary celebrants.

Universalist Executive Guest Preacher At United First Parish

Newly appointed executive of the Massachusetts Bay District of the Unitarian Universalist Assn. will be guest preacher Sunday, Feb. 16, at the United First Parish Church of the Presidents in Quincy Square.

Having assumed his duties Feb. 1, Dr. Timothy Ashton will speak "In Terms of Eternity," at 10:30 a.m. in the parish hall.

Dr. Ashton's first settlement was in Brockton, in 1970. During his 10 year pastorate there, he was active in community religious, political, and social service areas. He has been a volunteer in youthful offender probation counseling, community mental health, and halfway house administration and community relations. He was a member of the Brockton Housing Authority Grievance Panel, Chairman of the Friends of Sun House, and President of the Brockton Ministers' Union.

During his New England ministry, Dr. Ashton was President of the Ballou-Channing District of Unitarian Universalist Churches in Southeastern Massachusetts and Rhode Island and President of the ministers' association in that district. He was a Board member of the Doolittle Home, Inc., in Foxboro, MA, and the International Association for Religious Freedom. He was Vice-president of Senexet House Retreat Center in South Woodstock, CT.

Valentine Breakfast At First Squantum Church

There was a Valentine Breakfast for everyone in the church at the First Church of Squantum Sunday. It was sponsored by young people in the church to raise money for summer camperships and was supervised by Hazel Mayne, Patti Hurd, Ruth Swenson, Ellen Ogilvie and Grace Holmes. At the same time, there was also a Valentine Party for all the children in the Sunday School.

After the breakfast, the congregation gathered for a morning worship service led by teen-agers in the church. David Scott gave the call to worship. Robert Dixey led the opening prayer. Scott Catton read the scripture, Deborah Stohlberg made the announcements, Andrew Ogilvie gave the pastoral prayer, and Chris Dixey led the prayer of dedication, the three parts of the sermon, which was entitled "What We Believe About God," were preached by young people as well. Mimi Hurd spoke about God the Father, David Williams about God the Son, and Susan Scott about God the Holy Spirit.

Three choirs sang during the service. The Cherub Choir, directed by Mimi Hurd and Susan Scott, sang "Love Is Something You Give Away." The Youth Choir sang "Brighten My Soul With Sunshine" by Joyce Eilers. The Chancel Choir sang "The Lord Is A Mighty God" by Mendelssohn as arranged by Hopson. Mary Ruth Scott directed the Youth Choir and the Chancel Choir.

Evelyn and Sandy Ahearn were the greeters; Sarah Midram and Karen Reister supervised the nursery; Mildred Cunningham and Hazel Mayne hosted the Fellowship Hour after the service.

Last week Dr. Langevin talked about the space shuttle tragedy in a sermon that he preached at both morning services. The sermon, entitled "When Tragedy Comes," was based on a text from the Gospel of Luke: "While they were talking and discussing together, Jesus himself drew near and went with them. But their eyes were kept from recognizing him." (24:15-16)

At the early service, guitarists Andy Ogilvie, David Williams and Mary Ruth Scott accompanied the congregational singing. Krista Olson and Marci Hurd were the ushers.

During the second service, the greeters were Helen Miller and Renee Johnson, the ushers were Tore Wallin and Stewart Scott and the Fellowship Hour was hosted by Barbara and Marcia Anderson. The Chancel Choir sang Marcello-Weinhorst's anthem, "O Hold Thou Me Up."

On Wednesday, the annual Lenten program began. The program is similar to what has been held in other years: a dinner is served at 6 p.m. for everyone in the church, followed by a time for worship and learning at 7 p.m. This year the pastor's topic is "The Ministry of Jesus."

There will be two services at the church on Sunday: the guitar service at 8:30 a.m. and the traditional service at 10:30 a.m.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Of all the national heroes emerging in history, George Washington was one of the most unlikely.

By 1770 he was one of the richest men in America. He was a conservative. He was not an intellectual, and could not vie in discussions of political and cultural form with such scholars as Jefferson, Hamilton and Madison. Yet, these colonial intellectuals admired him for his integrity of character and his uncanny ability to rally the colonists to his cause.

Before the war, Washington was not one of the firebrands demanding separation. But once the London government resorted to armed force, and once he was chosen to lead counter-force, he changed and supported permanent separation. He brushed off all conciliatory gesture of the Crown. He had lost faith in it and, being an obstinate man, he was not prone to start something he couldn't finish. He would hang first, and he would have, had he lost!

Thus Washington took his place irrevocably with the American "radicals." In the 1780's, with the war formally won, he saw that a loose federation of sovereign colonies wouldn't work. His influence was paramount toward revising the Articles of Confederation, and when he saw it as impractical, he led the convention in writing a new Constitution.

This is roughly the saga of one man in the birth of our Republic. It was a miracle that it happened, but it did... We're glad it did...

License Granted For Valentine's Day Party

A one day all alcoholic license was granted for a party Friday night with a little help from St. Valentine.

The radiology department of University Hospital, Boston, requested a one-day all alcoholic license for a Valentine's Day party Friday, 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. at 50 East Squantum St., an abandoned church next to North Quincy High School.

License Board members hesitated to give their approval without knowledge of the hall's suitability for such an event.

Carlos Fernandez of Quincy told the board his group had given a deposit for rental of the hall last November.

"It's Valentine's Day. Let's show a big heart for change," said City Clerk John Gillis.

The license was granted subject to approval by the Building Department which was to inspect the premises that afternoon.

Correction

Margaret Nigro is a newly installed member of the Quincy School Committee.

It was incorrectly reported in the Feb. 6 edition of The Quincy Sun that she was defeated in the November election.

NATURAL GAS THE MODERN ALTERNATIVE

Take a big load off laundry costs with a new gas dryer.

- Nothing dries clothes more economically than a natural gas dryer. Clean, efficient gas dries more loads than electric dryers do for the same cost.
- Nothing dries clothes faster than a natural gas dryer. It moves more warm air through the drying drum.
- A reliable gas dryer maintains its efficiency year after year. Your dryer lasts longer.

Burning calories before you eat them? Take control with a gas range.

- Professional chefs demand natural gas ranges for the precise temperature control they need.
- Only a clean, gas flame adjusts instantly from high heat to low, low to high and everything in between.
- A gas range's flexible flame hugs every size pot and pan perfectly, for total heat distribution.
- With gas, there's no warm-up or cool-down delay. You start cooking instantly, and have control to stop boiling over, burning and spattering.

Members of that department recently visited Eric at Quincy City Hospital and presented him with an honorary Deputy Sheriff's plaque and badge and large AM-FM stereo cassette recorder. Eric has since been transferred to Spaulding Rehabilitation Center.

Clapp, an officer with the Norfolk County Sheriff's Department, designed posters and hung up donation envelopes for the drive which was approved by Marshall.

Kenneth Runge, assistant chief of transportation at the Sheriff's Department, also helped make the collection a success.

$2,970 Grant For School Drug Abuse Education

The city's school system recently received a $2,970 grant from the State Board of Education to help curtail student drug and alcohol abuse.

The grant was one of 41 distributed to school districts. Totalling $92,213, in an effort to see anti-drug abuse curricula in place in all state schools beginning in the elementary grades. Another $7,787 will be approved later for additional school districts. Quincy schools coordinator for social health, John Mahoney, and Mary Lydon, a physical education school department head, accepted the grant from Governor Michael Dukakis and state Commissioner of Education John H. Lawson, at a State House ceremony.

Commissioner Lawson said his office has been working with the governor's Alliance Against Drugs over the past two years on a comprehensive approach to the problem of student drug abuse. "This includes not only the educational programs that are essential in teaching young people the effects of drug and alcohol abuse and training teachers how to address the issue, but also community wide efforts coordinated with police, community leaders, parents, and public health treatment and prevention professions," he said.

The governor said he was pleased to see communities mobilizing to combat the problem of student drug abuse.

... a very special bedroom

Cherry Towne is one of the finest expressions today of a time when furniture was crafted in perfection. Just as their Colonial ancestors had done 200 years before, craftsmen use only the finest solid hardwoods - no veneers - and solid hardware - no veneers - and apply a rich Cherry finish that's hand rubbed to a special glow. But the quality doesn't stop with the beauty and elegance. It extends deep to every corner. On drawer bottoms, dust proofing and backs that are made from genuine wood. There's so much more, but you'll see the inherent beauty from first glance. For this is Cherry Towne - the finest.

No Insurance On Vo-Tech Fire Loss

The fire extended from the classroom on the first floor to the roof by way of the ventilation ducts which started fires in utility rooms on the second, third and fourth floors, Gorman said.

Those fires were quickly controlled by interior standpipes, which are like hydrants inside the building, Gorman said.

The first alarm was sounded at 10 a.m. and the fire was brought under control in about 15 minutes, according to Gorman.

The spray booth was destroyed as was some vent ductwork and some timbers in the roof support vent system, Gorman said.

There was also considerable smoke damage in the building, but the school was later ventilated and classes resumed Tuesday.

Fourteen pieces of Quincy fire apparatus were on the scene, as well as a Boston Ladder Truck. Quincy stations were covered by mutual aid from Braintree, Weymouth and Milton Fire Departments.

Gorman commended those at Quincy Vocational Technical School for evacuating the students without a problem.

He also said that if the school had been of wood or brick construction there would have been a major loss to the city.

South Shore Inter-Faith Agency; Montclair Senior Citizens; National Association of Federal Retirees and the Quincy City Club.

Kearns was graduated from Boston Latin School, Boston College and Lowell Institute (MIT).

He was employed by the Boston Postal Service for 40 years and retired in 1977.

Kearns served in various departments that included the postal cashiers, work measurements, quality control and customer services.

He lives with his wife, Mary, and has one daughter, Mary Lou Dewar, who lives out of state.

Members of the housing authority meet once a month to oversee public housing programs in Quincy.

Authority members receive compensation based on a percentage of rentals from state aided projects, which averages about $250 a month, said the mayor.

Recreation Department Salutes Retiring Buckley

Lionel H. "Shine" Buckley, who is credited with the success of the Quincy Recreation Department, is retiring after 38 years.

"No one person has been more responsible for the success of the recreation program in Quincy than Mr. Buckley," director Barry Welch said during a presentation in which the park and recreation board saluted Buckley's achievements with a plaque.

Welch added that Buckley's supervision has guided young leaders through countless hours of recreational activities. "He has been a positive influence on thousands of leaders and participants."

"Many of us who have gone to work in recreation education owe our success to the skills he shared with us as recreation leaders."

Buckley joined the recreation commission staff in 1948, as an assistant to the late William F. Ryan from 1955 to 1975. During that span the department won four national honors.

In May of 1965 he was appointed a supervisor by the late Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa after scoring a 98.2 per cent on the civil service exam. That mark was the highest on record of city recreation exams.

His professional skills as teacher-coach, guidance counselor and pupil adjustment counselor were utilized by the Boston school system.

Buckley is a former trustee and advisory board member of the West-Ros Park Mental Health Center, former member of the Roxbury Community Mental Health Center Advisory Planning Board, former member of the Mass. Counsellors Association, former Boston Pupil Adjustment Counsellors Association and a former member of the National Recreation Association.

He is also a graduate of the National Defense Education Institute for Guidance and Counselling at Boston University in 1960 and a graduate from the National Education Institute for teaching disadvantaged youth in inner cities in 1966.

A graduate of Quincy High School in 1940 where he played football, basketball and golf. Following World War II service with the Air Force, he graduated from Boston University in 1948 and received his masters degree in 1953.

Buckley is married to the former Marjorie E. Comis. They have four sons, Bruce, Brian, Bradford and Brett.

Request Continued For West Quincy Restaurant

The License Board voted Tuesday to continue to Feb. 18 a request for a common victualer license for the Carlo Wang Restaurant at 15 Copeland St., West Quincy.

Board members complained of traffic problems in the area, and requested that applicant Lu Yui Wang of Cambridge supply a detailed plan for parking.

A letter submitted to the board during the meeting stated that patrons of the restaurant could park in the lot of the nearby F.W. Foley Corp., at 18 Copeland St. However, it did not specify how many cars could park there and during what hours.

"We have a terrible parking problem up there," said Police Chief and board member Francis Finn. "I'm not going to vote on the request on the strength of that letter and make a bigger problem up there."

"There are too many unanswered questions."

"The fire chief complained last time that they couldn't go with fire trucks up there," continued Finn.

Acting Fire Chief Carl Valenti was unable to attend this week's meeting.

Building Inspector and board member Allan MacDonald noted that the restaurant would have seats for 52 people.

"We have a tough problem," said MacDonald, "we can't make it worse."

City Clerk and board member John Gillis advised the applicant to bring a detailed plan for parking to the next meeting.

The Copeland St. location was formerly the site of Lazarino's Restaurant.

The request from Wang had been continued from the Jan. 28 meeting.

Nick's Lunch

An overnight break was reported Feb. 8 at Nick's Lunch, 53 Granite St., Quincy Center, but apparently nothing was taken.

According to police, the culprit removed a vent on the roof to gain entrance.

When the alarm went off, the suspect left by smashing a 4 by 6 foot front window, police said.

Raiders Veto Presidents, 5-4

By TOM SULLIVAN

The North Quincy hockey team, nearing its third straight state tournament berth and with a good shot at its first Suburban League title, met a fired-up Quincy team last Saturday but pulled out a 5-4 victory, improving its record to 10-4-1 (6-2-1 in the league) and taking sole possession of first place in the league. Quincy fell to 2-13-1.

Kevin Jago's Raiders, with no home games left and needing only two points (a win or two ties) in four games to qualify for the tournament, met Newton North last night (Wednesday), will meet Malden's Greater Boston League entry Monday at noon at Medford in a game postponed earlier when the officials failed to show up, will play Waltham Tuesday night at Watertown at 7 o'clock and will finish up against Brookline next Thursday at 6 o'clock at Watertown.

"This was Quincy's best game of the year and they were really fired up," said North assistant coach Rick Avery. "It was a far different team than we faced the first time (an 8-1 North win)."

Dave Tapper's third goal with six minutes left broke a 4-4 tie and gave North the victory.

The Presidents took a 1-0 lead after a period on Rodney Davis' goal.

Steve Conatas and Shawn Craig scored for Quincy and Tapper and Dave Fasano for North in the second period as the Presidents took a 3-2 lead into the finale.

Tapper tied it in the third period and Fasano put the Raiders up, 4-3. Conatas tied it for Quincy and Tapper then completed his hat trick for the win.

Fasano and Matt Furtado had two assists apiece and Glen McGlame and Mark Simonelli one each.

"I was very proud of the way the kids performed tonight," said Quincy coach Bob Sylvia. "If we played like this earlier we probably would have a few more wins. Mark Sandanato was tremendous in goal (33 saves) and the whole team played well."

Sandanato stopped Tapper three times on breakaways.

Tapper is among the top five scorers in the league with 25 goals and 42 points.

Earlier in the week North, after many close, come-from-behind wins, had a chance to relax as it tipped Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 11-5. Cambridge earlier had pulled a 6-3 upset on the Raiders.

Jago had a chance to give everyone a chance to play as North led, 3-1, after a period and 8-2 after two.

McGlame gave North the lead after two minutes and the Raiders never looked back.

Mark Zimmerman led the North offense with a hat trick, Michael Leonard and McGlame had two goals apiece and furtado, Pat Feeney, Fasano and Tapper one each.

Fasano had four assists, Furtado and Tapper three each and John Pacino and Tim Duff one apiece.

Kevin Jeffers played in goal most of the game but sophomore Brian Mahoney played the last 10 minutes.

"We were due for a game like this," said Jago. "We haven't had a game where we could just relax and have fun. We definitely had it coming."

"We want to make the tournament again but we also want to win our first league championship. We just missed winning the title last year and it is definitely a goal for this year."

Quincy lost to Newton North, 6-1, with Tony Scolia scoring the lone goal and Mike Bille and Conatas assisting.

THREE CHEERS FOR EMILY — The Red Raiders cheerleaders from North Quincy High School were among those who recently participated in a program for Sterling Middle School's "adopted" friend, Emily Hoskins, center. At top, right, are Emily's parents, Linda and Greg Hoskins of Streator, Ill.

First Ladies Bow

The Quincy girls' basketball team made one of its strongest showings of the season last Friday but lost to Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 48-35, dropping its record to 2-14.

The First Ladies will wind up their season Friday when they play at Newton North at 5 p.m.

Quincy took a 10-9 lead over Cambridge in the first quarter as Patti Morrell and Karen Craig accounted for seven points.

Cambridge roared back to take a 28-14 halftime lead and never looked back.

Morrell scored 12 points and had 11 rebounds to spark the first Ladies and Craig had five points.

Earlier in the week the Quincy girls bowed to Brockton, 70-29. They never were in the game as the Lady Boxers took a huge 37-10 halftime lead.

Gayle Morrell had nine points and Patti Morrell chipped in with six.

Presidents Run Out Of Steam

The Quincy boy's basketball team, forced to face the Suburban League's three top teams, Brookline, Brockton and Cambridge Rindge and Latin in successive games, turned in a strong performance last Friday before running out of steam and losing to Cambridge, 61-47.

The loss dropped the Presidents to 1-15. Quincy played North Quincy Tuesday night and will wind up a frustrating season Friday night when it hosts Newton North at 7:30.

The Presidents were forced to face the powerful Cambridge team without two starters, Steve Austin and Dave Britt, who were ill.

They held their own for a half but lack of depth, which has hurt all year, was especially noticeable with Austin and Britt missing and Cambridge pulled away in the last two quarters.

Don Parry paced Quincy with 12 points and Tom Logan chipped in with six. Robert Connolly, Dave Mohr and Bob Pitts played well and Sam Connolly played a fine game on the boards.

Earlier in the week Quincy lost to Brockton (4-3), 74-49, with Mohr having 12 points, seven rebounds and three steals and Frank Freedman having 11 points and five rebounds.

"We have to play an almost perfect game to beat a team like Brockton," said Quincy's first-year coach, John Franceschini. "We didn't. We missed 16 free throws and shot only 31 percent, while they were running by us, breaking down our press and grabbing most of the rebounds."

Gill, McBirney Spark Curry

Paul Gill and Bill McBirney, both of Quincy, have sparked a second semester surge by the Curry College basketball team that leaves the Colonels with a 9-8 record with eight games to play.

These are the most wins by Curry since the 1981-82 season. Curry also is in first place in the Commonwealth Coast Conference with a 2-0 mark.

The ninth win was a huge upset over Tufts, 76-75, in overtime. Tufts, ranked fifth in the N.E. Div. 3 before the game, tied the game at 65-65 in regulation time but McBirney scored the last three points in overtime to seal the win.

• Pee Wee House

Keohane's Rolls Along, M&M Downs Bersani

Keohane's held its five-point lead in the Pee Wee House League with a 5-3 victory over Colonial Federal.

Jason Swan had two goals and David Mullen, Jeff Freeman and Jim Mahoney one each. Bob Ford had two assists and Mullen, Jason Mac-

Gill, a senior guard who played at North Quincy High and Quincy Junior College, is averaging 11 points and five assists and leads the team in free throw percentage (.88). McBirney, a starter last year who had his ankle reconstructed in the off-season, has helped the Colonels during their 6-2 second semester. He had 17 points and six rebounds in an 84-75 victory over Framingham State.

Coach Brian Buckley, also of Quincy, in his third year at Curry, realizes the importance of both these players to the team's concept.

"As student athletes Bill and Pudge contribute to the basketball program in a big way," he said. "Bill is an excellent rebounder and defensive player, while Pudge is the quarterback of the team. But even more than that, their leadership is important. Our players refer to them as the Refrigerator and Jim McMahon of the team. And I'd have to agree with them."

Curry has four conference games left and Buckley hopes to fight for the title. "I'd love to see us in the hunt in the last game of the season," Buckley said. "We play Coast Guard, last year's champion, that day and it would mean a lot more with the title on the line."

The remaining conference games are with Roger Williams, Anna Maria, Emerson and Coast Guard.

Raiderettes Too Much For Marshfield, 65-55

The North Quincy girls' basketball team, which had qualified for the state tournament earlier, took a day off from Suburban League action Monday and defeated Marshfield of the Old Colony League, 65-55, to improve to 14-2. The game had been scheduled for last Friday but was postponed by snow.

Paul Bregoli's Raiderettes will host Waltham Friday at 5 p.m. in their final home game. They will play at Brookline Tuesday at 12:30 and finish the regular season at New Bedford next Thursday at 2:30.

North, employing a full-court press and looking to run their fast break, jumped off to a 15-10 lead after a quarter. Nancy Flukes, Anne Marie Hughes and Eileen Warren had four points each. Karen Runge picked up two early fouls but Anne McGuigan once again played well coming off the bench.

The Raiderettes scored 23 points in the second quarter with Warren scoring 13.

McGuigan left the game with a slight ankle sprain, but Maureen Donovan looked sharp coming off the bench, scoring four points and having two assists. Hughes was equally impressive in the half adding four points in the second quarter, in addition to three steals and three assists. North led, 38-19, at halftime.

North continued to apply the pressure in the third quarter with 18 points, six by Flukes and four by Runge. Marybeth Maloney looked good, pushing the ball up-court and playing strong defense. North had a comfortable 56-34 lead going into the final quarter.

Warren finished with a game high 19 points and had 15 rebounds. Runge scored 14, Flukes had 12 points and three assists and Hughes had 12 points, four steals and three assists. Maloney had three assists and Jean Welby four steals.

Earlier in the week North defeated Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 49-40, in a league game.

Falling behind, 2-1, the Raiderettes pulled ahead, 7-2, and led, 15-9 after a quarter, thanks to a nine for 10 free throw showing. Warren had six points and Flukes added five, all from the line.

North did a poor job on the defensive board in the second quarter and Cambridge closed the gap to 23-22 at the half. North committed several fouls and had four turnovers, which hurt in the first half of the second quarter.

Cambridge took a 29-27 lead into the fourth quarter but McGuigan made of two foul shots and Flukes put in an offensive rebound to give North a 31-30 edge. Rhonda Green, the second leading scorer in the league, put the Warriors up for the last time. Runge took over, hitting a three point play with 3½ minutes left and then scored the next five points to put the Raiderettes up, 39-32. Karrie Pistorino scored some key foul shots in the final minutes to help maintain the lead.

Runge led all scorers with 17 points, including 12 in the final quarter. She also had 12 rebounds and five steals. Warren had 12 points, including eight for eight from the line and had 11 rebounds. Flukes had 11 points and eight rebounds, Pistorino had four points and McGuigan three. North was 25 of 34 from the foul line.

If you worked in one of those professions then and now have a lung disease, you may be eligible to receive money damages or workers' compensation. Relatives of living and deceased victims can also recover in some cases.

Eastern Nazarene Seeks To Build 22 Townhouses

A plan by Eastern Nazarene College to build 22, two-story town house units on their 15 acre Wollaston campus was aired Monday night during a community meeting.

President Stephen W. Nease said the school needed the townhouses because of the extremely high cost of available housing in the Boston area which he said makes it difficult to replace faculty members.

Council President Stephen McGrath, who represents Ward 5 which includes the college, said he had asked Nease to call the meeting to give the community a chance to voice its concerns.

McGrath noted that the project still has to clear the zoning board which has jurisdiction over any construction in the flood plane.

Plans call for two existing houses and a garage now owned by the college on Sachem St., to be torn down to make way for 10 units. Another 12 units are to be constructed on a vacant lot owned by the college near the tennis courts at the intersection of Waterston and Wendall Avenues.

Eastern Nazarene College is a private, Christian four-year liberal arts college with a 15-acre campus on East Elm Ave.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

Steve Downing, Manager

HINDSIGHT HURTS

QUESTION: I had a chance to buy a home five years ago for $70,000. I passed it up because I thought the price was too high. Last month, the same house sold for $106,000. Now I want to buy a second home for an investment. Should I wait until prices drop or will I be making the same mistake?

ANSWER: Although prices keep rising, I doubt if they will ever be much lower. If a $70,000 home increases in value at only 6% per year, in ten years it will be worth $125,260. In twenty years, it will cost $225,000.

Shakespearean advice applies: If to buy or not buy is the question, 'twere well if it were done now.

ALTHOUGH HOME prices are higher, waiting for them to drop may be folly.

Historical Society Wins Bid At Auction

Cherished Ruth Gordon Bowl Coming Home

RUTH GORDON at Eastern Nazarene College in June, 1975.

By DINAH LIVINGSTON
(Quincy Sun Correspondent)

The silver plated bowl presented to Ruth Gordon by "a proud city" — her own beloved Quincy — is on its way home again.

A $300 bid at the Feb. 13 auction of property from Miss Gordon's estate at New York's William Doyle Galleries captured the Revere-style bowl for the Quincy Historical Society.

The bowl will join the christening cup given by the Wollaston-born actress-writer to the society on her final visit here in November, 1984. She died last August at 88.

The bowl was presented to Miss Gordon by then Mayor Walter J. Hannon at "An Evening With Ruth Gordon" in June, 1975 at Eastern Nazarene College. The event was sponsored by the Quincy Historical Society.

Memorabilia from Miss Gordon's 70 years in theater and movies, however, fetched the highest prices. The yellow oilskin rain slicker from "Harold and Maude" went, after frantic bidding, to a young Massachusetts man for $1,600, and a Chanel dress and coat ensemble worn in a "Colombo" episode brought $925.

A sterling silver square tray with facsimile signatures of such celebrities as Katherine Hepburn and Natalie Wood sold for $1,700, while bids on Miss Gordon's Vuitton Luggage — 19 pieces in all — rose to $2,100. The undoubted star of the show was a 14K gold bracelet with charms

No Major Cuts Seen In City Budget

By DAN CONNELLY

No major cuts are anticipated in the city's fiscal budget for 1986 as hearings continue at City Hall.

According to Mayor Francis X. McCauley, all of the department budget hearings have gone well.

"We still have Public Works to hear and we will look closely at their budget when we meet with them this Saturday," he said.

By next week the mayor expects to begin a review of all department requests and has targeted April 7 as the date for presenting the budget to the City Council.

"Yes, there have been some cuts made in capital funding, but I do not have the exact figures as yet," McCauley said.

He added that the school department budget was scheduled to be submitted yesterday (Wednesday) to the school committee.

The city's annual budget process began Feb. 7. Hearings were held last Saturday with the Fire and Police Departments, Parking Areas, Civil Defense, Animal Control and Traffic Control.

McCauley said, "We're setting a course of level funding, but some departments in which unions have settled will have a higher budget than last year."

Results of all of the hearings, as well as the Cherry Street, will then be reviewed before their submission by McCauley to the City Council by April 7.

That body then has 45 days in which to review all budget matters.

Ticketing Moratorium Continues

Overnight Parking Before Council Feb. 24

A report on the enforcement of overnight parking and various traffic violations will be heard by the City Council's Public Safety Committee Monday, Feb. 24.

Chairman Michael Cheney has called the meeting for 8 p.m. in the City Council Chamber at the James R. McIntyre Government Center.

A report from the Police Department on overnight parking and other traffic violations will be heard and discussed.

A two-week grace period was given last week to allow residents who park their cars on the street at night to make other arrangements for their vehicles.

A limited moratorium on ticketing for overnight parking was granted by Police Chief Francis Finn at City Council President Stephen McGrath's request.

The moratorium, however, does not apply during a snow storm.

In the meanwhile, Finn said his department will "just tag on complaints."

McGrath requested the moratorium "to enable residents who do not have off-street parking to obtain the proper overnight parking permit."

McGrath said many residents had contacted him to say they "were caught unaware at the sudden enforcement of the overnight parking ban and are being ticketed."

McGrath said the two-week moratorium on ticketing would be "a fair way to enable people to have a chance to make parking arrangements or to obtain the proper permit."

All night parking on Quincy streets is not allowed without a night parking permit.

With the permit, motorists are allowed to park on the even numbered side of the street in even numbered years (1986) and on the odd numbered side of the streets in the odd numbered years.

Fuel Help Still Available

Quincy Community Action is continuing to make appointments for anyone who has not already applied for winter fuel assistance.

According to Charlotte Jolle', director of the program, residents may be eligible to receive service if they pay for their own heat, or heat is included in their rent.

Eligibility for the program, which closes April 30, is determined by the size of a family and total income received by all members of that household last 18 years and older.

For more information, call 471-4025, Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

THE CLOCK at United First Parish Church, Quincy Sq., has its hands back as part of a project which also includes painting the numerals. The church's clock and bell are owned by the city.

Health Commissioner Petition To Legislature Moving Along

A home rule petition on dropping the requirement of an MD degree for a new city health commissioner is now before a legislative joint-committee on Local Affairs and is moving along, reports State Sen. Paul Harold of Quincy.

The city hopes to be able to fill that position by early summer which has been vacated since the death of Dr. M. Grace Hussey in January 1985.

Mayor Francis McCauley signed the home rule petition dropping the requirement of an MD degree for that post after he had difficulty finding a medical doctor to take the job for the salary of slightly over $40,000 the city was offering.

The petition was sent to the legislature last month for its approval, a process expected to take a few months.

Every working person (even a person already covered by a pension, profit-sharing, SEP or Keogh Plan) can put up to $2,000 into an Individual Retirement Account each year. With a non-employed spouse, the limit increases up to $2,250 per year. And if both work, each may contribute up to $2,000 a year, or a tax-deferred total of as much as $4,000.

The "No-Excuses" Individual Retirement Account.

You've probably thought about opening an Individual Retirement Account before. But you've put it off.

Perhaps because you thought you needed $2,000 to open an IRA. You don't. At Quincy Savings, you can open an IRA with just $10 and earn a money market rate. We're also offering a new IRA Club Account to make it easier to fund an IRA systematically.

Another excuse you may have used is that your retirement date is a long way off. That may be true. But don't forget that every year you contribute to your IRA it's deductible on your Federal income tax return. Which can save you a lot of money.

Depending on your tax bracket, there even are some advantages in borrowing what you want to open or fund your IRA at Quincy Savings, as our free "Net Tax Savings" analysis will indicate. If you qualify, we'll lend you up to $2,000 at an attractive rate, with a one-year repayment plan.

And if you've thought that a year's delay in opening your IRA doesn't make much difference, ask for our free computer-generated projection that will show you exactly how much money you'll lose by postponing your decision for just one year.

There's really no excuse for paying Uncle Sam extra taxes again this year. Especially when you can open your IRA at Quincy Savings for just $10, and select either short or long term certificates for larger amounts. And now Quincy Savings even offers mutual funds and self-directed plans as well.

So come to our nearest office soon, for one of our computer-generated projections and to open your IRA. Or call us at 471-3590, if you have any questions.

License Request Continued

Proposed W. Quincy Restaurant Raises Traffic Concerns

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The License Board voted Tuesday to continue to Feb. 25 a request from Carlo Wang Restaurant, Inc., for a common victualer license at 15 Copeland St., West Quincy, when board members again expressed concern about the impact the restaurant would have on traffic and parking problems in the area.

Building Inspector Allan MacDonald suggested the matter be continued until next week when City Clerk and board chairman John Gillis can attend the meeting.

As requested last week, the applicant supplied the board with specific information about parking.

Atty. Kenneth M.P. Yee, who represented applicant Lu Yui Wang, told the board there are spaces available for 12 cars at the nearby F.W. Foley Corp. at 18 Copeland St.

Yee also said that the number of seats in the restaurant has been reduced from 50 to 40.

Atty. Charles Henes, who represented the owner of the building, Nikolaos Regas, said that his client is paying $16,000 to $17,000 a year overhead on the building, including taxes on restaurant equipment.

"My only problem with this is parking," said Acting Fire Chief Carl Valenti.

"There's no guarantee the people will use the parking (in the lot). There's no guarantee the people won't park on the street."

Police Chief Francis Finn agreed with Valenti.

"It's a bad, bad location for a busy restaurant," said Finn.

"If there's going to be an adverse impact on the neighborhood, it's our duty not to put the restaurant in."

Jackie Quirk, administrative aide to Ward 4 Councilor James Sheets, praised the owners of the building.

THE QUINCY PARK and Recreation Board presented a plaque of appreciation to Lionel "Shine" Buckley (center) who is retiring after 38 years as supervisor for the Quincy Recreation Department. From left are Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation, Buckley, and Tom Mullaney, chairman of the Quincy Park and Recreation Board.

McCauley Supports Housing Density Control

Mayor Francis X. McCauley has voiced his support of the city planning board recommendation to control density in future housing developments in the city.

In a letter to Council President Stephen McGrath, he said:

"I support that boards recommendation to increase the minimum square foot per dwelling unit for PUD projects from 250 sq. ft. to 2000 sq. ft., this is more realistic and I strongly support it.

"Approval of this zoning change is another step in my administration's attempt to control density in our housing developments in Quincy."

McCauley added that the planning board recommendation is expected to be acted upon by the council within the next several weeks.

On Feb. 12 four public hearings on proposed zoning amendments were before the city planning board.

Subject of those city hall hearings, included: height requirements; minimum area per dwelling unit (sq. ft.) in PUD/PUD-I; minimum lot area per dwelling unit (sq. ft.) in residence D; parking requirements - Marinas.

Quincy IRS Office Open Until Filing Season Ends

The Quincy office of the Internal Revenue Service, 1458 Hancock St., will continue to offer assistance, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. only during this filing season despite being relocated Tuesday (Feb. 18) to Brockton.

Under a recent consolidation plan the Quincy and Brockton service offices merge will now operate on the second floor of the new Brockton Federal Building, 166 Main St.

"This consolidation will enable us to provide a wider range of services to the taxpayer and at the same time accommodate more taxpayers in a shorter period of time," IRS District Director John D. Johnson said.

In addition to merging the two offices, the IRS will expand its "Outreach" taxpayer assistance program to further streamline its service to Quincy taxpayers. Johnson added.

All functions, including taxpayer service, will be available from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the new fully staffed combined offices in downtown Brockton near the municipal parking garage.

New Directory Aids Hearing-Impaired

New England Telephone is making it a little easier for deaf and hearing-impaired Quincy persons to use their phones.

The company is distributing a special, comprehensive directory which lists the names and phone numbers of those who use Telecommunications Devices for the Deaf (TDD) in its five-state operating area.

These devices enable hearing-impaired persons to communicate via a typewriter-like keyboard which sends printed, instead of spoken, words between users' telephones.

The 108 page directory

Building Permits For $1.8M In Construction

The city Building Department reports 69 permits for construction estimated to cost $1,801,350 were issued during the month of January.

Received were $6,054 in permit fees and $287 for public safety inspections. A total of 19 dwelling units were added through new construction and 48 through alterations.

contains more than 3000 listings of individual communicators, public safety agencies, and businesses and organizations which serve the hearing-impaired community. It also lists New England Telephone's customer assistance bureau and operator services for the hearing-impaired, and information on long distance rates for users of the device.

Koch Fuels Rumor Mill

City Councillor Richard Koch, Jr. has Quincy's political rumor mill working overtime.

D. KOCH

That was quickly followed by reports that Koch was getting a promotion at Kemper Insurance that would require him to move out of state.

Or, according to another version, the promotion would be in the Cape Cod area where he inherited a home in Brewster from the estate of his uncle, his mother's brother.

The speculation subsided a little when Koch said that the family was not leaving Quincy but only moving into an apartment here.

Two homes, he explained, are just two costly to maintain. So, they decided to sell the Quincy home, move into a Quincy apartment and keep the Brewster home. They can spend the summer there.

End of speculation? End of story? No.
Close sources say Koch may get a new post with Kemper in the Cape area. And, if he does, the family would move to Brewster because commuting between Quincy and the Cape daily would be too much to hack.

If that were to happen, the big question is: When? If it happened before the end of this year, it would mean a special election to fill the council at-large vacancy.

If it didn't happen until 1987, the remaining eight councillors would elect a successor to finish out the term.

Among those reportedly interested are Steve McGrath, City Council president and Ward 6 councillor; Ronald Iacobucci, School Committee Vice-Chairman Steve Durkin and School Committee-woman Mary Collins.

McGRATH

AAA To Host New Phone Area Code Meeting

A new telephone area code district on the South Shore will be discussed at a meeting Feb. 25 at 8 a.m. at the American Automobile Association headquarters in Rockland.

New England Telephone Vice President John Coleman will explain to those businesses attending the various options for placement of the new area code in the district.

The meeting will be hosted by the South Shore Chamber of Commerce in conjunction with AAA and State Rep. William J. Flynn of Hanover.

T. KOCH

Iacobucci has been the lone challenger in the city council at-large field the past two elections finishing fourth both times behind incumbent Patricia Toland, by 1,037 votes the first time and a close 339 the second.

IACOBUCCI

DURKIN

If he did, then there probably would be two special elections at the same time: one to fill the at-large vacancy and the other to fill the Ward 5 seat.

If McGrath did not have to vacate the Ward 5 seat, ran and won the at-large seat, would there have to be another special election to fill the Ward 5 seat?

Now, if Koch didn't leave until January or later, his successor would be elected by the remaining councillors.

All the above names reportedly would still be interested.

Iacobucci on the basis that he has twice run for the office in the past four years would, no doubt, lay claim to it.

In fact, he is already busy lining up support. One report says he can count on six votes — one more than needed to win it.

But if he does have six today, how firm are they for tomorrow?

McGrath, who would like to be mayor someday, isn't going to let this stepping stone opportunity slip out of his grasp if he can help it.

And, as city council president, he could well help it by changing things around — even early committed votes.

McGrath knows there is much more exposure as a councillor at-large to help a run for mayor on.

Walter Hannon came out of Ward 5 to become mayor but he had the support and strength of the James McIntyre forces behind him to help do it.

That political weight is no longer around to help a Ward 5 councillor spring to the mayor's office in one jump.

In the next few weeks, Koch's every move will be watched for a sign that he is taking a new job on the Cape and moving from Quincy.

In fact any weekend he crosses the Sagamore Bridge there'll be someone speculating: this is it.

HUMIDITY & COMFORT

QUESTION: During the summer, I need air conditioning to take the humidity out of our home. In the winter, the air is so dry, I create sparks whenever I touch metal. What can I do to help the situation?

ANSWER: To reduce humidity you can install ducted fans to vent vapors outdoors from the kitchen, laundry and bath. If you don't have air conditioning, you may want to invest in a dehumidifier.

If too LITTLE moisture occurs during winter, you can resort to automatic humidifiers. One kind is built into the heating system and spreads moisture through the heating ducts. The other is a portable room humidifier.

IN-HOUSE MOISTURE affects your comfort in summer as well as winter.

Cherished Ruth Gordon Bowl Coming Home

representing her film and stage hits. Purchased by a private bidder from New York for $2,700, it far outstripped its asking price of $600-$900.

Amid the glittering prizes - the made-to-order dresses by Chanel, Balenciaga and Mainbocher; the 1920s sterling silver cocktail shaker; the autographed letter from Arthur Miller - were reminders of Quincy.

"Ruth loved Quincy," said her husband of 43 years, the writer-director Garson Kanin. "She loved growing up here. She was the sort of person who kept her friendships alive. She always retained an affection for the place and friends of her childhood and girlhood." Kanin noted that his wife almost invariably came back for the yearly reunions of her Quincy High School class of 1914.

New Englanders, added Kanin, don't throw things away.

"They're frugal - not stingy - and practical. They save their belongings and leave them to their heirs."

On display at the Doyle Galleries last week were mementos that Miss Gordon had tenderly preserved for 70, 80 or nearly 90 years. Her baby shoes, made by her mother, brought $150; a few Quincy-related items were much more expensive.

An Irish crochet lace coat dating back to around 1910 brought $1,400, and a private bidder from California paid $1,600 for a photograph of an intense young Ruth in an elaborate silver frame. A 14K pocket watch and fob engraved "Ruth Gordon Jones from Mother" sold for $950.

A patient observer could spy humble treasures.

Two gold wedding bands belonging to Ruth's parents and "Mama's thimble, Mama's bracelets, and Mama's best pin" lay amid the costume jewelry of a later era.

A 1916 copy of the Wollaston Women's Club Magazine stood almost cheek by jowl with Paul Robert Lyons' "Quincy: A Pictorial History," published in 1983.

And in a lot of three winter coats bundled on a rack was the jaunty red down coat worn by Miss Gordon at the opening of the amphitheater bearing her name just 16 months ago.

"My roots are very important to me," she said on that visit. "When I come back to Quincy, I recover a part of myself."

When the silver bowl arrives at the historical society next week, Quincy, "the city of presidents and the city of Ruth Gordon," will recover a small part of its far-roaming native daughter who never forgot where she came from.

And we're proud she came from here.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Ground Broken For 10,000 Seat Amphitheater

Ground was broken for an amphitheater seating 10,000 with a modern acoustic shell in lower Merrymount Park on a site known as the "pageant ground."

Work on the project was to be done entirely by jobless men registered with the Quincy Employment Service Bureau, of which there were more than 1,000.

The ESB, located at 67 Saville Road, had raised $14,000 in a $50,000 drive to create jobs for the unemployed in Quincy.

Working people were encouraged to contribute to the ESB on the basis of one percent on weekly incomes of $25-35, two per cent on $35-50, and three per cent on $50 and up.

The ESB promised:

"The committee will expend all money contributed in creating jobs, believing that anything that savors of the dole to be un-American."

NEW CARS FOR '32 DISPLAYED

Quincy motorists turned out in droves to view the new 1932 model cars on display in salesrooms throughout the city.

The new Hudson and Essex were to be seen at Central Garage, 254-260 Washington St.; Pierce Arrow and Studebaker at Yerxa Motor Sales, 1546 Hancock St.; Willys Knight at Buckley's Garage, Willard St., West Quincy.

If you went to Yule's Garage, 676 Hancock St., Wollaston, you could examine the new Hupmobile, and Merritt O. White, Inc., 615 Hancock St., had the Franklin — "The only air-cooled car with the airplane type motor."

PARTISAN BILL SEEN DOOMED

A bill sought by Neil A. MacDonald, chairman of the Republican City Committee, that would make Quincy's municipal elections partisan contests appeared headed for defeat in the State Legislature.

Mrs. Beatrice Walker Nichols, a member of the school committee and Republican State committeewoman, said in support of the bill:

"Without party designations an active minority, needed as a check, is not functioning. The non-partisan system is confusing, indefinite and irresponsible."

Koch Club Scholarship Applications Available

The chairman of the Koch Club Scholarship Committee has announced applications for scholarships for 1986 will be available at the guidance offices of each of the city's high schools Monday, Feb. 24.

According to Anthony T. Delmonico, a $100 scholarship will be awarded to a boy or girl graduate at each of the schools, North and Quincy High, and Vocational Technical, according to their scholastic standing and need.

Since the program was initiated in 1959, the club has presented some $12,400 in scholarship awards to 136 students.

The formal presentations for this year's winners will take place during the 35th Annual Flag Day observance sponsored by the Koch Club on Saturday, June 14 at 10 a.m. in Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The Koch Club Scholarship Fund began in 1959 in North Quincy with a $100 scholarship to a boy and girl graduate of North Quincy High. In 1964 the program was expanded with the addition of the Broadmeadows District and a boy and girl graduate of Quincy High was added.

In 1968, the organization added a boy graduate of the vocational school and in 1970 included a girl graduate to complete an achievement recognition for a boy and girl graduate in each of the high schools.

The club established a permanent scholarship fund on the 25th anniversary of the organization in 1973 with a $5,000 grant established in the City of Quincy. The preceding action guarantees that the scholarship program will continue annually should the Koch Club no longer exist.

The perpetual fund has increased to $17,600 and continues to grow and will assume the Koch Club Scholarship responsibilities on the 50th Anniversary of the organization in 1998.

The Koch Club has appropriated and committed a total of $30,000 in funds toward the Active and Permanent Scholarship Programs during the past 28 years.

February Is Dental Health Month

Quincy dentists have joined their state-wide association in observing February as National Dental Health Month proclaiming that preventive dentistry has come of age.

Dr. Stanley Cohen, president of that Massachusetts Dental Society said gone are the days when dentistry routinely filled or pulled teeth. Dentists have many new techniques and devices at hand today that not only can save off dental disease but that may even eradicate it someday.

Dr. Robert Springler, chairman in Massachusetts of National Dental Month said mouth protectors help support a winning smile.

"New findings show a clear need for mouth protection in all sports activities whether during practice or in a game."

Springler added that each year thousands of preventable injuries, and even permanent disfigurement occur because mouth protectors are not worn even in activities traditionally not considered contact sports. "They protect more than just the mouth area. They also cushion blows that otherwise might cause jaw fractures or concussion."

He also voiced the fact that sealants help keep decay away when he referred to statistics that show that in the U.S. alone, 98 percent of the population is still susceptible to some form of dental disease.

"Studies show that by the time the average child enters school, around age six, three surfaces of the primary teeth are already decayed or filled. Researchers have long known that plaque, the sticky, colorless deposit of bacteria that constantly form on teeth, is the main culprit in the decay process. But, they've learned removing plaque through brushing, flossing, and regular professional cleaning may not be sufficient to prevent dental decay."

"Aiming to protect these cavity-prone surfaces, researchers have come up with sealant, a clear or shaded plastic material that is applied to the teeth and protects the decay-prone areas. Children are the best candidates for sealants," Springler said.

The society also warned about a new growing health hazard, smokeless tobacco.

According to Dr. Thomas Devaney, who serves on the American Dental Association's Council on Dental Health, this smokeless tobacco, which includes snuff and chewing tobacco has multiple dangers. Foremost among them, and the most deadly, is the high incidence of oral cancer associated with the products.

Devaney added that one clear sign of danger is a white, leathery patch or thick lesion that appears on oral tissues that have been in direct contact with the tobacco. This patch is called a leukoplakia, considered to be precancerous and up to seven percent of diagnosed leukoplakias are are malignant.

"Given the mounting evidence against snuff dipping and tobacco chewing, dentists and other health professionals are urging the public to stop using all forms of tobacco," Devaney said.

Prenatal Exercise Classes To Begin In March

St. Margaret's Hospital for Women and Fitcorp Health Care Center of North Quincy, plan to introduce a prenatal exercise class early in March.

Tina Shea, who will direct the program at Fitcorp, located at 1 Monarch Dr. across from the MBTA station, said women enrolling need not be patients of St. Margaret's or Fitcorp members, but do need written permission from their obstetricians or nurse-midwives in order to participate.

According to the hospital, extensive studies indicate that women who exercise during pregnancy are healthier, possess greater self-esteem and have a more enjoyable birthing experience. Many physicians are advising women already participating in regular exercise programs to continue exercising through their pregnancies, as well as suggesting that inactive pregnant women begin exercising on a regular basis.

For this reason, St. Margaret's Vice President of Nursing, Marie McGuiness, and Prenatal Education Coordinator, Maddie Venis, began working with Fitcorp last summer to enhance their prenatal classes with an exercise component. Fitcorp has worked with other hospitals in developing cardiac rehabilitation and stress management programs, they said.

The Expecting the Best program, which has been reviewed by obstetricians, includes a fitness evaluation, exercise classes appropriate for each participant's level of fitness and stage of pregnancy, and a choice of prenatal classes including early prenatal education and child birth classes. Postpartum programs will also be offered in the future.

Shea said she is in the process of firming up a date with the hospital for the program. For further information call 472-8746.

separate classes at 8:30 a.m. and 9:30 a.m.

Anita Argyrople is the instructor for the 8:30 a.m. class, and Nancy Joyce is the instructor for the 9:30 a.m. class.

Those interested may register at the Quincy Recreation Department, 100

Southern Artery weekdays from 8:30 to 4:30 p.m. as long as openings exist.

ly commissioned medical personnel with professional and administrative responsibilities as Air Force officers.

She received a master's degree in 1983 from Yale University Graduate School of Nursing, New Haven, Conn.

There will be four categories to be judged: vegetables salad, main dishes, bread muffins and desserts. Recipes will be judged on the basis of nutritional quality, appearance, flavor, cost, ease of preparation and originality.

Lunch will be provided for all participants and transportation is available for those in need.

Quincy Hospital To Offer Child Life-Saver Program

Quincy City Hospital will soon repeat a program designed to save the lives of infants and children and oriented to parents and persons who work with children.

The program was inaugurated in the South Shore area last October and will educate the participants in CPR (cardio-pulmonary resuscitation) techniques, using child-size mannikins, recognition and treatment of common childhood injuries, general first aid, and more.

Statistics indicate that most people, including parents, would not know how to help an infant or child who had stopped breathing, or who had a serious injury. These accidental injuries claim the lives of four times the number of children as do medical illnesses.

Class size will be limited to insure individual instruction. The cost of the six-hour workshop is $23 per couple or $15 per individual.

For more information regarding dates, or an informational brochure, call 773-6100, Ext. 3017.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Have you ever noticed that no matter how humble the circumstances, how difficult their tasks and work, some people seem to enjoy life immensely? Others, living in luxury with little work or responsibility seem to be miserable? How does one explain it?

Obviously one part of the answer is that money doesn't automatically mean happiness. Another part of the answer is that the happiest people are people who work, and the happiest of them are those who enjoy their work.

Still another part of the answer is that happiness is a state of mind... a philosophy of life. It is a relative thing. Happiness cannot be bought but must be learned, appreciated and, usually, earned. Perhaps this explains why so many simple people, usually with Christian values, live happy lives in modest surroundings... They may lack many of life's luxuries, but they certainly are not the unlucky ones...

Your reaction and comment either in person, by phone or letter is always welcome on this or any other thought you read here...

A Little Satisfaction

Quincy Upsets North, 69-59

It has been a rough year for the Quincy boys' basketball team, but the Presidents gained some satisfaction last week when it upset North Quincy, 69-59, after the Raiders had won two previous meetings.

John Franceschini's Quincy team lost to Newton North, 51-42, last Friday in its last Suburban League game, dropping its record to 2-16.

The Presidents finish up this week with home-and-home non-league games with Milton.

The Presidents had another poor shooting night, both from the floor and the foul line, against Newton, shooting only 22 per cent from the line and 25 per cent from the floor.

Robert Connolly had 12 points and six assists and Dave Mohr 11 points and seven rebounds to lead Quincy.

The highlight of the season came earlier in the week when the Presidents had their first really good shooting night in preventing North Quincy from sweeping three games. North had earlier won by one point in the Christmas tournament at North, then won by five points in their first league meeting.

Last week's victory at North marked Quincy's only league win this season.

Quincy hit 12 of 18 shots from the floor in the first half and, after being tied, 26-26, at halftime, pulled away by outscoring the Raiders, 21-14, in the third quarter.

"Of course, this was our best outing of the year," said first-year coach Franceschini. "When we shot like that and then hit all the foul shots at the end, I knew we would win." Quincy hit seven straight free throws in the closing minutes.

Don Parry paced the Presidents with a game-high 27 points, hitting on a variety of shots, baseline jumpers, pull-up pops from the foul line, drives and sets from the corner.

Connolly continued his fine season with 13 points and Dave Britt scored 10.

"This has been a frustrating season and, yet, not so frustrating," said Franceschini. "We played well most of the year on defense but our shooting was not good. The North Quincy game was the only one in which we hit 50 per cent of our shots."

"Teams like Cambridge, Brockton and Brookline were just too big and experienced for us and we had to play them twice in successive games. In many of our games we stayed close for a half, but faltered in the last two quarters."

"We will have only two varsity players returning next year, but there are several fine prospects on the junior varsity team and we are going to start a youth program, which should help us in the future. I really think things will start looking up for us."

Raiderettes In Historic 16th Win

The North Quincy girls' basketball team defeated Waltham, 50-41, last Friday to improve its record to 16-2.

This is the most wins ever by a North team. The previous high was 15 during the 1981-82 season.

Paul Bregoli's Raiderettes played Brookline Tuesday and will wind up the regular season today (Thursday) at New Bedford at 2:30.

The win against Waltham didn't come easy as North had to contend with Pam Vaughan, the number two scorer in the Suburban League.

The Raiderettes took a 16-10 lead after a quarter as Vaughan scored eight of the Hawks' points. Karen Runge scored six for North and Nancy Flukes and Eileen Warren had four each.

North could increase its lead by only a point in the second quarter as it missed several layups. North got several good efforts from the bench as Marybeth Maloney continued her fine play with an assist and two steals.

Nancy Lyons came back after missing five games to play solidly, having two rebounds and a steal. Tricia Koski also played well, pulling down three rebounds.

Entering the third quarter leading, 26-19, Runge and Anne Marie Hughes were the only bright spots in a lackluster quarter. Each scored three points as North took a 36-31 lead into the fourth quarter.

Jean Welby, North's little floor general, did a little bit of everything in the quarter to pick up her teammates. She collected three of her five rebounds, had a steal, two assists, blocked a shot and hit a critical jump midway through the quarter.

Vaughan led all scorers with 18 points. For North Warren and Runge scored 16 each and Warren had 11 rebounds. Flukes added 10 points and four assists and Hughes scored five points and had five assists.

Earlier in the week North topped Quincy for the second time, 49-41, having much more trouble than in the first game, won by 20 points. The Raiderettes were playing their second game in as many nights.

North took a 12-7 first period lead as Maloney, an early substitute for Runge, made good on three of four free throws, including a two-shot deliberate foul called on a Quincy player.

The Raiderettes were able to get the ball inside nearly at will in the second quarter. But they missed eight layups. When not missing layups, they were at the free throw line. North went to the line 16 times as the only way the First Ladies could stop the North offense was to foul. However, the Raiderettes hit on only six of 16 shots.

Quincy took a brief 19-17 lead before a seven-point spurt keyed by Warren gave North a 26-21 halftime advantage. Warren scored nine of North's 14 second quarter points while Flukes and Runge added two each.

North increased its lead to nine points before Quincy cut the lead to 38-32 entering the final quarter.

North's defense tightened in the last quarter as the Raiderettes opened up a 10-point lead. Hughes scored a key basket on a rebound of a missed shot while Maureen Donovan also scored a key hoop off a pass from Runge.

Warren finished with a game-high 17 points, 11 rebounds and three blocked shots. Runge added 12 points, seven rebounds, three assists, five steals and four blocked shots. Flukes had 10 points, six assists and four steals and Maloney, in addition to a fine all-around game, had four points, three steals and two assists.

Warren set several records during the week. She broke her own single season rebounding record of 218 set last year. She now has 226 with two games remaining, 501 for her career, also a record and her four blocked shots for the week gave her 34 for the season, breaking the old mark of 33 set by Julie Watts during the 80-81 season. She has 44 for her career.

Warren and Flukes broke the record for free throws in a season held by JoAnn Runge back in 81-82. Warren has 59 and Flukes 58.

Warren is averaging 14.9 points a game, Flukes 12.7 and Runge 12.3, all among the top eight scorers in the Suburban League. Hughes has the most steals, 47, Flukes the most assists, 73, and Welby the most charges taken, five.

"The team continues to do what it has to do to win games," Bregoli said. "Although we had played Monday and had to play an emotional team Tuesday without Anne McGuinness, Nancy Lyons and Carrie Pistorino, our kids rose above all that and kept their composure and won. The players never doubted they would beat Quincy, despite how poorly they were playing."

"Actually, the team is anxious to get the regular season over with and get on with the state tournament. It's been a long season with the kids putting a lot of pressure on themselves to do well. Now that we are resigned to second place in the league, we are playing for tournament seeding."

"The Division One South tournament could have as many as 16 teams and we will be seeded somewhere between third and fifth, giving us a home court advantage on ourselves to do well. Now that we are resigned to second place in the league, we are playing for tournament seeding."

Freshman Chris Kraunelis scored 10 points against North Quincy, which finished a frustrating season by losing to Newton North, 55-31, last Friday.

Runge, Warren, Flukes All-Stars

Karen Runge, Eileen Warren and Nancy Flukes of the North Quincy girls' basketball team were named to the Suburban League all-star team and Anne Marie Hughes received honorable mention.

All four will play in the league all-star game Saturday night at 7 p.m. at the North Quincy gym. North coach Paul Bregoli will coach one of the all-star teams.

Scarry Retains 3rd Place In Olindy's Loop

Goodhue's took six points from Tony's to stay on top and Olindy's remained in second place.

The standings: Goodhue's, 23-7; Olindy's, 20-10; Scarry, 18-12; Marchionne Insurance, 14-16; Tony's, 10-20, and Patriot, 6-24.

Bowlers of the week were Mark Volpe, who bowled 51 points over his average with a 312, and Kristin DiRocco, who bowled a 243, 24 pins over her average.

ASBESTOS LUNG DISEASE

Asbestos dust causes serious lung ailments; the diseases appear suddenly, years after exposure. Today numerous SHIPYARD WORKERS, MASONS, and PIPEFITTERS of the 1930's-1970's have lung afflictions because they inhaled asbestos particles many years ago.

If you worked in one of those professions then and now have a lung disease, you may be eligible to receive money damages or workers' compensation. Relatives of living and deceased victims can also recover in some cases.

The Football Queen's Trophy went to Judy Kineavy, who was unable to be present and the trophy was accepted by Lynn Crossman.

Perfetto welcomed the guests and introduced those at the head table and Bob Meenan gave the invocation.

The principal speaker was Reid, who was just recently named head coach at U Mass after several years as defensive coordinator.

He announced that former Quincy stars Billy Shaughnessy and Joe Cullen, who were red-shirted last fall as freshmen, figure highly in the Redmen's plans next fall.

Reid recruited Shaughnessy who received a full four-year scholarship. Cullen didn't go on a scholarship but Reid said he now is a scholarship athlete.

Finnegan spoke briefly and congratulated the players for staying with the team all season despite a winless year.

"I think it is a tribute to you all for sticking it out when it would have been easy to quit after losing several games," he said. "The fact that 81 players finished out the season is really something. And, I'll promise you that football at Quincy High is definitely on the way up."

A special guest was President Ed Miller of the North Quincy boosters Club. North Quincy coach Ken McPhee was ill and unable to attend.

A film, showing the highlights of the 1985 season, was presented.

Perfetto thanked all the members of the club for their assistance and he presented a plaque to the Sons of Italy for their continued support.

The other club officers are vice president Dan Montani, treasurer Joe Conti and secretary Marjorie Perfetto. The board of directors includes Joe Conti, Bob Meenan, Carol Shaughnessy and Bob Cavallo.

Raiders Rebound Against Waltham, Marshfield

The North Quincy boys' basketball team couldn't make it a clean sweep of three games against Quincy, but the Raiders bounced back with two straight wins last week to improve its record to 7-11.

Ed Miller's North team wound up its season Tuesday against Brookline.

North won a big one last Friday, defeating Waltham, 42-38, for its third Suburban League win, more than it won a year ago.

Sophomores Joe DiGrandis, brought up to the varsity at mid-season, and Dave Lawless, sparked the Raiders with 11 points apiece.

"DiGrandis has been one of the most pleasant surprises of the season," Miller said. "He has real savvy and he has a fine future."

In their previous game, a non-league encounter, the Raiders ran away from Marshfield, 16-2, in the final two minutes to stop the Rams, 72-57.

Mark Scanlan had a big night with 24 points and DiGrandis added 14. Both were 8-for-8 from the free throw line.

North had a great night from the line, hitting 22 of 23, including 12-for-12 in the fourth quarter.

Earlier Quincy played its best game of the year to upset the Raiders, 69-59, after losing twice to its cross-town rivals. North Quincy had pulled out a one-point win in the North Christmas Tournament and won by five points in their first league meeting.

The Presidents hit on 12 of 18 tries from the floor in the first two quarters but were tied, 26-26, at the intermission. Quincy pulled away in the third quarter, outscoring North, 21-14.

"Quincy played a great game and its shooting was outstanding," said Miller. "It's pretty tough to beat shooting like that. Losing Brian Morris with an ankle injury didn't help as he's our best rebounder." Quincy controlled the boards for most of the game after Morris went out.

DiGrandis had another big Save Gas and Money... Shop Locally.

night with 16 points and numerous steals, and gained the plaudits of both Miller and Quincy coach John Franceschini.

Chris Rossi scored 15 points and Scanlan chipped in with 12. Quincy hit on seven straight free throws in the closing minutes.

North Qualifies For Hockey Tourney

• Senior Hoop Loop

Squantum Defeats Beechwood, Takes Over First Place

By TOM SULLIVAN

North Quincy's hockey team qualified for the state tournament for the third straight year when it tied Malden, 4-4, Monday in a non-league game postponed earlier when the officials failed to show up.

Kevin Jago's Raiders, 10-4-3 overall and 6-2-2 in the Suburban League, now have their sights set on their first league championship. They were still in first place, a point ahead of Brockton, going into Tuesday night's game at Waltham. They finish the regular season today (Thursday) against Brookline at 6 p.m. at Watertown.

Despite having 62 shots, North trailed, 4-3, with four minutes left to play when Mike McGrath scored the tying goal with John Pacino assisting.

Mark Zimmermann scored in the first period with assists for Fasano and Dave Tapper and Matt Furtado scored in the second period with Matt Ostiguy and Greg McGlame assisting. Fasano scored in the third period with Tapper and Zimmermann having assists.

"Malden's goalie was unbelievable," said assistant coach Rick Avery. "We were all over him but he made an awful lot of great saves."

Tapper and Fasano are two of the league's top scorers. Tapper has 46 points on 27 goals and 19 assists and Fasano 41 points on 12 goals and 29 assists. Mike Haynes, who is out for the year after being operated on for severed tendons in his ankle, had 42 points.

"We are beginning to feel the loss of Haynes," said coach Kevin Jago. "We are really going to have to work hard in our final two games if we hope to win our first league championship."

Last week the Raiders tied Newton North, 2-2, on Tapper's power-play goal with only 33 seconds left. Jago had lifted goalie Kevin Jeffers and Tapper took advantage of the extra skater. It was his second goal. Zimmermann assisted.

Tapper scored in the first period to tie the count at 1-1 with Fasano and McGlame assisting.

"Sometimes I've thought about giving the kids shovels instead of sticks," Jago said. "We just keep coming back when we're behind."

Meanwhile, Quincy, having a frustrating season, lost to Brockton, 7-2, and Cambridge Latin, 4-1, lowering its record to 2-15-1.

The Presidents finished their season Tuesday against Brookline.

In the loss to Brockton Steve Conatas and Tim Hall scored the goals. Mark Sanderson, one of the busiest goalies in the league, had 35 saves. He has had several games with 30 or more saves.

Squantum Center captured the battle of the unbeaten to gain sole possession of first place in the Quincy Recreation Department Senior Hoop League.

The 50-42 win over Beechwood was aided by a balanced scoring attack. Chris Myer and Peter Schofield had 14 followed closely by Ted Shonits with 12. Beechwood's Steve Morrad had 12 while Joe Nelson had 10 and Joe Mulvey six.

First year Squantum coach John Reney praised the defense of Tim Burke, particularly in the first half. Rick Radzik of Beechwood also pointed out the outstanding hustle of Jackie Greene.

In other action, Janice Sullivan, the league's only female coach, saw her Point squad come from behind to best Atherton Hough 36-29 and gain its first win of the season.

Jim Rice had 12 points followed by Jim Shagrew's 11 and Jay McLaren chipped in 6. Atherton's top scorer was Steve Gardner with 11, followed by Dennis DeCoste's 10 and Steve Picarski's 4. Fran Donovan had high praise for the rebounding of Marc Farrand and the hustle of John Bogan. The standings as of 2:15.86: Squantum 3-0; Beechwood Knoll 2-1, Montclair 1-1, Central 1-1, Point 1-2, Atherton 0-3.

Monti, 106.4; John Broadbent, 104.6; Steve Mancuso, 103.8; Russ Melanson, 102.9; Mario Scorza, 102.3; Dave Miceli, 101.7, and Mike Miceli, 101.

Overnight Tagging Moratorium To End

The limited moratorium on ticketing for overnight parking is scheduled to end this week, and enforcement of regulations to resume next week.

During the moratorium, called by Police Chief Francis Finn at the request of City Council president Stephen McGrath, tagging of overnight parkers was by complaints only.

The moratorium enabled residents who do not have off street parking to obtain the proper overnight parking permit or to make other parking arrangements.

No all night parking is allowed on Quincy streets without a night parking permit, according to police.

McGrath thanked Police Chief Francis Finn for the two-week grace period during a meeting of the City Council's Public Safety Committee Monday night.

"It may contribute to the lessening of confusion of residents unaware of the overnight parking ban," said McGrath.

Also during the meeting, Capt. Walter Frazier of the Quincy Police Traffic Department, said that 145 overnight parking permits have been issued this month, and 300 to 400 are waiting to be processed.

Over 1,000 residents throughout the city have such permits, with many of them on streets such as Farrington and Fayette with multiple family dwellings, Frazier said.

Councilor Joseph LaRia suggested that the need for the permits is reflective of the change in society from one-family houses and one car, to two and three family houses with numerous cars.

Some good press would help people understand the situation, said Councilor Theodore DeCristofaro.

The need for an officer during the morning at Newport Ave. and Beale St. was stressed by Councilor John Lydon, who also complained about all day parkers.

When asked by Lydon what he would suggest to improve the problem of all-day parkers, Frazier proposed raising the fines in Quincy Square.

Frazier also suggested raising the fine of all day parkers on side streets from $5 to $10 after the 10th ticket.

Lydon suggested that Frazier recommend the fine increases as part of a traffic study of the city.

Councilor Patricia Toland complained of speeders on Newport Ave. and the new Burgin Parkway Extension.

After the meeting, committee chairman Michael Cheney said that if the increase in fines, as well as of night parking permits, is not recommended in the traffic study, he will recommend it to the City Council.

State Funds For Traffic Sign Fabricator

Quincy Police will be reimbursed for up to $6,000 for a sign fabricator by the Governor's Highway Safety Bureau, State Sen. Paul D. Harold of Quincy announced.

Harold said that purchase of a sign fabricator will enable the department to manufacture traffic signs instead of purchasing them, resulting in a financial savings.

He noted that the signs are needed to inform motorists of traffic conditions to prevent accidents and the resulting injuries or deaths.

In keeping with the commitment to provide maximum community assistance, Gov. Michael S. Dukakis approved the request of the police department for funding assistance, said Harold.

No information on the plans was available at the meeting.

McCauley Seeks Funds To Study Police Dept.

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Mayor Francis McCauley said he will submit a request for a $19,500 appropriation to the City Council Monday night for a study of the Quincy Police Department.

If the request is approved by the council, the study could start three weeks after a contract is signed, said McCauley. It will take about four months to complete.

Councilor Richard Koch, Jr., suggested the study in a resolve in January after he questioned some ticketing practices.

The study will be conducted under the direction of the Massachusetts Municipal Association, which will bring in consultants with experience in police matters, McCauley said.

Such things as organization and structure as well as personnel and management will be covered, the mayor said.

The question of staffing one man cars will also be among the matters looked at, said McCauley who added that he and the City Council will be kept informed about the study.

"The study doesn't mean there is anything wrong," noted McCauley, who said the consultants will also report to the architect working on plans for a new police station.

"Studies can be useful. They should be done periodically," according to McCauley, who said that is done with the hospital and schools through the accreditation process.

"We're not singling out the Police Department," he said.

A few years ago, an order was submitted for a similar study, said McCauley, but no action was taken by the City Council after Police Chief Francis Finn expressed concern with the group which was to do the study.

This study has been supported by Finn who was among those who attended a meeting on the subject Monday in the mayor's office at City Hall.

Also attending were Koch, Councilor Michael Cheney, chairman of the Public Safety Committee; Capt. Paul Nestor, Capt. Fred Laracy and Lt. William Curran.

School Overcrowding Topic At March 5 Meeting

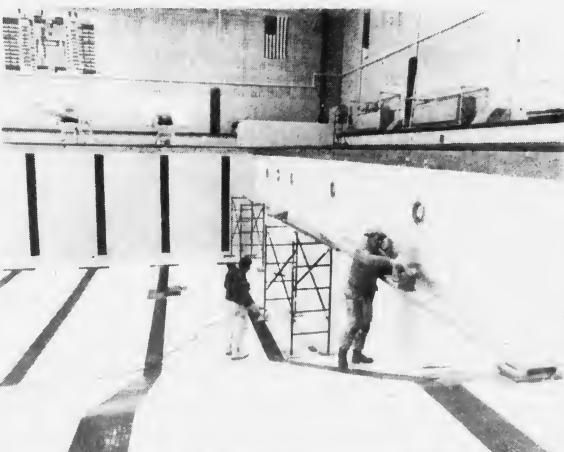

Representatives from nine elementary school Parent Teacher Organizations urge all parents to attend a March 5 school committee meeting on the issue of overcrowding in schools.

At a Feb. 24 meeting, those PTO representatives said they shared information concerning educational proposals. Their discussion centered on the problems created by the increased enrollment at the elementary level and the possible disruption of schools due to reorganization.

The PTO group said the school superintendent will present his recommendations to resolve the problem of overcrowding in the schools at that meeting.

Crane To Return Unclaimed Monies

Massachusetts Abandoned Property Law (M.G.L. Ch. 200A) is known as the Unclaimed Money Law.

It is one of the Commonwealth's first consumer protection laws dating back to 1907.

This law protects individuals by assuring that unclaimed bank accounts, uncashed payroll checks, gift certificates, insurance proceeds and other funds which have been inactive for at least five years are returned to their rightful owners or legal heirs.

State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane is charged with administering this law. One of his responsibilities is to see that banks and other institutions are in compliance with the law. In the past, Treasurer Crane has had to sue banks, department stores and insurance companies to make them turn over unclaimed funds. The Treasurer's Office then must try to locate the missing owners to return their monies to them.

In March Treasurer Crane will release the names of more than 30,000 Massachusetts residents who are due unclaimed funds. These names and other information will appear in newspapers throughout the state.

Last year Crane's office returned more than $10 million to the rightful owners or legal heirs under this statute.

Nutley Urges Residents To Attend MWRA Meeting

Ward 6 Councillor Thomas J. Nutley is urging local residents to attend a public hearing tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. by the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority Community Advisory Council.

The hearing will be in regard to the possible use of the Moon Island holding tanks for sewage containment and the possible building of a sewage treatment facility at the Moon Island site, Nutley said.

It will be held at the Squantum School, Huckins Ave.

"I strongly urge the residents of Quincy, and particularly of Squantum, to attend this very important community meeting," said Nutley.

"It's imperative that we register our very strong opposition to this use of Moon Island."

"The most sensible course is to put all sewage treatment efforts into the new and modern plant that will be built at Deer Island.

"To put a treatment facility on Moon Island of any size would be to ignore the decisions to contain all treatment at Deer Island.

"Again, it is imperative that a strong showing be made by Quincy residents Thursday evening to show our absolute opposition to this use of Moon Island," said Nutley.

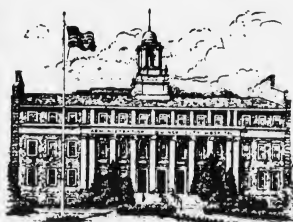

Leo Kelly, a member of the MWRA board, requested that the meeting be held in Quincy to allow local input.

Finn In Opposition

License Board Approves Chinese Restaurant

By DAN CONNELLY

The Quincy License Board voted Tuesday to grant Carlo Wang Restaurant, Inc. a common victualer license for a Chinese restaurant at 15 Copeland St., West Quincy.

Police Chief Francis Finn, who at a meeting last week said: "it's a bad, bad location for a busy restaurant," was the only board member who opposed granting the license.

Finn's objections were to traffic concerns when he said "I still worry for pedestrian safety for restaurant patrons who will be using a parking lot across the street at F.W. Foley Corp.

He added that there is a lot of high speed vehicle problems in the area which his department is working to curb.

Before the board took a vote, Acting Fire Chief Carl Valenti spoke about the probable parking on both sides of Copeland St., when the new restaurant opens, which he said will threaten the free flow of emergency vehicles.

Building Inspector Allan MacDonald offered a solution to Valenti's concern by suggesting the opposite side of Copeland St. be made a tow zone.

Finn and other board members agreed and plan to make a motion to the council designating that side of Copeland St. be "signed" a tow area.

Ward 4 Councilor James Sheets, who has continually praised the Nikolaos Regas family, owners of the building where the new restaurant will be sited, still expressed worry on the impact the new business will have on traffic and parking in the area.

Jacqueline Quirk, administrative aide to Sheets, turned over to board chairman John Gillis a letter requesting that the board provide more time to work on the matter of traffic, parking, and off-site parking.

Sheets also said in the letter that "the Regas family have been an asset to the community."

The Quincy Community Action Inc. also submitted a letter to the board praising the hard work the Regas family have contributed toward the revitalization of the Brewer's Corner area.

The letter was submitted when it came to the attention of that organization that the Regas' have an opportunity to rent space in their building to be used as a Chinese restaurant.

At last week's hearing Atty. Kenneth M.P. Yee, who represented applicant Lu Yui Wang, told the board there are spaces available for 12 cars at the nearby F.W. Foley Corp. lot.

Yee also said that the number of seats in the restaurant has been reduced from 50 to 40.

Atty. Charles Henes, who represented the Regas, told the board last week that his client is paying $16,000 to $17,000 a year overhead on the building, including taxes on restaurant equipment.

Next To Last Ship Christened At GD Yard

The 1st Lt. Jack Lummus, fourth of five Maritime Prepositioning Ships (MPS) being built for the U.S. Navy, was christened Saturday at the General Dynamics Quincy Shipbuilding Division.

The ship is named for World War II U.S. Marine Corps Medal of Honor recipient 1st Lt. Jack Lummus of Ennis, Texas, who was killed on Iwo Jima in March, 1945.

Lummus successfully carried out a one-man assault over open ground, eliminating a network of enemy installations that had kept his platoon pinned down.

All MPS ships are named for Marine Corps officers or enlisted who have been awarded the Medal of Honor.

The ship was co-sponsored by 1st Lt. Lummus' two surviving sisters, Mrs. Thomas G. Wright of Ennis, Texas, and Mrs. Dorothy T. Merritt of Fort Worth. Featured speaker at the christening was Rep. Nicholas Mavroules (D-Mass.), a member of the House Armed Services Committee.

The mission of the 22,700-ton, Quincy-designed ships is to provide support for the U.S. Rapid Deployment Force. Stationed at forward bases in regions of potential crisis and fully loaded with military cargoes, they will be ready at all times to get underway. With nearly four acres of cargo space on seven decks, each ship can deliver the ammunition, fuel, supplies and equipment needed by one-quarter of a Marine Amphibious Brigade, or roughly 3,000 men. It would require a fleet of 250 Boeing 747s to provide equivalent capacity by air.

THE NEXT TO the last ship that will be built at the General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard, 1st Lt. Jack Lummus was christened Saturday.

Following sea trials, the 1st Lt. Jack Lummus will be ready to join her sister ships, the 2nd Lt. John P. Bobo, Pfc. Dewayne T. Williams, and 1st Lt. Baldomero Lopez, already in service.

The final MPS vessel in the program is expected to be completed in May.

A General Dynamics subsidiary, American Overseas Marine Corporation, will operate the ships under long-term charter to the U.S. Navy's Military Sealift Command.

School Committee To Review Proposed $29.8 Million Budget

The School Committee will review the $29,800,000 budget proposed by the mayor at a meeting open to the public Saturday at 9 a.m. in the School Committee Room at Quincy High School.

The budget, which was presented to the School Committee at its Feb. 19 meeting, is up $3,625,000 from this year's budget of $26,175,000, according to Mayor Francis McCauley.

Slightly more than $3 million of the increase is to cover salary increases, said McCauley, and the rest is for other needs of the school system as determined by Supt. John Osterman.

A public hearing on the budget will be held as part of the regular meeting March 19, he said.

The budget is determined by the mayor, explained McCauley, and approved by the School Committee which does not have fiscal autonomy.

The School Committee can determine the line items, or where the money goes, he said.

McCauley said that budget hearings in other areas are progressing.

The remaining items include the School Department budget, Cherry Sheets, which last year came in March 1, and the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority assessment for water and sewer charges.

The Cherry Sheets specify the money the city will be getting, and charges it will have to pay, the mayor said.

McCauley said that April 7 is the target date for submitting the city budget to the City Council.

Over $1,000 Stolen At House Of Pancakes

Over $1,000 was reported stolen Feb. 21, from the cash register of the International House of Pancakes, 111 Washington St., Quincy Center.

According to Tracey Morrison, owner and manager, two men came into the restaurant, placed an order to go and waited by the register.

The cashier went into the back room to check on the order, and when she returned, the men were gone, police said.

About that time, Morrison was entering the restaurant and noticed a man exiting with a large sum of money in his hand, according to police.

The money was not discovered gone until about an hour later, police said.

NATURAL GAS THE MODERN ALTERNATIVE

Take a big load off laundry costs with a new gas dryer.

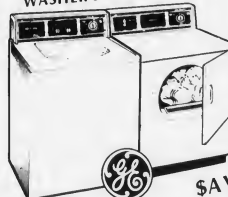

- Nothing dries clothes more economically than a natural gas dryer. Clean, efficient gas dries more loads than electric dryers do for the same cost.
- Nothing dries clothes faster than a natural gas dryer. It moves more warm air through the drying drum.
- A reliable gas dryer maintains its efficiency year after year. Your dryer lasts longer.

Burning calories before you eat them? Take control with a gas range.

- Professional chefs demand natural gas ranges for the precise temperature control they need.
- Only a clean, gas flame adjusts instantly from high heat to low, low to high and everything in between.
- A gas range's flexible flame hugs every size pot and pan perfectly, for total heat distribution.
- With gas, there's no warm-up or cool-down delay. You start cooking instantly, and have control to stop boiling over, burning and spattering.

Readers Forum Re-open Wollaston School Instead Of Redistricting

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

On Feb. 5, 1986, the Furnace Brook Parent Task Force presented a proposal to the Quincy School Committee regarding overcrowding at the school.

This proposal contained several possible solutions, with the most viable being the re-opening of the Wollaston School. Mayor McCauley, although willing to examine our solution, appears to favor redistricting the entire city.

It is unnecessary to disturb the entire elementary population when only two schools face an immediate problem. It is short-sighted to shoe-horn children into schools with rapidly growing populations. The city census figures show alarming increases in some sections of the city within three years. These numbers cannot be ignored. Redistricting is not good fiscal responsibility, as it favors extensive busing at $25,000 per bus per year, over a one-time cost of re-opening Wollaston School, with up to 60 per cent of these capital funding costs reimbursed by the state.

Disruption of our children's lives every few years is educationally and emotionally unsound, leaving them at the mercy of the politically powerful. They deserve a permanent, stable solution. The elected officials of Quincy have a responsibility to provide that solution NOW.

NEA Establishing Christa McAuliffe Education Fund

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

On Jan. 28, the nation mourned the death of the seven Challenger crew members.

For the National Education Association and teachers throughout the country, there was a special sadness for Christa McAuliffe, one of our colleagues. Christa symbolized what is best in our profession: dedication to students, love for education, and courage.

To commemorate Christa's pioneering spirit, NEA has developed a fund—the Christa McAuliffe American Education Fund—to enable practicing teachers to explore their subject matter in new and innovative ways. The fund will also help high school and college students fulfill their dreams of becoming teachers.

ing teachers.

By reaching teachers we will be reaching out to our children—our students—to help each of them develop a better understanding of the world around them.

As teachers, we want to honor Christa, who gave so much to all of us. It is our hope that others will join in giving generously to the fund for a future full of Christa McAuliffe.

Delahunt Stopped The Music

The music suddenly stopped before the musical chairs could even move.

It started when speculation swept Massachusetts political circles that Atty. Gen. Francis Bellotti was going to retire instead of seeking reelection.

It picked up when Bellotti the next day made it official. Attorney general for nearly a dozen years, he has found the job getting repetitious, he said.

"I know the job too well," he explained. "There is a deja vu about almost everything I do. I know what people are going to say even before they form the thought."

"The great challenges are no longer there to the same degree. The mountains have all been climbed."

Locally quite a few political figures were thinking of trying to climb a few mountains of their own.

Bellotti's decision not to seek reelection would create a chain reaction political observers were telling one another.

BELLOTTI

DELAHUNT when Delahunt, who everyone thought would run, said he wasn't going to.

If Delahunt had decided to run he would have had to vacate his D.A.'s post and there would have been all kinds of political possibilities. Like:

Senator Paul Harold, Governor's Counsellor Peter Eley, Rep. Thomas Brownell, Norfolk County Treasurer Daniel Raymond and City Council President Steve McGrath might have run for district attorney. Maybe former Asst. Dist. Atty. Richard Barry.

If Harold, Eley and Brownell ran, they would have to give up their senate, governor's councillor and House of Representative seats.

ELEY, instead of running for district attorney might make a bid for state senate. So might McGrath or Brownell or Rep. Michael Morrissey.

Ron Iacobucci might join in the run for the state senate. City Counsellor Patricia Toland who is thinking of running for Norfolk County treasurer might run instead for state representative.

But if Raymond ran for district attorney (he's the former assistant D.A.) Toland would definitely run for Norfolk County treasurer.

All kinds of possibilities. It could have been a political traffic jam.

But, alas, Delahunt stopped all the movement before it could start.

HAROLD

Bellotti has finished climbing his mountains but there are many left standing below and looking up.

WHEN WE THINK of Italo-Americans in Quincy politics the first name to come to mind is usually that of Amelio Della Chiesa and the second, Joseph LaRaia.

But it was Angelo Bizzozero who died last week at age 94, who really blazed the political trail for those of Italian ancestry.

He was elected Ward 4 councillor in 1922 and councillor at-large in 1924, serving through 1929. He was also council president. He lost a bid for mayor in 1930.

Bizzozero, who was Quincy's oldest political figure, was the last survivor of the 1924 City Council to which Thomas Burgin was elected to from Ward 1 in 1924.

That was a council with a lot of political muscle. Among them: Charles Ross and Thomas McGrath who like Burgin went on to become mayor.

REV. KEITH MUNSON, minister emeritus of historic United First Parish Church and his wife recently visited Cork, Ireland where their son-in-law is a prominent orthopedic surgeon.

Rev. Munson was made an honorary citizen of Cork by the Lord Mayor. The certificate now hangs side by side in the Munson's Saco, Me. retirement home with a similar citation given him by Quincy Mayor Francis McCauley.

The Munsons, during their trip, also visited Portugal and Spain where they saw historical Cathedrals, the tomb of Vasco de Gama in Lisbon and the sarcophagus of Christopher Columbus in Seville.

"I send along warmest greetings to you and all my acquaintances on the staff of Quincy's own newspaper," Rev. Munson writes.

BEAUTY AND BRAINS: Tricia Markakos, Miss Quincy Bay of 1983, has been doing computer work in the office of Senator Robert Dole and is taking a post as a system analyst at the Pentagon.

In college, Tricia took a double major in computer science and political science and a minor in electrical engineering.

During President Regan's State of the Union address, she watched from only 50 feet away and later attended a press conference.

How does she like Washington? "Love it."

And did someone say that it's only natural for someone who looks like her in a swimsuit should become involved in figures?

OBSERVATION via the Quincy Kiwanis Club newsletter (and from wherever they got it): "Nature often gives the biggest mouths to those who have the least to say."

ABSENTEE OWNERSHIP

QUESTION: I would like to buy an apartment building, but don't want to get involved with managing it. How do I approach this goal?

ANSWER: You can retain a real estate management company to run the property for a fee. Actually, a good management company can effect savings through its wholesale purchasing power and its professional expertise. The fee is reasonable and by using their services you will find that real estate will require no more of your time than common stocks. By handling real estate investments in this manner, you can enjoy the tax advantages of real estate with no time-consuming management details.

A PROFESSIONAL management company can eliminate the headaches of owning commercial property.

Sewer Rates Could Rise By 50 Percent

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Overall sewer rate costs to 42 communities could go up 50 per cent next year, Leo Kelly of the Mass. Water Resources Authority Advisory Board told the City Council's Environmental Control Committee Monday night.

Water rates could go up roughly 20 per cent, according to Kelly who stressed that the amounts are rough drafts and not exact figures.

He also said that the rates for individual communities have not yet been broken down, so the effect on Quincy could not be estimated.

Communities could face increases ranging from 25 per cent to 50 per cent, said Kelly, and the increases would be passed on to users.

In the last few years of

LEO J. KELLY

MDC operation of the water and the sewer systems, charges to communities did not come close to fully recovering the costs of the operations, according to a memo by Rick Innes of the MWRA finance committee to which Kelly referred.

"In an effort to avoid a 'rate shock' phenomenon, the MWRA decided last March to set rates which would, over three years, achieve the goal of recovering the full cost of current year operations," Innes said.

"The five year projected rate increases developed last year as part of this plan are now regarded as significantly too low because of unrealistic assumptions about the annual budgets for those years."

"In addition, the MWRA has heard arguments that an accelerated schedule for attaining full current year cost recovery would prove beneficial when the MWRA goes to the bond market."

"Presumably, a demonstrated history of full cost recovery and a generally stronger financial record would lower the MWRA's borrowing costs," Innes said.

"Reducing this cost item would somewhat moderate future MWRA rate hikes needed to pay for major capital programs, but the price to be paid is a stiff rate hike in fiscal year 1987," Innes stated.

The fiscal year 1987 budget will not be finalized for several months, according to a letter by John Pliotti of the MWRA Advisory Board.

Other speakers before the committee were Quincy DPW Commr. Paul Anderson of the MWRA Board of Directors; and Jack Walsh, president of the Nut Island Citizens Advisory Committee.

NEW X-RAY BUILDING

The City Council's Finance Committee approved a $500,000 loan order for a proposed new X-ray building at Quincy City Hospital.

It was the third of four major projects contained in Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa's $2.9 million capital outlay program.

Already approved by the Council were plans for a $1,486,000 city incinerator and a $300,000 gym for North Quincy High School.

The fourth project, a $150,000 branch library in North Quincy, was still before the Finance Committee.

Meanwhile, the Quincy Taxpayers Association attacked the Mayor's entire capital outlay program in its Newsletter but Della Chiesa brushed off the criticism.

Said the Mayor of QTA Executive Director George Yarrington:

"During the seven years I have been Mayor he has been absolutely no help to me in keeping the tax rate down."

In Sun Spotlight Fin, Fur And Feather Pet Shop

By DAN CONNELLY
If someone tells you that owning a pet shop is for the birds, they are only partly right, says Kathy Blackadar of Hanover, proprietor of the new Fin, Fur and Feather Pet Shop in Quincy.

Kathy, who has two other shops in Hanover and Plymouth, has found that prospective pet buyers in the Quincy area have turned largely not only to birds, but also to fish and reptiles in their selection of household pets. The reason is they are easy to care for and inexpensive to maintain, she says.

"Yes, Quincy has been good to us since we opened last November," Kathy said. "And don't forget, you don't have to walk our pets, and they show just as much affection as a dog or cat if properly cared for."

Obviously she is right. No matter what time of day the shop is open there is a potential customer browsing. The shop has also attracted the attention of area children. "Somedays it looks like the Quincy Zoo," she said.

"Our shop is so popular because we run a quality business with cleanliness as first priority. When a customer comes in and observes this kind of environment then it's a pretty good bet that person will buy one of our pets with the assurance there will be no future problems."

Kathy, who is married to John Blackadar, chief of the underwater dive team for the city of Quincy, began her entrepreneur career when she opened her first Fin, Fur and Feather Pet Shop at Route 53 in Hanover 12 years ago.

She expanded a little over two years ago and opened one at The Marketplace at Cordage Park in Plymouth.

Her third venture is the former Tech Hi-Fi store quarters at Washington St., and Southern Artery, which opened last November.

With a staff, complemented by manager Wanda O'Brien of Rockland, Kathy said her newest venture has been most rewarding.

Besides selling birds, one of which is "Baby," a blue-faced (Cont'd on Page 17)

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

There is a story told about two women who lived in the same apartment building. One evening they happened to meet while returning from shopping center. They walked together back to their apartment building and found they enjoyed one another's company very much. When they got to the apartment building they discovered, much to their surprise, that their apartments were side-by-side, yet they had never so much as seen one another before. One of the women exclaimed: "Why, we've been next door strangers more than neighbors. If I'd known it was you behind that door, I would have taken the time to knock!"

We think this story proves a very interesting point... All of us are surrounded by potential friendships and opportunities. Each one a yet-unopened door to God's blessings for our lives. Yet too many times if we wait for favorable circumstances before we take time to discover these blessings, we risk losing our opportunities. It's like passing by a door marked "what-could-be" until one day the door reads "what-had-been."

Jesus said; "Every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened." There are many doors around us ready to be opened if we only take the time to open them... (Your comments are welcome on this or any other thought you read here - and are appreciated)

Asbestos dust causes serious lung ailments; the diseases appear suddenly, years after exposure. Today numerous SHIPYARD WORKERS, MASONS, and PIPEFITTERS of the 1930's-1970's have lung afflictions because they inhaled asbestos particles many years ago.

If you worked in one of those professions then and now have a lung disease, you may be eligible to receive money damages or workers' compensation. Relatives of living and deceased victims can also recover in some cases.

North Finishes Strong, Shocks Brookline In Finale

The North Quincy boys' basketball team finished up strong, winning its last three games and the Raiders saved their best performance for the final game as they shocked Brookline, 61-59, to finish with an 8-11 record.

The win had to be one of the Suburban League's big upsets of the season as Brookline, one of the top three league teams with Cambridge Rindge and Latin and Brockton, went into the contest with a 16-2 record.

Prior to the big win Ed Miller's North team had defeated Waltham in a league game and Marshfield in a non-league game.

Bob Salton's basket in the final 15 seconds put North ahead by four points and clinched the victory.

The big man for the Raiders was Chris Rossi, who scored 19 points and had 12 rebounds. Mark Scanlan had 15 points and Salton 12. Wes Paul, Tad Sheets and Brian Koch all played strong defense.

"After the way we played against Waltham and Marshfield, I felt we had a good chance to beat Brookline," said Miller. "We came along well coming down the stretch and I'm pleased with what we did."

Last season the Raiders won just three games and only one (over Quincy) in the league. This year they won four games in the league and made fine showings in several other league contests.

Quincy Ends Frustrating Season

John Franceschini's first year as Quincy boys' basketball coach finally came to a close last week with two non-league games with Milton.

Two losses ended the Presidents' season with a dismal 2-18 record, but Franceschini expressed high hopes for the future despite the record.

Quincy won just one Suburban League game and that was against North Quincy, the only game in which the Presidents shot 50 percent. The only other win was an opening night victory over Revere of the Greater Boston League.

In the first of last week's games with Milton, one of the top teams in the Bay State League headed for the Eastern Mass. Tournament with a 15-4 record, the Hawks won, 72-61.

Quincy trailed by only a 32-29 score at halftime and stayed close in the third quarter but Steve Murphy and Rich Rogers sparked a fourth-quarter drive which pulled Milton safely ahead.

Don Parry led Quincy with 18 points and Robert Connolly and Steve Austin contributed 12 each.

Milton repeated, 63-50, with Connolly scoring 16 points and Parry 11 for the Presidents.

"It was a long season, but I feel optimistic about the future," said Franceschini. "Although we will have only two varsity players returning, several of the jayvees showed promise and I feel we will get results from a youth program we have started."

"I started a program for boys from the fifth grade up and, with this program for the youngsters, summer leagues and intramural leagues, I expect things to begin looking up. I hope these programs will make up for the loss of our fine junior high programs, which really hurt the high school teams. I feel we must start teaching the boys in the lower grades the fundamentals so they will have some experience coming into high school."

Raiderettes Take 16-4 Record Into Tourney

The North Quincy girls' basketball team faltered in its last two games of the season, losing to Brookline and New Bedford, but took a 16-4 record into the state tournament and is seeded sixth.

Paul Bregoli's Raiderettes opened tournament play Tuesday night against 11th seeded Needham. If they survived, they will play the winner of the game between third-seeded Dennis-Yarmouth and No. 14 Marshfield Friday night at 7 p.m. North defeated Marshfield earlier in the season.

North Quincy dropped a 62-61 squeaker to New Bedford in the final regular season game last Thursday.

The Raiderettes took an early 7-3 lead and led, 11-6, after a quarter. Karen Runge picked up three fouls and had to sit out the rest of the half. Maureen Donovan did well filling in.

North increased its lead to 25-18 at the half, after leading by as much as 11 points. A questionable foul call on Nancy Flukes upset Bregoli, who was assessed a technical foul. Jean Welby led North in the first half, hitting eight of 10 from the foul line, while Eileen Warren had six. The teams attempted a combined 39 foul shots in the first half alone.

The Whalers, particularly Pam Souza, came out firing in the third quarter, running up 25 points and taking a 43-39 lead into the final quarter.

The fourth quarter saw North come back but also saw it lose Welby and Marybeth Maloney foul out, leaving the team without its two starting guards. Runge brought North back late in the game with her long-range shooting.

North did manage to take a two-point lead with 23 seconds left and had the ball. However, the Raiderettes, who turned the ball over 37 times, lost the ball with four seconds left and Souza tied the score and sent the game into overtime. In OT, North had the lead but lost Runge and Carrie Pistorino on fouls.

Warren led North with 17 points and 17 rebounds. Runge had 15 points. Flukes 11 and Welby a career-high 10.

Earlier in the week North lost at Brookline, 43-38, having a hard time finding the range.

North missed its first five shots and the score was tied at 10-10 after a quarter. Runge and Warren each scored four points.

The Raiderettes took a 26-20 lead at the half as Fluke scored six points and Runge and Warren again four each in the second quarter.

Both teams struggled offensively in the third quarter with North taking a 32-2 lead into the fourth quarter. Here North missed six layup and six foul shots but was still in command, 36-33, after Welby hit a foul shot. But to many missed chances sealed North's fate.

Flukes had 14 points. Runge 11 and Warren 10.

"Not having Runge, Warren and Anne Marie Hughes healthy for the last two games hurt us badly," Bregoli said. "Although we lost both games, all the kids are now healthy for the tournament. It seems they have been waiting for about three weeks for this."

Senior League Central Rallies To Edge Montclair, 54-52

In the closest game of the young season, Central came from behind to capture a 54-52 victory over once beaten Montclair in the Quincy Recreation Department Senior Hoop League.

Mark DiMattio had 16 points for Central while Montclair's Barry McNamara had all scorers with 8. Larry Taglieri had 10 and Scott Sacchetti six for Central. Montclair's Mike Ainsley had 11 and Mike Kubera had nine. Montclair coach Dean Zoia was pleased with Mike Dwyer's defensive play and the two way hustle of Chris Higgins.

Central coach Brian Callow captured his first senior circuit victory as he filled in at the Central helm. Callow praised the play of Kevin Nichols who controlled the offensive boards and Sean Poh for his tough defense.

In the second game Beechwood bounced back from last week's loss and defeated Point, 58-44. The Rick Radzik-coached club got 20 points from Kevin Duffy and 18 from Eddie Herman to jump to an early lead. Joe Mulvey also chipped in 11 points for the winners.

Janice Sullivan was looking to put back-to-back win together for her Point team but fell short despite the 16 point performance of Jim Adams. Joe Russell had 1 and Jim Rice 10. Radzik praised Jimmy Mulvey and Joe Foley on defense, while Sullivan was pleased with Mark Gunther's hustle and Jim Shagru's defensive work.

North Icemen Make Tourney, Miss Title

By TOM SULLIVAN

North Quincy's hockey team is in the state tournament for the third straight year, but for the second year in a row the Raiders missed the Suburban League title by a single point.

Kevin Jago's North team finished its season at 11-5-3 (7-3-2 in the league) with a 4-2 victory last Thursday over Brookline.

However, Brockton finished as champion a point in front of the Raiders by defeating Newton North.

North Quincy missed its chance at its first league crown when it lost to Waltham, 4-2, earlier in the week, while Brockton breezed past Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 11-5.

North will play Milton (13-2-3), runnerup in the Bay State League, Sunday at 3 o'clock at Northeastern's Matthews Arena.

If the Raiders survive, they face an unenviable task of facing top-seeded Boston College High (17-2), Catholic Conference champions, next Tuesday night at 7 o'clock at the Gallo Rink in Bourne.

Dave Fasanio scored two goals in the win over Brookline, including the game-winner in the second period, while Greg McGlame and Mark Simonelli had a goal each. Goalie Kevin Jago continued his outstanding work and had 28 saves.

Earlier in the week Waltham scored twice in the third period to top the Raiders. The win avenged an earlier 8-5 defeat at the hands of North, which overcame a 5-1 defeat with one of the greatest comebacks in league history.

Dave Tapper scored early in the second period to tie the game at 1-1 with McGlame assisting. Fasanio scored in the third period to again tie it for North and Mark Zimmerman assisting, but Waltham then scored twice to clinch the win.

The game was costly for North, which lost high-scoring Tapper with a shoulder separation. Tapper is one of the league's top scorers with 47 points. Earlier Mike Haynes, who had 42 points at the time, was sidelined for the season with severed tendons in his ankle, requiring surgery.

"Dave will be able to play with a special brace in the tournament," Jago said. "The fact he will not have played in 12 days improved his chances. Not playing until March 2 gives us a chance to get in shape with the exception of Haynes, who we certainly do miss."

The North Quincy-Milton game should be a good one. Milton has three of the top five scorers in the Bay State League, Rob Regan with 54 points, Mike Peterson with 42 and Jim Heggie with 34.

North has three of the top five in the Suburban League, Tapper with 47, Fasanio with 44 and Haynes with 42.

Milton is seeded eighth and North Quincy ninth.

"Naturally, I'm disappointed at coming so close to our first league championship and just missing out again, but the kids played well all season and I'm happy at what we achieved," Jago said.

"At the start of the season we had two inexperienced goalies, but Jeffers, a transfer from Madison High, has done a tremendous job and has a fine 3.31 goals - against average, and sophomore Brian Mahoney did well when called upon.

"Greg McGlame, our captain, was the only experienced defenseman, but Tim Duff and freshman Paul McGrath have done extremely well and are real over-achievers.

"Our most improved player is Zimmerman, who moved up to the first line when Haynes was injured. He has done a remarkable job, doing very well in short-handed situations and gaining confidence in every game."

North qualified for the tournament two years ago for the first time in 23 years and defeated Saugus, then losing to St. John's Prep, one of the top-seeded teams.

Last season the Raiders turned in an outstanding performance before losing to heavily-favored Malden Catholic in double overtime.

Jago paid tribute to his assistant coach, Rick Avery. "Rick has done a tremendous job and has made my job easier," he said.

Her aquarium offers the finest in tropical and salt water species, housed in fish tanks that complement the shop's decor.

The reptiles are snakes, large and small lizards, and tarantulas which provide much affection when cared for properly, she said.

The shop aviary daily draws an audience of all ages where the birds show their gymnastic spirits.

The shop boards all pets they sell, and they provide dog and cat grooming and give flea and flea dips. They shy away from selling these pets but do sell dog and cat supplies.

Kathy pointed out that her type of shop today is providing a sort of sanctuary for tropical birds who, because of the destruction of rain forests world wide are being displaced. By finding a haven at her shop they eventually are placed in a household.

Pee Wee B's Lose Tourney Heartbreaker

Quincy's Pee Wee B team, sponsored by A & T Movers, advanced to the finals of the recent Cranberry Invitational Tournament in Pembroke before losing a 2-1 heart-breaker to Edgewood, R.I., in overtime.

Jeff Freeman scored Quincy's lone goal 39 seconds into the game with Armando Mancini assisting. Both teams showed a strong defense with Quincy battling through two 5 on 3 situations late in the third period.

With just two seconds left on the clock, Edgewood scored and sent the game into overtime. Edgewood scored the winning goal at the two-minute mark of the OT period.

In the semifinals Quincy defeated the 1985 state champions, Plymouth, 4-3. Mancini, Greg Hohmann, Mike Hughes and Jamie Tapper scored the goals and Tapper's with 1:31 left in the game was the game-winner. John Witham had two assists and Mark Kelleher and Hughes one each.

In both games Pat O'Donoghue and John Bertrand were outstanding in goal.

In earlier games Quincy had lost to Edgewood, 6-3; defeated Duxbury, 6-1, and blanked Pembroke, 6-0.

Against Edgewood Hughes scored twice and Kelleher once. Tapper had two assists and Kelleher, Mancini and David Mellyn one each.

Against Duxbury Hughes had a hat trick, his third goal being on a penalty shot. Freeman scored twice and Mellyn once. Kelleher, Rich Brooks, Duane Keegan, Jeremy Burn, Billy Lydon and Mike Wood had assists.

In the Pembroke game Hohmann, Wood, Witham, Hughes, Burn and Brooks scored the goals. Hughes had two assists and Mellyn, Brooks, Mancini, Tapper, Kelleher and Hohmann one each.

In a Greater Boston League game Quincy defeated Hyde Park, 7-1. Hohmann had two goals and Freeman, Kelleher, Hughes, Tapper and Lydon one apiece. Kelleher, Burn and Hughes had two assists apiece and Lydon, Brooks, Freeman and Wood one each. O'Donoghue played a strong game in goal.

In a non-league game Quincy dropped a 2-1 decision to the Ottawa Valley Titans, who were here for the Kiwanis International Tournament. Lydon scored the goal and Wood and Freeman assisted.

Be Sure To Buckle Up Your Children

February 23 to March 1 is National Child Passenger Safety Awareness Week. Quincy police are asking parents to make a special effort to buckle up their children.

Every year in Massachusetts, hundreds of children are seriously injured or killed in motor vehicle accidents. Of those who survive, many are crippled for life by spinal cord injuries, brain damage, and traumatic epilepsy. Most of these deaths and injuries could be prevented simply by using car seats and safety belts.

The Child Passenger Safety Law, requiring all children under the age of five to be fastened in a properly adjusted car seat or seat belt, has been in effect since 1982. The 1986 seat belt law requires children over five, as well as teenagers and adults, to use safety belts.

"During the week of Feb. 23-March 1, our officers will make a special effort to enforce these two laws that protect children. We think it's important that the public understand the benefits of buckling up," says Chief Frances X. Finn.

For further information about safety belts and child safety seats, contact your local health department or your child's pediatrician.

To obtain a free "buckle up" dashboard reminder sticker, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to: Sticker, P.O. Box 10, Boston, MA 02112.

Keep Your Battery Charged For Trouble-Free Winter Starts

... the mercury drops toward zero ... cars fail to start because of battery problems

... and someone revives the old idea that turning on a car's headlights for a few seconds is sure to make cold-weather starting easier.

AAA Massachusetts says there isn't much truth to that idea, a conclusion that is backed by battery manufacturers and automotive experts.

"Theoretically, there is scientific evidence that turning on headlights prior to starting a car's engine creates enough of a chemical reaction to warm the battery," said Dr. Lash Mapa, Manager of Technical Customer Service for General Battery Corp.

"From a practical standpoint, however, there's no guarantee that it will work because of variables like the condition of the battery, its cold-weather starting potential, and the electrical demand being put upon it." AAA experts agree.

"If your car starts after you've turned your headlights on, it's probably not because your battery was significantly warmed up," said John R. Duddy, Manager of Automotive Services for AAA Massachusetts. "It's more likely that your battery had enough cranking power to burn your headlights and start your engine."

"When the temperature is zero, even a new battery operates at only 40 percent efficiency, and powering the headlights reduces that efficiency even further," Duddy said.

"AAA says the best way to insure trouble-free winter starts is by keeping your car battery fully-charged and in top operating condition."

Engine temperature can affect efficient gasoline consumption

If your car has been slow to warm up during these cold winter mornings, you may be due for a new thermostat. Controlling the flow of water between the radiator and the engine, the thermostat is a temperature control valve which keeps engine temperature within proper limits.

Replacing this part is a minor expense that can pay for itself in a short time says Car Care Council. A thermostat that's stuck open will cause the engine to run cold, increasing gasoline consumption by as much as 10 to 20 percent. If it sticks in the closed position, the car will overheat, possibly damaging the engine.

Another valve in the cooling system is the radiator pressure cap which keeps the cooling system under pressure, thereby increasing the boiling point of the coolant. When the pressure cap fails, the engine may overheat and coolant goes into the reservoir tank, eventually overflowing to the ground.

A visual check of the pressure cap may expose a faulty gasket or weak spring. But the best check is with a pressure tester designed for this purpose, generally used by most service shops. This indicates the condition of the cap and tests the rest of the cooling system for leaks.

For a primer on the cooling system, how it works and how to keep it working, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Automotive Cooling System Institute for the booklet "A Quick Course in Car Care." Their address is 222 Cedar Lane, Teaneck, NJ 07666.

Cheney, Nutley Oppose Moon, Long Island As Possible Jail Site

Two City Councillors, Michael Cheney and Thomas Nutley, have written to Gov. Michael Dukakis opposing the consideration of either Moon Island or Long Island as a site for a new correctional facility.

"As chairman of the Public Safety Committee, I strongly feel that a correctional facility on either Moon Island or Long Island would jeopardize the public safety of the citizens of Quincy," said Cheney.

Nutley wrote, "While I accept, and support, the need of some mitigating measures to lessen the impact of the planned regional sewage treatment facility on the town of Winthrop, such as demolition of the Deer Island Jail, I strongly object to the consideration of either Moon Island or Long Island as sites for that jail."

Cheney noted that The Boston Globe reported Feb. 19, that Gov. Dukakis set mid-May as the date for the siting of a new prison to replace the Deer Island House of Correction.

"During a recent public hearing on the siting of a waste-water treatment facility for Boston Harbor, over 2,000 citizens of the City of Quincy turned out to voice their opinion as to the future of these islands.

"The message was clear that Long Island should be preserved for future generations as a passive recreational open space area and should be made a part of the state's Harbor Island Park Program," stated Cheney in the letter.

Cheney cited a number of reasons that Moon or Long Island would not be a good location for the jail, such as: Quincy could not handle a 500-inmate prison, and Massachusetts residents would lose a valuable open space area.

He also said it would adversely affect Squantum residents, and would not be in the best interest of Boston residents to displace patients at Long Island Hospital or the temporary Home for the Homeless.

Nutley said, "of the four options mentioned in the Feb. 19 issue of The Boston Globe, the Nashua St. site (next to the planned Charles St. Jail) and the South End old incinerator sites are far better alternatives.

"They would provide easier, faster and cheaper access for prison personnel and visitors by virtue of their location, but, would not suffer the destruction of the last vestiges of 'Recreational Frontiers' that both Moon Island and Long Island would suffer if a jail was built at either island site.

"These two islands offer recreational potential to our citizens and to our polluted urban atmosphere unmatched by any other location within the Route 228 area.

"To destroy them in this manner would be thoughtless and foolhardy and without consideration for our children who are left with little recreational potential as is.

"Furthermore, the concept of isolated, 18th century island prisons was shed with the closing of the inhumane Alcatraz prison some 20 plus years ago.

"How ironic it would be if 'enlightened Massachusetts' were to return to that unfeeling concept."

Suggested By Cheney

McCauley Has No Plans For Data Processing Study

Mayor Francis McCauley said that he doesn't plan to act at this time on the suggestion of Councilor Michael Cheney that a computer consultant be hired to review problems the Data Processing Department has encountered.

Cheney made the suggestion in the form of a resolve which was adopted by the City Council Monday night.

He suggested that the consultant, or a computer consultant firm, could make recommendations on how to improve the system "to ensure greater accuracy so that the citizens and employees of the City of Quincy will not incur any further hardships relating to computer errors."

Cheney was referring to errors in parking tickets, commercial property tax, real estate, and W-2 forms which have occurred recently.

McCauley said he did not consider the problems to be major.

"There are always problems implementing changes in a system," said McCauley, who was referring to the change from a manual to a computer system which began in July, 1983.

"Of 20,000 real property tax bills sent out, there were 800 errors. That's only a four per cent error rate."

"I've had enough experience in the banking field to know that when a system is changed, there are always problems."

"But we're striving to improve the system."

"A computer doesn't solve all the problems. There's no question that things are far, far ahead of when I came here four years ago.

"Yes, we have had problems, but we're making good strides."

McCauley did not rule out the possibility of a study in the future.

"From time to time, we should have studies of the different departments," he said, noting that the council appropriated funds for a Police Department study Monday night.

Cheney's resolve followed a presentation during the meeting by Robert Brennan, Director of Data Processing, Computer Billing.

"It's with regret that I come before you to answer questions regarding errors," said Brennan.

He said that checks and counter checks are now being used to avoid duplicating errors.

In addition, Brennan said that a person involved with the parking ticket error is no longer with the city.

The commercial property tax bills went out before being checked by the Assessors or Collectors Office because of time constraints, explained Brennan.

A problem with recalculation of land value was responsible for the error in 830 out of 22,000 real estate bills, according to Brennan.

The W-2 forms, not all of which were incorrect, were not checked before they were issued, he said.

"I'm satisfied that you've taken corrective action," said Cheney.

Councilor Joseph LaRaia said, "It seems that you know what the problem is and are correcting it."

Good News:

State Aid Up $3.7M

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The city will receive a $3,757,648 net increase in fiscal 1987 according to the recently received Cherry Sheets, said Mayor Francis McCauley.

The Cherry Sheets are from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Department of Revenue, and are sent to assessors of fiscal 1987 estimated receipts to be used in determining the tax levy.

They will be in determining Quincy's budget scheduled to be presented to the City Council April 7.

The total revenue coming in amounts to $36,077,436, compared to last year's $32,206,814, said McCauley. That is an increase of $3,870,622, he said, or about 12 percent.

The assessments to the city total $3,522,922, McCauley said, compared to last year's $3,409,948. The increase is $12,974 or 3.3%, he said.

Some of the major funds the city will receive are school aid, $12,881,090; additional assistance general fund appropriation to local aid fund, $16,948,749; lottery, beano, charity games, $2,503,115; school construction $1,125,563; and reimbursement for loss of taxes, $370,127.

Major charges to the city include Norfolk County government, $689,844; MBTA, $2,662,940; miscellaneous state assessments, $98,378.

Before the budget is completed, McCauley said he will go back and review some department budgets.

He said the last major item needed is the Mass. Water Resources Authority assessment for water and sewers which is expected to increase substantially in fiscal 1987.

Council Approves Police Study

The City Council voted unanimously Monday night to appropriate $19,500 for a study of the Quincy Police Department.

Councilor Richard Koch, Jr., who had suggested the study in a resolve in January, said he was looking forward to positive results.

The motion was seconded by Councilor Michael Cheney who said the study would be a useful tool to the Police Chief.

The study could start three weeks after a contract is signed, Mayor Francis McCauley said last week.

It will take about four months to complete, according to McCauley who said that the study will be conducted under the direction of the Massachusetts Municipal Association.

The MMA will bring in consultants with experience in police matters, said McCauley who noted that the study does not mean there is anything wrong in the department.

Osterman Recommends City Follow State On AIDS Policy

School Superintendent John Osterman was scheduled last night (Wednesday) to ask the School Committee to adopt a state policy on AIDS for the Quincy schools.

Osterman will submit to that committee the following recommendations made by his Task Force on Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome.

"That the Quincy Public Schools adopt the Policy Statement issued by the Department of Public Health.

"That the Superintendent will determine, on a case by case basis, who, in addition to the principal, teacher(s) and nurse, should have medical knowledge about a student.

"That any staff member diagnosed as having AIDS or with clinical evidence of HTLV-III Virus Infection be required to report this condition to the Superintendent of Schools who will maintain confidentiality. The Superintendent will consult with the staff member's personal physician and together they will develop a plan for the person's continuing service that will afford protection for students and staff.

"That staff inservice be initiated to provide all members of the staff with proper medical information about AIDS."

The recommendations do not call for the notification of parents of other students in the AIDS victim's class.

It is not known if there is anyone in the school system diagnosed as having AIDS.

A WINNER — James F. Spellman of Wollaston was one of four lucky winners in a recent Megabucks drawing. Spellman, who bought his ticket at the Wollaston Supreme, won $477,695, and will receive $17,913 for 20 years.

Moon Island Sewerage Facility Opposed By City Council

The Quincy City Council adopted a resolve Monday night opposing any type of sewerage treatment facility on Moon Island.

The resolve, introduced by Councilors Thomas Nutley and Michael Cheney, noted that the island is under consideration for the site of a new and/or updated sewerage treatment facility to handle overflows from Boston.

"Sewerage discharges coming from Moon Island have been, for many years, a source of pollution to Boston Harbor and Quincy Bay," stated the resolve.

"Moon Island is in close proximity to the residents of Squantum and construction of any type would impact the residents of Squantum," it said.

DPW Commr. Paul Anderson, a member of the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority board of directors, told the council that if the Moon Island option moves forward, he will suggest to the mayor that the city take the issue to court.

The caucus will be presided over by Sen. Paul D. Harold.

Limousine Salesroom Proposed

The License Board continued to March 11 a hearing on the request of Arthur Cote for a permit to open a new limousine salesroom at 67 Field St., behind Southern Artery.

The applicant, who formerly operated Cote Ford Motor Company of Mattapan, plans to sell to dealers or act as agent for the Florida-based Bradford Coachworks line of converting Lincolns to limousines.

He was seeking from the Board the approval of a Motor 1 license.

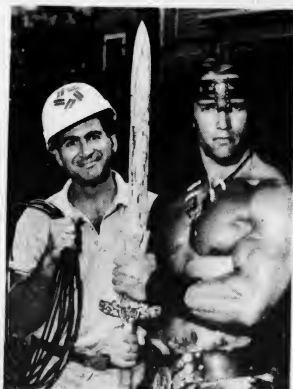

Chairman John Gillis told Cote he has to complete a financial statement and obtain a gasoline license before the Board can take action on his petition.

Cote said he will use the top level of the building as a showroom and garage, with storage for 12 vehicles. The floor is designed for such a load, Cote added. He also told the Board no heavy mechanical work will be done on the premise.

Cote said he will probably display a limousine outside the entrance to the building but only during business hours.

204 In Quincy Area Sought By Crane For Unclaimed Money

Some 204 Quincy businesses and individuals will have money coming back to them as the state treasurer's office released a list of 26,000 names who are due a share in a $13 million windfall from abandoned accounts.

Treasurer Robert Q. Crane said that under the state's Unclaimed Money Law, bank accounts, insurance proceeds, uncashed gift certificates, payroll checks, customer overpayments and the like that have gone untouched for at least five years are considered by the state to be abandoned.

All such accounts must be reported to the Treasurer, who then attempts to notify the rightful owners or their heirs.

Crane said compliance with the law is improving. "However, there are still numerous instances where funds should have been returned directly such as in the case of Boston Edison Company, General Electric, the New England Patriots, and United Airlines."

Crane added that one important aspect of the law requires that until claimed, all funds are kept in the state's General Fund where they are invested for the benefit of all residents and taxpayers here.

Commend Asst. Dist. Atty. For Murder Prosecution

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

We want to take this opportunity to publicly thank Assistant District Attorney Judith Cowin.

Ms. Cowin recently prosecuted three Quincy Youths for the robbery and murder of disabled Vietnam Veteran John Scanlon.

The professional and thorough manner in which she prepared her case, her attention to detail and her trial presentation resulted in all three defendants pleading guilty.

As Vietnam Veterans we found Mr. Scanlon's murder to be particularly repugnant. It was the final indignity inflicted upon that poor, homeless, troubled veteran.

Still Seeking Reaction To Linkage Proposal

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Development in the City of Quincy is an issue that has gotten much attention lately. Such attention is very justified. Quincy has very little open developable land left. Further, the City is already so built up that any development is bound to have an adverse effect on concerns such as traffic and the environment.

In spite of the limits to development which Quincy seems to have reached, it seems to be peaking as far as being a desirable place for developers to pursue new projects, whether they be office buildings or housing. It is quite ironic that at the same time, the issues of homelessness and affordable housing seems to be intensifying.

It therefore makes sense to me that if the above two factors are our present realities, they can simply be made to work together with each other. I am specifically suggesting that the City of Quincy adopt a linkage program. This would require developers to contribute to increasing the availability of affordable housing as a condition for them to so develop within the City. There are many creative ways to accomplish this. Two basic ways are to either have the prospective developer build a certain number of low and moderate income apartments along with the rest of his/her development or otherwise to simply pay a sum of money in proportion to the size of the development into a city fund for linkage and affordable housing.

In early October I wrote to my Ward Councilor expressing the above thoughts and urging his support for the same. I indicated that exact details could certainly be worked out and that I was glad to assist with the same. He promptly wrote back and indicated that he had forwarded my letter to the Planning Director for the City of Quincy, requesting his views and recommendations in this regard. He closed by indicating that he would keep me apprised of his findings.

Ms. Cowin's handling of John Scanlon's case, gave a dignity to his death, that he did not enjoy in life.

Mr. Scanlon died as a street person, a homeless man, a man forgotten by the system. He served his country well, and in turn he was served well, by assistant D.A. Judith Cowin.

Mr. Delahunt and the citizens of Norfolk County can be proud of having a professional, the caliber of Ms. Cowin, serving in our D.A.'s office.

In mid November, I wrote back to my Ward Councilor. I enclosed a recent newspaper article about linkage. I further indicated to him that while I thought the Planning Director could be very helpful with technical assistance, I was urging his support of the linkage concept and wanted to know his position on the subject. I further indicated that I felt the City Council would be the appropriate place to vote to have the Planning Director assist in developing a linkage plan.

In late December I wrote another letter to my Ward Councilor indicating that he hadn't responded to my previous letter and asked for a reply to the same. Still receiving no response, I wrote another such letter to him in early February. This letter was sent by certified mail, with three notices issued to the Ward Councilor. He did not sign for the letter and did not read its contents.

I am not in a position to draw any conclusions regarding either Mr. Cheney's relationship with developers or his communication with constituents. This is due to the fact that he has failed to constructively communicate with me. However, inferences can be drawn.

Comer To Head American Legion

John (Jake) Comer has good reason for that big smile he is wearing.

He wants to be national commander of the American Legion. And, apparently he is going to be by 1987.

Comer, who is executive director of the Quincy Housing Authority, took a major step toward that goal at the Legion's recent annual Legislative Conference in Washington, D.C.

And, if everything continues to go the way it is, he will become national commander at the national convention in San Antonio, Tex. in August, 1987.

Comer, who is the National Executive Committee member representing Massachusetts, and a former Legion state commander got what amounts to a go-ahead and endorsement during the Legislative Conference.

Top Legion figures from around the country attended the conference and most of them made it a point to look him up and indicate their support.

You might say his campaign officially opened when he was allowed to set up a hospitality room at the conference based hotel.

And, things really got rolling when an estimated 500 to 600 of the Legion officials visited him at that hospitality room each night for three nights.

"If you are not being considered for national commander you can't even have a hospitality room," says Comer.

So, it would appear that not only is he being considered, but endorsed, too.

"I'm totally encouraged," says Comer. "It was a wonderful, heartwarming reception."

Dale Renaud of Iowa is expected to succeed present National Commander James (Jimmy) Dean of Mississippi in 1986.

And Comer is now in line to succeed Renaud the following year.

Comer would be the first Quincy man and the second Massachusetts resident to make it to national commander in the American Legion.

Only other one was Daniel Doherty of Woburn who won the honor in 1937.

Comer, an Air Force veteran of the Korean War, was state commander in 1975 and has been National Executive Committee member since 1980.

As national commander he would be involved in matters involving this country's military stance and policies and would even confer, from time to time with the President of the United States.

"It would sort of give you a front row seat to history," he says.

TIMES SURE HAVE changed dept.: Nazzareno (Nunzi) DiVito of Hull, while looking through personal papers of his mother who died, came across a Quincy City Hospital bill she had paid in 1942 when he was a teenager suffered a serious bicycle accident.

DiVito sent the bill to Quincy Hospital as a sort of collector's item. A copy was posted on the bulletin board and drew a lot of attention. And, no wonder.

The bill, for emergency room services and four days stay:

Accident Room, $3.00.

X-Ray Skull, $10.00.

Special medicine, $.25.

4 Days Board, $16.00.

Total, $29.25.

And, that is a collector's item.

IF YOU REALLY want to know who's to the left and who's to the right in Quincy political circles, you should have been at the Quincy Rotary Club pancake breakfast Sunday.

Among those serving up the flapjacks and scrambled eggs to some 800 hungry people were Mayor Francis McCauley, and former Mayors Arthur Tobin, Joseph LaRaia and Walter Hannon.

And, the observing noted, McCauley, Hannon and LaRaia served left-handed and Tobin right-handed.

(Well, some people like to know those little things.)

McCAULEY

MILESTONE: Atty. Christopher Ryan and his wife, Deborah (McNeice) are the parents of their first child, a son, Christopher, II, born Feb. 18 at Beth Israel Hospital.

Ryan, son of Caroline and the late Quincy District Court Clerk-Magistrate Dennis Ryan, is a law associate of former Norfolk County Dist. Atty. George Burke.

Mayor's Commission To Study Status of Women

The Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women will be conducting informal research to identify the status, needs and concerns of Quincy women.

This survey will serve to update the commission's status report, and to determine future program development.

Questionnaires are available at The Quincy Sun office, Quincy banks, supermarket service desks, community centers, and City Hall.

Completed questionnaires may be returned to the location at which they were obtained, or by mailing them to the Mayor's Commission, Quincy City Hall, Quincy, MA 02169. The deadline for returning all questionnaires is March 15, 1986.

All Quincy women are encouraged to participate in this study. Results of the survey will be made public during the later half of April.

City Observing Women's History Week

Mayor Francis McCauley has proclaimed the week of March 2 to 8 as National Women's History Week in Quincy.

"National Women's History Week is the result of the work of hundreds of women and men who united their efforts to bring recognition to the two often overlooked contributions of half of our population," said McCauley.

"By proclaiming National Women's History Week in our city, increased local attention will be brought to this very important local celebration.

"It is a popular opinion that when girls and boys, women and men begin to learn about and fully comprehend the true, vast and untold history of women in the United States, a more accurate idea of women's possibilities for today results.

"By joint resolution, the United States Congress annually joins the vast majority of state and county governments in proclaiming National Women's History Week."

Edward Roberts 'Citizen Ambassador' Quincy Man Going To China To Aid In Education

By DAN CONNELLY
"It is the opportunity of a lifetime," said Edward Roberts, shelter manager for Quincy Civil Defense, selected by a national organization to leave this week to China with a delegation of specialists in occupational education as citizen ambassadors.

Roberts, of Atlantic St., North Quincy, a 28-year professional in education who works as a counselor with special needs and handicapped students in the Boston School system, was invited by the American Vocational Association (AVA) to join 29 other educators and go to the People's Republic of China.

They'll share with their Chinese counterparts the best of professional educational practices from both countries.

The group will visit key centers for occupational education, where they will learn first hand the problems and solutions of Chinese occupational education experts.

This will include meetings at sparetime and factory schools, worker colleges, vocational special education and television schools in cities such as Beijing (Peking), Fuzhou, Shanghai, Guangzhou (Canton) and Hong Kong. The group returns March 28.

"I never dreamed I would be going to China," said Roberts, a former president of the Massachusetts Chapter of AVA. "I was notified back last October about being selected. I'm excited about the trip. I had a lot of work to do preparing for forthcoming lectures."

Roberts said his area will be vocational assessment and career planning which seems to be the problem they are having in China; getting the right people in the right jobs.

"They want to upgrade the skills of workers to be able to deal with modern technology. They put so much on vocational education in China; they have 97 vocational schools in Peking alone," he said.

His professional expertise today is divided between three schools in Dorchester and Roxbury which comprise the largest student population with that city's school district. They are Dorchester High, Jeremiah Burke and The Humphrey Occupational Resource Center.

Roberts' Quincy civic involvement includes being the former director of the city's Civil Defense from 1969 to 1974. He currently is shelter manager for that agency.

Mrs. Charlotte Roberts will make the Far East journey with her husband. She is employed at the State Street Bank in Quincy.

Roberts said his role as a citizen ambassador will be to help further the ideals of the People-to-People International, a non-political, private-sector organization dedicated to promoting international communication.

Gary D. Meers, Immediate Past President of AVA, who extended the invitation to Roberts said in a letter:

"To achieve modernization and to provide for the needs of its vast population,

EDWARD ROBERTS

China's leadership has placed particular emphasis on vocational training. In spite of a large labor supply, there currently remains a significant shortage of trained workers prepared in modern productive skills necessary to meet basic industrial needs."

Roberts said their group also plans to discuss occupational training issues in seminars, lectures, and small groups, as well as during informal settings with their Chinese counterparts.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Cyril Morrisette First Quincy Boy Killed In WWI

The city was still in mourning for Cyril P. Morrisette, the first Quincy boy to lose his life in action in France.

Rev. Thomas R. McCoy spoke feelingly about him during Masses at St. Mary's Church, West Quincy.

March 4-10
1918

68 Years Ago

The War Department in Washington told Mayor Joseph L. Whiton that it would not be possible to bring his body back to Quincy for burial right now since policy prohibited return of bodies while the war was still on.

WAR WORKERS IN NEW DEMANDS

Several hundred machinists and their helpers from the Fore River Shipyard and the Victory Plant in Squantum met in Alpha Hall to organize and present their demands to the U.S. Shipping Board.

Organizer Daniel R. Donovan of Springfield told them:

"If the workers are to stand back of the President in this crisis they must organize."

"Any employer or other person who at this time interferes with our efforts to give our country that full and undivided support essential to the success of the war... will in our judgement be equivalent to giving aid and comfort to the enemy."

Journeyman machinists were seeking a wage of $6 a day, helpers $4.50 a day, with eight hours work a day for five days a week and four hours on Saturday.

CITY BUDGET DOWN

The City Council was wrestling with Mayor Whiton's $846,046.28 budget, down $69,821.59 from the previous year.

One item that was drawing fire from councilors was a 10 percent war bonus for city officials and clerks at City Hall.

SCHOOL BIDS HIGH

DPW Commissioner Brown opened bids for a new eight-room school building in Squantum and found that all of them were well over the $40,000 appropriated for construction.

The low bid was $46,191 by C.H. Cunningham & Sons Co. and that didn't include the heating and ventilation systems, the plumbing or the electrical work. Lowest bids for everything came to $66,317.

Industrial Park Best Bet For Shipyard GD Study Says

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

General Dynamics, which plans to close its Quincy shipyard this spring, has a good chance of selling the site for reuse as an industrial park or redevelopment as an industrial park or a mixed use complex.

The probability of attracting a single major industrial user is not considered likely, however.

Those are the recently released findings of a study done for the corporation by Temple, Barker & Sloane, Inc., which developed the four options.

"General Dynamics is presently in the process of selecting a nationally recognized real estate broker to assist us in the actual solicitation of potential buyers for the shipyard and we expect to have the broker selected during March," said Gary S. Grimes, vice president-general manager.

"With this accomplished, we will then put together a request for proposal that will be sent to the full spectrum of prospective purchasers and will include domestic and foreign industrial users through commercial developers.

"We anticipate receiving firm proposals from those parties who are interested in acquiring our shipyard properties during June.

"I am hopeful that this process will confirm Temple, Barker & Sloane's conclusion that we will be able to achieve a balanced solution to the sale of the shipyard which provides to General Dynamics a fair price while, at the same time, providing continued significant employment and local tax revenues," said Grimes.

The SINGLE MAJOR INDUSTRIAL USER option involves finding a direct successor to General Dynamics that would fully utilize the facility and employ a minimum of 1,000 people in either traditional manufacturing or higher technology, future oriented manufacturing industries.

REUSE AS AN INDUSTRIAL PARK would include retaining the usable shipyard buildings and marketing the buildings and open areas of the shipyard for industrial purposes to a wide variety of tenants.

REDEVELOPMENT AS AN INDUSTRIAL PARK involves clearing the present shipyard site and developing the land as parcels to be sold for industrial use by numerous individual users.

REDEVELOPMENT AS A MIXED USE COMPLEX would include the development of the shipyard site for public, residential, and commercial use, including a mix of residential condominiums, retail store space, clubs, day-care centers, restaurants, commercial office buildings, hotel, marina and commuter ferry terminal for access to and from Boston. All existing buildings would be removed, and the building basins partially or completely filled.

All of the options, with the exception of a single industrial user, would provide about the same amount of full-time employment, 2,900 to 3,400 jobs, according to the study.

Full development of the shipyard site may range from five to 12 years.

The greatest number of man-years of construction and highest amount of possible local tax revenue generation are associated with the mixed-use complex redevelopment, the study said.

Other guests will be Dr. Diane Willard, who will discuss the Elementary Lab Center pilot program in grades 3 and 4, and Fred Nolan, who will speak on the elementary report cards.

New $125,000 7-Eleven In West Quincy Approved

By DAN CONNELLY

The city's License Board approved a permit Tuesday for 7-Eleven to go ahead next month and construct a $125,000 new convenience store on the existing site at 678 Adams St.

The board voted unanimously following a presentation by 7-Eleven management attorney Peter Eley.

Eley said his client had met with abutters in the area to have the proposed construction blend in with the neighborhood and the present blueprints reflect the best compromise.

One of the abutters, Mr.

and Mrs. Albert DeCross of 20 Stedman St., attended the hearing. DeCross, who is retired and has lived in the Lakin Square area for 35 years, said after the hearing the new building will be erected 7-feet in from his lot line.

Eley said the modernizing and landscaping of the present site will meet with neighborhood approval.

Features in the plans, submitted to Building Inspector Allan MacDonald, include:

Fencing the convenience store site on the side and rear of the new building to discourage this area from becoming a gathering spot for young people.

Provide a buffer strip on Stedman St. and Adams St. that will be landscaped.

Installing an underground sprinkler system to maintain the landscaped area.

7-Eleven will replace the existing dumpster, which has been a source of problems with abutters, with a new trash compactor.

Store deliveries will not be made between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m. and will be made only at the front entrance.

Eley agreed with the building inspector that the new compactor for trash should blend in with the architecture of the new building "and not stick out like a sore thumb," commented MacDonald.

Police Chief Francis X. Finn was assured by Eley that the new compactor will be enclosed.

During the presentation Eley cited acceptable costs relative to install and maintain a new compactor. This drew the interest of board members who commented on the expense incurred with present dumpsters used by the city.

The new building will be erected behind the present site.

Hazardous Waste Dangers Topic For Citizens Association

Mary Quinn, vice president of the Quincy League of Women Voters, was scheduled to give a slide presentation on hazardous household waste at a meeting last night (Wednesday) of the Quincy Citizens Association, at Montclair Men's Club.

Mrs. Quinn's presentation was to alert members of the chemicals they have around the house which should not be combined or callously deposited with the weekly trash pickup. Instead they should be put aside and brought to the city Public Works garage on May 17 for safe disposal.

"We don't want a repeat of last fall's gassing of several Wollaston residents and BFI men when noxious fumes from chemicals escaped when they were compacted in the trash truck. Several persons were sent to the hospital Mrs. Quinn said.

Other items on the agenda for the association's month meeting included: Suggestions to the City Council to improve traffic flow, tighten up parking regulations; also new zoning to prevent flooding of abutters by new buildings.

Possible reopening the Wollaston School to alleviate overcrowding in other schools.

How the City Council voted on the 10-story building height limit. The association feels the "intent" of the voters who favored limiting the height of buildings in the city was not respected. But the association's request to count above-ground garages in building height won.

QCH Director 'Optimistic' About FNA Approval

Quincy City Hospital director Mark Mundo told the City Council Monday night he is "guardedly optimistic" the facility will be the first public hospital in the country to receive FNA insurance.

Mundo, in a 40 minute presentation, said the hospital can afford to wait another 30 to 60 days before trying to develop an alternative plan for funding sources.

Congress passed a law in November, 1983, allowing public hospitals to participate in the FNA insurance program, said Mundo and QCH filed the first such application in September, 1984.

Mundo said the hospital has received a great deal of support from Mayor Francis McCauley, Cong. Brian Donnelly, Senators John Kerry and Edward Kennedy.

The delay has been due to a lack of regulations to deal with public hospitals in the program, Mundo said.

If the FNA insurance is forthcoming, Phase I of the $60 million reconstruction program can begin June 1 with the demolition of Faxon House and the Power Plant, according to Mundo.

Mundo also said that a successful first meeting of the hospital-community liaison committee was held this week.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

Steve Downing, Manager

AGE NO BARRIER TO HOME LOAN

QUESTION: I am 65 years old, retired, have a large bank account and good equity in stocks and bonds. Would my age be a barrier to getting a home loan? To put it another way — when does a person become too old to obtain a mortgage?

ANSWER: With certain reservations — never! If the real estate equity is there and the ability to repay is established, what is the difference if a person is 30 or 70 years of age? Each case, however, must be judged on its own individual merits.

The economic age of the property, its resale value, and the borrower's ability to repay are far more important than age alone.

AGE IS NO BARRIER in getting a real estate loan. Other considerations are more important.

Lose In Tourney But —

Raiderettes Finish Most Successful Season

The North Quincy girls' basketball team finished the most successful season in the school's history when it lost to Dennis-Yarmouth, 62-46, in the second round of the Eastern Mass. Tournament last Friday.

Paul Bregoli's Raiderettes, who finished with an overall record of 17-5, had defeated Needham, 53-37, in the opening round of the tournament before a near-capacity crowd at the North gym.

North played a nearly perfect game in defeating Needham. Needham, which had the league's second leading scorer in Katie Connolly (18.3 points a game), took a 2-0 lead but that was the Rockets' only basket of the quarter and the Raiderettes took a big 19-3 lead at the end of the quarter with a textbook display of offensive and defensive basketball.

Eileen Warren had 10 first quarter points and Karen Runge and Nancy Flukes also had a big quarter. Defensively Anne Marie Hughes was assigned to cover Connolly and held her scoreless in the quarter. She had only one basket in the first half.

North handled Needham's full-court press, thanks to the leadership of Jean Welby, who consistently found the open man to get North's running game in gear.

The Raiderettes continued to widen their lead and took a comfortable 29-9 advantage at halftime. North's starters had a chance to rest and Marybeth Maloney, Nancy Lyons and Anne McGuigan played solidly off the bench.

North had things sewed up and had a 45-17 lead going into the final quarter. Warren had 18 points, 14 rebounds and two blocked shots. Flukes had 14 points and three assists; Runge 10 points and five rebounds, Hughes five points and Maureen Donovan four.

About 200 fans accompanied the team to the Cape and the second round game with Dennis-Yarmouth, seeded third in the tournament. D-Y was 16-2 and champions of the Southeast Conference.

North's offense went cold in this game and shot only four for 15 from the floor in the opening quarter as D-Y took a 13-8 lead.

The Cape team had a 26-22 lead at halftime but scored the first six points of the third quarter to take a 10-point lead with 7:05 left. After a North timeout, Flukes, who had 10 points in the first half, hit a 15-footer to shave the lead to eight. North had another cold-shooting quarter and the home team took a 42-30 lead into the finale.

The Raiderettes shot only 27 percent from the floor, converting only 17 of 62 shots. Flukes led North with 12 points and three assists. Warren had nine points, six rebounds and two blocked shots. Hughes, who played with a strained achilles tendon, also had eight points and three steals and Welby played a fine floor game and had five assists, while taking two charges.

"Our Needham victory may have been the most significant thing to happen to girls' basketball at North in the school's history," said Bregoli. "We had a tremendous show of support from the student body, faculty members and former players. Most of the people there had never seen a girls' game at North. However, I think they were treated to a nearly flawless game by anyone's standards."

"It was gratifying, especially to the girls, to have people in the stands cheering for them and appreciating their fine play. I hope we will continue to have their support in future years."

"As a team we played extremely well in all phases of the game, especially on defense. Welby and Hughes in particular were significant in their contributions. What was also nice was that everyone on the squad had a chance to play in a tournament game. It's something they'll always remember."

"As for the Dennis-Yarmouth loss, it was difficult to accept, not because we lost, but because we didn't play as well as we could have. Our effort was superb, but we just could not put the ball in the basket. Our loss was difficult for me because I'm going to really miss this fine group of kids. It may sound like cliché, but it is true. I've had this group of seniors for four years and I've watched them grow and they've also watched my family grow. We've seen the good times and bad, we've laughed together and Friday night we cried together. I love them all like my own and only wish this season could have continued forever."

Millane Over 100 Points In Career

ENC Loses In Semi-Finals

The Eastern Nazarene College men's basketball team ended its season last week when it lost to Franklin Pierce, 94-71, in the semifinals of the NAIA District 5 Playoffs.

ENC finished at 12-13 overall. Mark Millane, 6-4 power forward from North Quincy, finished a brilliant season with 30 points in the finale, one of many 30-point games he had.

Millane went well over 1000 points for his career and, if he finishes his last two years of eligibility, he should easily become the fourth Crusader to pass 2000 points.

Millane is a junior but has two years of eligibility remaining. His first year in college at American International, he played football but not basketball. He averaged nearly 26 points a game this season.

He has scored over 1200 points in his two years of basketball at ENC.

Two other Quincy players recently hit the 1000-point plateau.

Dean Coletti, who played his high school ball at Abp. Williams, averaged 15 points a game this season and became the 11th 1000-point scorer at Suffolk University. He was a senior forward.

Brian Reale was the third

Quincy player to reach 1000 points. The senior forward, who played at Boston College High, has been a standout for Holy Cross.

Asbestos dust causes serious lung ailments; the diseases appear suddenly, years after exposure. Today numerous SHIPYARD WORKERS, MASONS, and PIPEFITTERS of the 1930's-1970's have lung afflictions because they inhaled asbestos particles many years ago.

If you worked in one of those professions then and now have a lung disease, you may be eligible to receive money damages or workers' compensation. Relatives of living and deceased victims can also recover in some cases.

Raiders Bow To Milton In Tourney Opener

By TOM SULLIVAN

North Quincy's hockey season came to a disappointing end Sunday when the Raiders bowed to Milton, 5-3, in the opening round of the state tournament.

Kevin Jago's North team had finished second by a single point in the Suburban League and the loss to Milton gave the Raiders an 11-6-2 record for the season.

Milton had finished second in the Bay State League and its win last week was the Wildcats' first ever in tournament play.

This marked North Quincy's third straight year in the tournament after an absence of 23 years.

North played well for the first two periods and took a 3-2 lead into the third period, but Milton came back strong and scored three unanswered goals, the last into an open net.

"It was a disappointing way to end the season, but I'm very pleased at what we accomplished this season," said Jago. "I was disappointed at missing the school's first league championship by a single point for the second year in a row, but it was a very satisfying season and the boys did a tremendous job."

The score would have been more one-sided except for another outstanding performance in goal by Kevin Jeffers, who did a tremendous job all season for the Raiders.

North took the lead at 5:31 of the opening period on an unassisted goal by Tim Duff.

The Raiders made it 2-0 at 8:23 when Dave Fasano converted a pass from Matt Furtado.

Milton cut it to 2-1 on the first of Bob Regan's three goals at 12:43.

The Wildcats tied it at 1:20 of the second session on John O'Connell's goal, but Dave Tapper, playing with a special brace protecting his dislocated shoulder, put North in front, 3-2, at 4:59, Fasano and Paul McGrath assisting.

Jeffers, who continually made spectacular saves, made two incredible ones on Regan with Milton on a power play near the end of the period.

Regan took over in the third period, tying the count at 3:43 and Paul Gibson scoring the winning goal at 7:22. Jago pulled Jeffers and Regan capped the scoring, completing his hat trick.

Regan, one of the Bay State League's top scorers, raised his total to 57 points. Tapper wound up with 48 points and Fasano finished with 46. Mike Haynes, who was sidelined for the season with severed tendons in his ankle, had 42 points.

"We had been a good third period team all season," said Jago. "We continually dug holes for ourselves and came back in the third period, but it was different in this game. We didn't play well in the final period after doing a good job in the first two."

"I felt at the start of the season we had a good chance at making the tournament again and had a shot at our first league title. We had a good nucleus but we had some question marks."

"Greg McGlame was our only experienced defenseman but Duff and McGrath, who is only a freshman, came through well. We missed Haynes a lot, but Mark Zimmerman performed very well when I moved him up to the first line to replace Haynes."

"I wasn't sure about our goaltending, but Jeffers did a remarkable job for us and sophomore Brian Mahoney also did well when called upon."

"All in all, it was another fine season and I'm looking forward to next year and another shot at the state tournament."

Kevin Craig On Plymouth State Hockey Team

Kevin Craig of Quincy is a member of the 1985-86 Plymouth State College ice hockey team.

The 5-9 165-pound forward has scored 14 goals and 18 assists in 17 games for the Panther icemen.

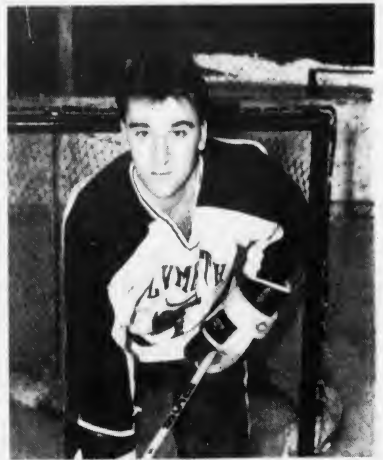

The Panthers, who are vying for an ECAC North playoff berth, are currently in third place with a 14-5 record. The top six teams qualify for the tournament.

Veteran head coach Dave Webster thinks that his team has a good shot at making the playoffs.

"If we play the type of hockey we're capable of playing, we should make the playoffs," says Webster. "With our tough defense and our offense, we can play any team in the league and do well."

Craig is a sophomore marketing major at PSC and is a 1982 graduate of Quincy High School, where he played on the hockey team.

Kevin is the son of Robert

KEVIN CRAIG

and Pam Craig of Quincy, Mass.

Squirt C's Edged By Hingham

The Quincy Squirt C team, sponsored by Granite City Electric Supply, lost a 3-2 squeaker to Hingham B's, with Hingham scoring the winning goal on a power play with less than two minutes to play in the game.

Joe Carinci and Mark Gilmore had the goals and Carinci, Brian Connolly and Dave Edwards had assists. Steve DesRoche was outstanding in goal with many fine saves.

The Squirt C's earlier had played two games against the Parkway B's, tying, 3-3.

in the first game and winning the second, 11-2.

John Lewis, Eric Kreuz and Brian Connolly scored the goals in the first game and Scott Wysocki and Billy McCallum had assists.

In the second game Connolly had a hat trick, Jim Ford two goals and Kreuz, Chris McCallum, Billy McCallum, Mark Gilmore, Wy-socki and Steve DesRoche a goal each. Joe Carinci and DesRoche had three assists apiece and Derek Mullen, Ford and Peter Nee one each.

David Edwards and Danny Grant played outstanding two-way hockey and Mike DesRoche, playing in goal for the first time, stood out in both games.

Bartkus Leads Kings To Tourney Title

Steve Bartkus of Quincy, captain of the first place South Shore Kings Squirt AAA team, led his team to the championship of the recent Cape Cod Seahawks tournament at the Gallo Arena in Bourne.

The Kings edged the Mass. Bay Chiefs, 3-2, in the final game that went into four overtimes. Bartkus gained control of the puck in the fourth overtime and scored the game-winner.

The Kings' Squirt minor league team also won the championship in Bourne, led by the scoring of Quincy's David Cooper, who scored six goals in the title game against the Seahawks.

Bantam B's Tie

Quincy's Bantam B team tied Dedham, 4-4, and defeated Parkway, 6-1.

In the Dedham game Hank Miller and Chuck Quigley had two goals each and Ralph Richardson, Mark Rudnisky and Rodney Davis had assists.

Against Parkway Mike Toiland had a hat trick and Rudnisky, Richardson and Chris LeForest a goal each. Miller and Jon Brosnan had two assists each and Wayne Chambers, Sean Cappis, Quigley, Tom Roberts and Rudnisky one apiece. Coach Bob Carroll praised the play of Paul Scola, Paul McClellan, Matt Buccella, Rob Carroll and goalie Mark Dwyer and Jeff McClory.

QJC Loses In Conference Playoffs

The Quincy Junior College basketball team ended its season last Friday when it lost to North Shore Community College, 86-68, in the finals of the Greater Boston Small College Conference playoffs.

QJC had defeated Northern Essex Community College, 71-67, in the semifinals.

North Shore (13-0) in the conference) jumped off to an early 14-4 lead and never looked back. The Jaguars cut the lead to eight points in the second half but never got close.

Will Smith led QJC with 17 points, Kyle Morton had 16, Steve Dever 13 and Bart Simpson 10.

In the win over Northern Essex, Morton scored 18 of his game-high 26 points in the first half as the Jaguars took a 41-32 lead.

Northern Essex tied the score at 58 but Smith hit a jump shot and added two full shots as QJC took the lead for good.

Tony Lumley had 15 rebounds to go with 10 points and an excellent defensive game.

QJC had clinched third place in the conference with an 83-61 win over Mass. College of Pharmacy in the final game of the regular season.

Will Smith scored 22 points and Jim Stasio added 17 against Mass. College of Pharmacy, Stasio going nine for 11 from the free throw line. Sean Downing had 12 points and seven rebounds.

In their previous game the Jaguars topped Bunker Hill Community College, 85-70, with Smith scoring 27 points, Kyle Norton 18 and Tony Lumley 10. Mark Chambers had a fine game at point guard with nine points and seven assists.

A Long, Hard Season For Presidents

Quincy High's hockey fortunes have been going downhill every year and things reached a new low this year when the Presidents finished their worst season with a 2-16-1 record.

Bob Sylvia's Quincy ice-men were bombed by Brookline, 9-0, in their finale.

Sylvia, who may or may not be back for a 23rd season next year, led many of his teams into the state tournament but the Presidents have now missed post-season play for four years in a row and last season they had their worst season until now with only three wins.

Quincy failed to win a game in the Suburban League this winter. Its only victories were over Revere and Malden of the Greater Boston League.

"It's a big disappointment to go through a season without a single victory in league play," he said.

At the start of the season Sylvia said, "Things are getting worse and worse. We not only are losing our usual quote of players to private schools, but players who usually would be going here are going to North Quincy instead.

"There no longer is any boundary line and boys can go to whichever school they want. We have boys from Houghs Neck and other southern sections of the city who are going to North instead."

Sylvia was especially concerned with the dwindling interest among the lower classes. This year only one freshman came out for hockey.

"Sometimes I feel like stepping down, but once the season is underway and I get behind the bench, the adrenalin starts flowing and I hate to call it quits," the veteran coach said.

One of Quincy's big problems at the start of the year was in goal but Mark Sandonato, up from the Jayvees, turned in some outstanding performances despite the team's record.

He was one of the busiest goalies in the league and had 30 or more saves in several games, many of the spectacular variety.

"We have to improve every part of our game," Sylvia said after the Brookline loss.

"and next year has to start tomorrow." So that sounds as though he may be back for a 23rd season.

Brookline had a 5-0 lead after two periods and added four goals in the third period as Sylvia cleared his bench.

Sandonato had another busy night and the score could have been even larger except for some excellent saves by the Presidents' netminder.

Erik Abboud, Dan Hurley and Steve Constas had several good scoring opportunities but couldn't push the puck past Brookline goalie Joe Marco.

Openings Available In YMCA After School Program

The South Shore YMCA Community Service Department is conducting an "After School Care Recreation Program" for the children of Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth and Scituate in grades one through five.

Purpose of this program is to provide working parents After School Care and at the same time to allow children to socialize and learn new skills.

The children are transported from school to their program site by the South Shore YMCA vehicles or taxi cabs. Parents pick up their children before 6 p.m. each night.

Once at the program site, children receive a snack and become involved in many activities throughout the day.

The activities include physical activities, special events and field trips.

There are quiet times for those children who wish to read a book, color, do puzzles, games, homework or just relax.

The YMCA highlights educational themes weekly where children become involved in research and planning.

Some special events and field trips include a puppet show, magician/animal show, trips to the Trillside Museum, fire station, police station, bowling, library, local historical sites, and more.

The Quincy/Braintree program is conducted at the South Shore YMCA, Quincy. The Weymouth program is conducted at the Pingree Elementary School in Jackson Square, and the Scituate program at the Jenkins Elementary School.

All programs are staffed by professional, para-professionals and aides, with a ratio of not more than 10 children per staff person.

Cost of the program is $7 per day, payable on a monthly basis.

The program is held while school is in session only. During school vacations, other child care programs are available at the South Shore YMCA.

Each program presently has openings, however, the spaces are limited.

For further information, contact Bill Johnson or Jean Doroni at the South Shore YMCA at 479-8500.

Plans are underway for the second annual South Quincy Italian Festival to be held in late summer at Malnati's Block on Liberty St.

The Planning Committee is forming the agenda. Details and dates will be announced.

Last year's function was attended by some 1,000 people who enjoyed music, dancing, Italian food and games.

Ward 4 Councillor James Sheets is considering a rededication of nearby

Liberty Square Park War Memorial with an official ceremony, according to Ernest Aristide, committee vice president.

The rededication was scheduled last September but was cancelled because of Hurricane Gloria.

Peot/Electrician At Quincy High School Classes

Susan Eisenberg, poet and electrician, will read her poems to students in English classes at Quincy High School today (Thursday) during Women's History Week which continues through March 8.

Miss Eisenberg's performance will be funded by a grant from the Arts Lottery.

She was graduated from the apprenticeship program of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW) Local 103, Boston.

Her first book of poetry, "It's A Good Thing I'm Not Macho," was published by Wheatstone Press in 1984 and reveals a modern piece of women's labor history. Her poetry reflects a wide range of concerns and has been published in a variety of literary and political journals.

Miss Eisenberg founded and performs with Word of Mouth Productions, a Boston-based women's theater company committed to developing theater as a cultural expression of working women.

Plays written by her and produced by WOMP include "We're All Gonna Die Someday Anyway," "Why Don't You Find A Rich Guy And Marry Him?," and "Calamity Jane."

She is currently working on a new play, and a new cycle of poems on motherhood.

A member of the Dramatist's Guild and the Coalition of Labor Union Women, she holds a BA degree in Women's Studies from the University of Michigan.

Students will participate in follow-up discussions based on the content of the poems read. The program is being coordinated by Sean Mulready of the English Department at Quincy High School.

WEEK OF: MARCH 6

AQUARIUS — January 21-February 19
Business and friendship may blend surprisingly well. Culture and romance mix nicely too. This is a good week for attending concerts or visiting galleries and museums.

PISCES — February 20-March 20
Petty jealousies all but disappear from the workplace and harmony returns to the homefront too. Assignments become less repetitious. Variety spruces up your personal relationships.

ARIES — March 21-April 20
Educational activities increase and travel prospects are bright. Self-indulgent streak may surface, so make a special effort to stick to your diet and stay within the budget.

TAURUS — April 21-May 22
Competitors are on their toes and you can't afford to be off your guard. Environment is important for romance - and your special loving touches won't go unnoticed.

GEMINI — May 23-June 21
Judgment may be clouded when it comes to evaluating your own performance; the opinions of outsiders are worth considering. Community interests dominate your time through the weekend.

CANCER — June 22-July 22
Important contacts may be made after the weekend - don't be shy about promoting your special skills. Relative impresses you with a rare display of compassion and generosity.

LEO — July 23-August 22
When it comes to the relationships of friends, you excel in the role of counsellor. Your objective approach also lets you stand back and plan your career path.

VIRGO — August 23-September 22
The week sees you examining at least two very different issues. Careerwise, review all evidence before making a pronouncement. Romantic picture brightens thanks to partner's sentimentality.

LIBRA — September 23-October 22
Business and travel blend through this period, but romance may have to take a temporary backseat. Avoid impulses when making purchases, the accent should be on quality and value.

SCORPIO — October 23-November 21
Avoid impulses yet don't wait too long before making your moves - someone could beat you to the punch. Relationships accent the intellectual side. Bonus may arrive after the weekend.

SAGITTARIUS — November 22-December 22
Keyword is recycle - you can put an old idea in positive use or get new mileage out of yesterday's styles. Self-discipline is strong if planning a commonsense diet.

CAPRICORN — December 23-January 20
Creative activities are spotlighted - this is a prime time for pursuing artistic activities. In matters involving shared finances, caution is critical. Romantic intuition pays off.

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
Compassionate and sympathetic, you can be too emotional and indecisive. A strongly positive outside influence can lead you to career expansion by late spring - early summer. Poetry and other creative expression is highlighted through the next twelve months.

BORN THIS WEEK
March 6th, actor Rob Reiner, 7th, composer Maurice Ravel, 8th, actress Lyn Redgrave, 9th, promoter Mary Ingels, 10th, singer Al Sanders, 11th, bandleader Lawrence Welk, 12th, singer Liza Minnelli.

$100 School Committee Salary Increase Supported

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The proposed salary increase from $100 to $200 a month for School Committee members, has the support of the mayor and at least four members of the City Council.

"I'm in favor," said Mayor Francis McCauley of the proposal made by veteran School Committee member Francis Anselmo at last Saturday's special School Committee meeting.

The proposal would have to be approved by the School Committee, City Council and mayor to become effective.

"They have a responsible job to do," said McCauley. "They are the only other elective body besides the City Council."

McCauley noted that School Committee members have meetings to attend and negotiations to handle with such groups as the teachers union.

"I don't think an increase to $200 a month is too much. If it comes up, I'll vote for it," said McCauley, who pointed out he will not benefit from the raise as School Committee chairman since he is not paid extra for that post.

Of eight City Councilors polled Monday night, Thomas Nutley, Michael Cheney, Theodore DeCristofaro and former School Committee member Patricia Toland said they were in favor.

Councilors Stephen McGrath and James Sheets said they had not had enough time to consider the matter and were undecided.

Councilor Richard Koch, Jr., said he was undecided but skeptical.

Councilor Joseph LaRaia said he was open minded on the proposal.

The ninth councilor, John Lydon, is on vacation.

Anselmo said at the special School Committee meeting that the increase would not benefit him monetarily since he donates his stipend to charity.

"In speaking on this item, I am not speaking for myself.

"If you remember, before we got the $100 a month (two years ago), I said if we ever get it, I won't take it.

"I will throw in more money and give it back to some charity and I have lived up to my word.

"By the grace of God, I don't need the money.

"But it hurts my dignity, my pride, to think that I am sitting on a school board that has allowed itself to be paid $100 a month, when you consider the element of time we put in.

"I went through this (school budget) from cover to cover since I came back from Florida.

"I spent time on it, and we do spend a lot of time," said Anselmo who felt that members should be compensated for such expenses as telephone and transportation.

Anselmo said that Boston school committee members receive about $8,000 a year, and Quincy City Council members $6,500.

"At least it (the $200) would be salve to my conscience, to my dignity, that I am appreciated by the city of Quincy and taxpayers.

"We are no longer living in the times when the lords of the manor could afford to do this for nothing. We are all working people."

Anselmo's motion was seconded by School Committee member Mary Collins.

Members Frank Santoro and Margaret Nigro said that they couldn't vote on the motion until they knew where the money would come from.

McCauley said that the raises would have to come out of the $29,800,000 school budget.

Mrs. Collins suggested that the proposal be set aside until other parts of the budget are completed, and the matter was tabled.

Board Continues Hearing On Quincy Point Building

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN
The License Board voted Tuesday to continue for one week a hearing regarding conditions at a building at 532-536 Washington St., Quincy Point.

The hearing was held after a Feb. 26, report from the Fire Department investigating a complaint by a tenant in the building who discovered a gas leak in the cellar, according to the report by Lt. Robert J. Kelley of the Fire Prevention Bureau.

Kelley said that the building houses a bar room, 536

Bar & Grille, a restaurant, the Eagle's Nest, and two apartments.

It was reported that the operator of the restaurant allowed his cook to sleep in the basement, and Kelley said he told him to discontinue that practice.

Kelley also reported rubbish in the stairways and halls, a junk car in the rear of the property, plumbing, wiring and gas fitting allegedly done by a person without the benefit of a license, and the lack of smoke detectors in the front stairway or at the top and bottom of the stairs. "It's a bad situation," said Acting Fire Chief Carl Valenti.

Owner Paul Ricciarelli said he recently had the building rewired.

The site was scheduled to be inspected by the Fire Prevention Bureau, Building Department, Wiring, Plumbing and Health Departments.

"If everything hasn't been done, we'll close it," said City Clerk John Gillis. "If it has, it can stay open."

License Board Briefs

The License Board took the following action at Tuesday morning's meeting at City Hall:

Police Chief Francis Finn instructed the group not to solicit in street intersections.

The board specified that the gas station is to be kept clean.

- Allowed to be withdrawn without prejudice a request from the Wollaston Recreation Facility, 357 West Squantum St., for a permit for 300 gallons of gasoline in 50 powered golf cars housed

The request was withdrawn because the abutters have not yet been notified.

- Placed on file a request from Furniture Outlet, Inc., 272 Tosca Drive, Stoughton, to conduct a one day sale Saturday, March 22, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. at the Quincy Elks Lodge, 440 East Squantum St.

Board Votes Probation For Newbury Liquors

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The License Board voted Tuesday to suspend for one month the license of Newbury Liquor Mart, 66 Newbury Ave., North Quincy, and then to suspend the suspension for a one year probationary period.

The action was taken after the store allegedly sold liquor to a minor on two occasions, according to police.

Police Chief Francis Finn told owner Michael Hanley to cooperate with police officers and check IDs to see that those purchasing liquor are of age.

Hanley said that both youths had shown IDs in the past.

According to a police report by Officers Peter Kendall and Anthony DiBona, a youth was observed leaving Newbury Liquors with a case of Budweiser Beer March 1.

The police officers asked the youth for an ID since he appeared to them to be young, the report stated. The ID showed that he was too young to purchase beer, police said, and would not be old enough, 21, until October.

The youth said that he had purchased beer at the store before, and had not been asked for his ID that evening, according to police.

Inside the store, Mrs. Kathleen Hanley, the owner's wife, stated that she had sold him the beer and that she didn't ask for an ID because she had him produce one in the past that was valid, police said.

Officer DiBona confronted Mr. Hanley with a similar set of circumstances involving sale of beer to a minor Aug. 29, 1985, according to the police.

DRUG/ALCOHOL 1986, a three part seminar which began last week and continues March 12 and 19, 7:30 to 9 p.m. at North Quincy High School, was discussed by panelists, from left, Louis Iannilli, assistant principal, Quincy High School; Kathleen Morris, Broad Meadows Middle School teacher; John W. Mahoney, Quincy School Department Drug Program; and Elaine Feeney, assistant principal, North Quincy High School.

Approve Plans For Winfield Shop Expansion

Construction is scheduled to begin within three weeks on a 30 by 40 foot addition to the Winfield Coffee Shop, 853 Hancock St., Wollaston, which received the approval of the License Board Tuesday.

The expansion will enable the coffee shop to increase its seating from 58 to 95, according to Loren Strout, owner of the building and land.

The coffee shop is managed by Daniel Salvatore who said the addition would extend into the parking area.

The work is scheduled to be completed by July, at the latest, and the shop will be closed no more than three weeks in the process, said Strout.

Construction should also begin soon on 10 more rooms at the motel, according to Strout who said those plans are being reviewed by the Health Department.

That work is scheduled to be completed before the end of May, he said. Remodeling of the other 26 rooms is scheduled for the winter, Strout said.

Houghs Neck Plans 350th Celebration

The Houghs Neck Community Center will hold an open meeting March 20 at 7 p.m. to discuss plans for the celebration of the 350th birthday of Houghs Neck.

Needed at the meeting, to be held at the center, 1193

Sea St., are ideas of how this event can be made memorable.

Every working person (even a person already covered by a pension, profit-sharing, SEP or Keogh Plan) can put up to $2,000 into an Individual Retirement Account each year. With a non-employed spouse, the limit increases up to $2,250 per year. And if both work, each may contribute up to $2,000 a year, or a tax-deferred total of as much as $4,000.

The "No-Excuses" Individual Retirement Account.

You've probably thought about opening an Individual Retirement Account before. But you've put it off.

Perhaps because you thought you needed $2,000 to open an IRA. You don't. At Quincy Savings, you can open an IRA with just $10 and earn a money market rate. We're also offering a new IRA Club Account to make it easier to fund an IRA systematically.

Another excuse you may have used is that your retirement date is a long way off. That may be true. But don't forget that every year you contribute to your IRA it's deductible on your Federal income tax return. Which can save you a lot of money.

Depending on your tax bracket, there even are some advantages in borrowing what you want to open or fund your IRA at Quincy Savings, as our free "Net Tax Savings" analysis will indicate. If you qualify, we'll lend you up to $2,000 at an attractive rate, with a one-year repayment plan.

And if you've thought that a year's delay in opening your IRA doesn't make much difference, ask for our free computer-generated projection that will show you exactly how much money you'll lose by postponing your decision for just one year.

There's really no excuse for paying Uncle Sam extra taxes again this year. Especially when you can open your IRA at Quincy Savings for just $10, and select either short or long term certificates for larger amounts. And now Quincy Savings even offers mutual funds and self-directed plans as well.

So come to our nearest office soon, for one of our computer-generated projections and to open your IRA. Or call us at 471-3500, if you have any questions.

Readers Forum Opposes Bus Plan For Parker School Area

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I oppose Superintendent Osterman's recommendation to bus kindergarten children from the Wollaston area of the Parker School district to the Montclair School in 1986-87.

The superintendents' plan sets arbitrary boundaries for the school districts, and affects seven out of nine existing districts. There is no consideration for neighborhood or educational integrity.

ty.

In conjunction with limited redistricting, the re-opening of the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School for kindergarten in 1986-87 would meet neighborhood and educational criteria and pose an immediate, cost-free solution to the overcrowding at the Parker School.

Anselmo And Fountain Of Youth

If there is a Fountain of Youth, Frank Anselmo must have a private, direct pipeline to it.

He's a spry 87 and looking forward to 88 on Sept. 22.

The last thing he has on his mind is retirement.

He's now in his 25th year on the Quincy School Committee with two years to go on his present term.

Will he run for re-election?

"If I am in as good condition then as I am today and if the public gives me an indication they want me to, yes, I will."

And, he adds with a smile:

"The brains are still percolating."

If he does run it would mean he would be campaigning in his 90th year — probably the oldest candidate ever to run in Quincy.

Right now, he says, he has been told he is the second oldest elected official ever in Quincy but he doesn't know who the oldest was.

Anselmo is optimistic that the City Council will approve a $100 a month salary increase for the School Committee which was proposed by him. The School Committee now gets $100 a month.

City Council members, he notes, now get $6,500 a year plus expenses and secretarial services.

"In all fairness, how can they refuse this little stipend raise for the School Committee?" he asks.

"With the cost of oil coming down, the savings from heating buildings will more than pay for $100 a month."

Anselmo says he will not take the $100 himself, if it is approved.

He hasn't taken the first $100 pay voted two years ago. He puts it into a scholarship at Quincy Junior College and adds some personal money to it.

Between the $1200 a year he would receive as a school committeeman and what he adds to the scholarship personally, amounts to $5,000 a year.

So, after two years, the scholarship is at $10,000 plus interest.

ANSELMO

SANTORO

He says he will continue doing this with the $100 increase if it is approved.

Only one School Committee member is opposed to the increase.

Freshman member Frank Santoro thinks some of the school programs like Middle School athletics that were cut under Proposition 2½ should be restored before any pay raises — no matter how small — are approved.

But Anselmo and at least four other members of the School Committee favor the $100 raise. So does Mayor Francis McCauley who, by virtue of office, is also chairman of the School Committee.

Vice-Chairman Steve Durkin, who recently underwent surgery, had to leave the meeting at which the salary increase was voted on.

Indications are that the City Council will give it its needed blessing.

HERB FONTAINE, news director at WJDA, is a patient at Massachusetts General Hospital. He was admitted Sunday and was scheduled for surgery today (Thursday).

Fontaine, who's voice is one of the best known on the South Shore, will be sidelined for about a month before returning to the mike.

Speed recovery, Herb.

FONTAINE

BARON HUGO, who will be 83, is still going strong. He dropped into The Sun the other day with a copy of a column called "Inside South Shore" I used to do at the old Boston Traveler. This particular item, which you might find amusing, appeared Oct. 19, 1962:

BARON

Baron Hugo, the orchestra leader, was called upon to give his autobiography at the Milton Rotary Club of which he is a new member.

And, proceeded to give one of his best shows. Arrived with his orchestra playing "When The Saints Go Marching In." Brought along vocalist Phyllis Manning who snuggled into the lap of President John Berggren to sing, "Give Me A Little Kiss." (Most envied fellow at the meeting.)

A Quincy native, Hugo touched on the highlights of his career. Recalled working at Winer's Hardware store in Quincy. One day a Swedish band was rehearsing upstairs and he was dispatched to tell them to cut out the noise. He joined the band instead.

Revealing he took drumming lessons at the Old Howard, he asked: "How many of you ever went to the Old Howard?"

About half of the Rotarians raised their hands.

"The rest of you," quipped Hugo, "are liars."

Steve Downing, Manager

THE FINAL MOMENT

QUESTION: I have looked at several homes with my Realtor. I have finally made a mental decision on the particular house I want to buy. What is the next step?

ANSWER: Let your REALTOR handle the actual price negotiations. This is always the toughest and most sensitive part of any home purchase. He's an expert in this type of negotiation. He knows both party's financial positions, and can usually come out with a better arrangement than personal confrontation between principals. One party will usually be at a disadvantage. Not all homes sell at the asking price — but don't ask him to do the impossible.

ONCE YOU'VE made your decision to buy, let the Realtor handle the price negotiations.

Raymondi Moves To Modernize County Treasurer's Office

By DAN CONNELLY
Norfolk County treasurer Daniel G. Raymondi of Quincy released a 41-page management study that provides the guidelines needed to bring that office into the 20th century.

The report, which cost $4000, and was prepared by Saluti Associates Inc. of Boston, finds that the treasurer's staff is currently performing the basic duties of their job, but the integration of their work is done superficially without the insight and direction of a financial professional.

To fill this void, the report recommends the hiring of a chief executive assistant/accountant to be in charge of day-to-day operations, report to the treasurer, and oversee the operations staff.

The report also recommends the appointment of a chief executive assistant auditor, who would also report directly to Raymondi and would completely check all implementation and procedures performed daily in the office and also verify all figures.

Raymondi said he was pleased to endorse the report's recommendation that both of these positions require a bachelor's degree in

DANIEL RAYMONDI accounting in addition to at least two years experience.

He added that he wants the people currently working in the office to have the background necessary to do their job and that some of their current duties will be redefined to match their skills.

Also recommended in the report is the hiring of an executive assistant computer manager to oversee all computer operations of the office. This person would be required to have a bachelor's degree in computer science or MIS and at least 1 year's experience in a financial or accounting office, Raymondi said.

The report urged that a position of office receptionist be created. Presently when a visitor enters the treasurer's office, it is awkward that no one is available to greet them. There should be a liaison to the public as well as a person to answer phones and perform secretarial duties. The operational personnel should not be interrupted to perform the task of a receptionist the report said.

The report also urges the treasurer to begin a study to revamp and update the office's computer system which is paramount. Currently, two different computers, which are incompatible with each other are being used. Saluti recommends that they be replaced by a single computer that would be compatible with a new system planned for the county register of deeds.

Raymondi said he was pleased to announce the report and would immediately review the recommendations and discuss immediate implementation with his recently named advisory council and the Norfolk County commissioners and advisory board.

In fact, Raymondi said, "the recommendations for the staffing of my office have already been submitted to, and approved by the Norfolk County Advisory Board in budget session.

Raymondi added that the report provides the guidelines by which he can bring an end to the business-as-usual attitude that has prevailed in his office for years, and introduce a new professionalism with employees who have a genuine dedication to the public interest.

Saluti Associated Inc., an eight year old firm, has done management evaluation for numerous financial establishments, according to Timothy Reidy Jr., of Quincy, a senior partner with the company which is headquartered at 15 Court Square, Boston.

Raymondi was appointed treasurer Dec. 9 after the former treasurer James M. Collins pleaded guilty to a number of charges including embezzlement, tax evasion and corruption by a public official and was sentenced to nine to 15 years in prison.

Raymondi said he intends to establish the most professional treasurers office in the state. "Those funds over which I have responsibility will be well managed, have insured security, and I personally guarantee that the flagrant misuse of the public's trust will never again be repeated in this office."

NEW POLICE STATION SITE OPPOSED
The Coddington School Parent-Teachers Organization and the Quincy Women's Club passed resolutions this week opposing location of the new Quincy police station on Coddington St. at the corner of Newcomb St.

Despite Chief Alfred Goodhue's arguments in favor of the central location, both organizations voted against the site, noting the proximity to the Coddington School, the High School and the "proposed Faxon Playground."

The Coddington School group stated that the erection of a police station across the schools would be a detriment to the peace of mind of children and would serve as a bad moral influence.

Mrs. James Hinds, president of the Women's Club, said in part, "... the mere presence of a building in such close proximity to the school would have its effect on pupils and serve to create a desire on their part to find out what is going on and that they would become more likely to read accounts of crime."

HIbernians CELEBRATE ST. PATRICK'S DAY
The united divisions of the Hibernians and Ladies Auxiliary celebrated St. Patrick's Day with a concert and banquet in the Grill at the Quincy Elks' Club.

John Ryan, president of division 5 A.O.H. presided. Rev. Michael Owens, pastor of St. John's Church, gave the prayer.

Mayor Perley Barbour was represented by his secretary William Murphy who gave the major address of the evening.

Murphy compared the Celt to the Pilgrim, both of whom came to America seeking religious freedom.

He went on to say, "Through the years the two have been kept apart, but see the day coming when both will unite in bonds of common fraternity..."

NO SEARCH WARRANTS
Police responding to a routine call at Clay St. in Wollaston, found that the caller wanted them to capture a skunk that had gotten into the cellar.

The police refused to act, using as their excuse, that they had no right to remove any item from the home because they did not have a search warrant.

HEARING TO ACCEPT STREETS
The City Council ordered a public hearing for the acceptance of the following streets:

Swan, Babcock, Rhoda, Carlson, Parker, Narraganset, Harrison, Sixth, Commonwealth, Hughes, Nightingale, Lurton, Barry, Campbell, Wesson, Hayden.

Dunbarton, Cheriton, Everett, Ferndale, Willett, Willow, Cushing, Oxenbridge, Franklin Ave., Merrymount Ave., Marshall, Russell, Hovey and Park.

CHATTING during the awards ceremony were, from left, George Lacroix, vice president, Massachusetts Auxiliary Police Association; Bruno Brunelli, president, Massachusetts Auxiliary Police Association; Siciliano; Edward Lynch, superintendent, General Services Division, Quincy Police; Loretto Colletti, sign painter, General Services Division, Quincy Police; Robert Lohnes, foreman, General Services Division, Quincy Police.

ROBERT BOULAY, director of the Mass. Civil Defense Agency, presented Siciliano with a Distinguished Service Citation for "outstanding leadership and achievement."

a.m. to call Siciliano and discuss preparations.

"Well, Tony beat me to the punch," said McCauley. "He called my office at 7 in the morning. He had already tracked the storm and made preparations...He had the whole thing organized."

"That's the type of person Tony Siciliano is," said the mayor, who also noted the work Siciliano does in connection with annual Christmas Parade.

"It's appropriate that the Quincy Sun honor the favorite son of Quincy," said Senator Paul Harod.

"As you, (Bosworth) know, before I was in the State Senate, before I was on the City Council, right after I worked as a dishwasher at Howard Johnson's, I worked for The Quincy Sun."

"I've had a long association with The Sun, and I'd like to just give a certain perspective upon the stage we're at now with Quincy's hometown newspaper."

"For 18 years, since Henry began this enterprise, reporting on the schools and churches and different institutions in our city, The Quincy Sun really has become a special institution."

"It's fitting now that The Quincy Sun, in its 18th year, establish the Citizen of the Year award."

"It's also appropriate that the first recipient be Tony Siciliano because The Quincy Sun has a special spirit and enthusiasm and vision for our city."

"In trying to visualize the person who could best epitomize that, Tony Siciliano is the one."

"He is not only one who meets the criteria of the city, but one that also helps set the tone for this award."

"The award will certainly go on for many years, and will probably be the most prestigious recognition of any citizen in our city," said Harod.

The ceremony was videotaped by The Sun's cable news Channel 8. A copy will be presented to Siciliano.

Excerpts were shown on Sun Ch. 8 earlier this week. The program will be shown in its entirety at a date to be announced.

Bosworth said someone had asked him what would happen if there was a big snowstorm on the day of the awards ceremony.

"I told him not to worry. Tony would get us all here. He could--and he would."

"Tony is always there when you need him. And, he's sometimes there before you even know you need him. He performs coolly, efficiently and usually under the worst of conditions."

"Tony has done so many things for so many people that everyone knows him by his first name. If there is a crisis or a problem and someone says 'Call Tony' no one has to ask 'Tony, who?'."

"And when you call him, he's right there to help."

Bosworth said he believes a community newspaper should not only cover the news of that community fairly and accurately and speak out editorially on issues affecting the community, but it should become more involved in the community."

He noted The Sun has been involved with the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy telethon the past nine years and sponsors youth hockey, baseball and bowling teams.

"Today," he said, "we are expanding that community involvement with our first 'Citizen of the Year Award.'"

"But, while this award carries the name of The Quincy Sun, it is also an award by and from the community. The nominations come from the community and from those nominations a panel of judges from the community made the final selection."

Bosworth congratulated and thanked Siciliano "for getting us off to such a good start" for the annual award.

"The ones that come after you will have their work cut out for them," he said.

Bosworth said the 31

nominees were all outstanding and most of them could have been the winner.

"It wasn't an easy task for the judges," he said. "But when the process came down near the end, there was no doubt Tony Siciliano was the winner."

He said that after the announcement of Siciliano's selection several of the other recipients called him to say they thought Siciliano was "the right choice."

"I think," Bosworth said, "that if the other nominees had served as the judges, they would select Tony."

Siciliano extended thanks to a number of people:

"I would like to thank my family for being who they are, my friends and co-workers for standing by me, city officials for listening when I have something to say, state civil defense and Area 2 officers who are always there when I need them, Quincy Police Chief and Civil Defense Director Francis Finn for allowing me to do my job as deputy director."

"Also Henry Bosworth, the Quincy Sun's editor, who made this all possible, the judges who voted for me and most especially the Quincy Civil Defense volunteers who have worked so hard to put the agency where it rightfully belongs - out front."

"We have a fantastic agency here in Quincy. Our volunteers are people from all walks of life, from laborers to psychiatrist."

"Although there is no pay, they put in thousands of volunteer hours in training and responding in times of emergencies or disasters each year."

"Our goal is to reduce the vulnerability of this community to damage, injury and loss of life of property resulting from man-made or natural disasters by joining forces."

"Both the Civil Defense agency and the volunteers benefit from each other and, in the long run, get a return on their investment. The net return being a better prepared community through today's broad appeal of volunteerism - people helping people.

"Their dedication and commitment has made our agency a leader in emergency preparedness. "Many, many thanks to our volunteers. This award is for them. They made it possible and they are why I'm standing here today."

"Thank you all for sharing this honor with me."

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Perhaps most of the forest fires that lay waste our parks and mountains are caused by careless motorists who throw lighted matches or 'smokes' from their cars. One single spark is enough to devastate a mountainside. One careless motorist can cause an inferno of destruction that requires hundreds of fire-fighters to battle it and can scar the mountainside for years to come.

Similarly, couldn't it be said that a few words freighted with the poison of malice can cause a landslide of sorrow and bitterness? Also, couldn't it be said that there are so many good things to say that it is a terrible tragedy when our tongues are used to destroy rather than build; to devastate rather than preserve?

The tongue can do 'a world of good' but it can also do 'a world of evil.' A word of strife can break a heart, ruin a trip, break up a family and ruin friendships . . . The Apostle Peter summed it up beautifully when he said: "He who would love life and see good days, let him refrain his tongue from evil and his lips that they speak no guile" . . . (1 Peter 3:10)

There are many misconceptions about funeral costs. That's not surprising, really, as there are other charges involved in a funeral, then those of the funeral director . . . cemetery or cremation charge . . . monuments or markers . . . newspaper death notices and flowers. North Quincy: A Vibrant

Accent Upholstering Puts The Accent On Pride And Quality

By DAN CONNELLY

Three years ago when Paul Picariello put up his Accent Upholstery sign outside 70 Billings Rd. in North Quincy, he never realized how rewarding his decision "to give it a shot," would turn out.

"I love being my own boss," said the South Boston native who moved his family to North Quincy nine years ago.

His positive attitude to a profession that is considered by some to be an art, is the result of pride and quality workmanship he puts in every chair, sofa, and cushion.

He follows an old fashion rule: "Honesty is the best policy."

Picariello worked his trade for other firms for over 26 years before taking the plunge.

"It all began when I was walking along Billings Rd. one day three years ago this May and saw an empty store. Later, at home, I talked with my wife Susan and explained my ideas. I concluded that I'd like to give it a shot." She replied, "go for it."

"Well, we were both right. It's been rewarding not only for me but for my family." Helping him when the work load increases are his three sons, Paul, 21, Craig, 17 and Mike 13.

Picariello's right hand at the shop is 'Rocky,' a 61-year-old cutter/stitcher who shared a work bench with Picariello in the early days.

Picariello starts an upholstery assignment by going to the customer's home, examining the piece(s). After the fabric is selected, he gives a job cost and date of completion.

The piece is moved to the North Quincy shop where it is stripped to its frame and then rebuilt.

His upholstery business is not confined exclusively to North Quincy. He presently is completing cushioned chairs for a Dover resident.

Picariello, in reflecting on his good fortune, said "like all the furniture pieces I restore, I feel comfortable when the job is done right."

ACCENT ON QUALITY — Paul Picariello begins the task of refurbishing like new this stripped lounge chair at his North Quincy shop.

Cammy's Delicatessen A Popular Eating Spot

It's an established fact today that eating out is a regular part of our diet.

And catering to that appetizing fact by serving quality food and dependable service is Cammy's Delicatessen at 53A Billings Rd., North Quincy.

Under the ownership of 37-year-old Don Thomas of East Weymouth, who grew up in the Norfolk Downs neighborhood, Cammy's is today continuing to be a convenient restaurant oasis for the neighborhood.

"Because our business is predominately local, you see the same faces day in and day out. So we must be doing something right," Thomas said.

His credentials in that business include working at Cammy's during his growing up years. A long tenure with a food service firm in Randolph followed.

In 1984, Thomas and his wife Peggy, upon learning the delicatessen was up for sale, decided to take the entrepreneur plunge.

Mrs. Thomas, mother of a young son, and who teaches in the Whitman school system, pitches in on weekends at the restaurant "and does more than her share," Thomas said proudly.

Thomas says: "I love this business despite the financial burden imposed. Sure the hours are long, but I enjoy doing what I am doing and that seems to even everything out."

The restaurant is open for business Monday through Friday, 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. On Saturdays, 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. Sundays the restaurant is open only to catering work and platter orders.

Cammy's Deli serves a breakfast, lunch and dinner menu, sells beer and wine to go.

A rare feature for a state lottery station on the premises. Potential millionaires welcome that service as they enjoy a snack at a table while pondering lucky numbers.

The 'U' shape counter is never quiet.

According to the National Restaurant Association people spend more than 39 per cent of their food dollar in restaurants. With a delicatessen like Cammy's, you can see why.

Contralto Ruth E. Hamilton will be guest soloist at the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday, March 16, in Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Center.

Miss Hamilton, a native of Atlanta, Ga., resides in Cambridge, and has been soloist in numerous Boston area churches and in concerts.

Her selections during the opening liturgy will be "Turn Thee To Me" by Dvorak, and the spiritual "They Led My Lord Away" arranged by Hayes. Prior to the sermon, Miss Hamilton will sing Handel's "He Was Despised" from "Messiah," and following the sermon, Dawson's arrangement of the spiritual, "There Is A Balm In Gilead." As the offertory she will present, "Unto Thee, O Lord," by Malotte.

Miss Hamilton will be accompanied at the organ by Peter E. Krasinski, organist and choir director of Bethany Church.

The Rev. J. William Arnold, senior minister, will preach the sermon titled "Let Me Alone!" based on scriptural texts from John 7:1-21 and the Gospel of Mark 15:33 - 39.

Sylvia A. Hofsepien will be the lay scripture reader. The associate minister, the Rev.

Joel F. Huntington, will assist in leading the liturgy.

The worship service will be broadcast "live" at 10 a.m. over radio station W J D A, 1300 kc.

Bethany Youth will be hosts to the young people from Gorham, N.H., for a weekend retreat beginning Friday evening through Sunday noon.

Following the worship Sunday, there will be a fellowship hour in the Allen Parlor. The public is invited to share in the worship and fellowship, and to enroll children in the Sunday School.

The last of the Lenten devotional services will be held Wednesday, March 19, at 7 a.m. in Bethany Chapel. The theme is "Women and the Cross." Rev. Huntington will give the meditation on "Mary the Mother of Jesus." Following this 30-minute service, a light breakfast will be served. The last session of a six week course on "The Covenant" will be taught by Pastor Arnold March 19, 7:30 to 9 p.m. The purpose is to study the Bible as a whole, tracing God's plan of salvation for the world as revealed in the scriptures. The course is free and open to the community.

Kingdom Of God Sermon Theme At Squantum First Church

The "Kingdom of God" was the subject of sermons in both morning services at the First Church of Squantum. Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, Pastor, preached on the subject "The Kingdom Has Come!" taking his texts from Isaiah 61 and Luke 7.

At the first service, guitarists Mary Ruth Scott, David Williams and Andy Ogilvie accompanied the hymns. Amy Haywood and Bonnie MacKichie were the ushers.

At the second service, Drucilla Warnes and Doris Longmire were the greeters. The ushers were Tore Wallin and Stewart Scott. The Fellowship Hour was hosted by Charles and Gloria Lester and Fred MacMillan.

During that service, the Chancel Choir sang "Were You There?" as arranged by H.T. Burleigh. Mary Ruth Scott directed. Violinist James E. Sumner played "He That Keepeth Israel" by Adolphe Schlosser as special music.

The hymns were "Thy Kingdom Come, O Lord," "Ah! Think Not the Lord Delayeth" and "Seek Ye First." This last hymn was sung with guitar accompaniment by Mary Ruth Scott.

Last Sunday the sermon in the first service was "Do You See the Kingdom?" It was illustrated with seventy-five photographs collected by the pastor, Lori Ogilvie and Marci Hurd were the ushers. Mary Ruth Scott and Andy Ogilvie played their guitars.

During the second service, Dr. Langevin preached on the subject, "Why Does God Let Bad Things Happen?" His text from Romans 8 was, "No, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him who loved us."

The hymns included "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross," "How Firm a Foundation" and "Now, O Lord, Go with Us." The Chancel Choir sang Palestrina's "Adoramus Te Christe" in Latin for the offertory anthem.

Hazel Mayne and her daughter, Ellen Ogilvie, were the greeters. The Fellowship Hour after the service was hosted by Marie Midram and Mary Scott.

On Wednesday evenings, the Lenten series on "The Ministry of Jesus" continues with a supper at 6:00 p.m. and the program at 7 p.m.

There will be all-church breakfasts at 9:15 a.m. on three of the next four Sundays. In each case, a single service for the whole church will be held at 10:30 a.m.

On March 23, Palm Sunday, a special Palm Sunday service is planned. Rebuilding Ahead

Raiders Bow To Milton In State Tourney

By TOM SULLIVAN

North Quincy's hockey teams have made the state tournament for three years in a row under coach Kevin Jago after an absence of 23 years.

Jago apparently has a tough job ahead of him next year as most of this season's standouts will be lost to graduation.

For the second year in a row, the Raiders just missed winning the school's first Suburban League regular season championship as they finished second to Brockton by a single point.

Then, North lost a hard-fought 5-3 decision to Milton in the opening round of the tournament.

Last season the Raiders forced heavily favored Malden Catholic into overtime before losing, 4-3.

Two years ago North defeated Saugus but lost to St. John's Prep, always one of the top teams in the tournament, in the second round.

"We lose some awfully good players, but we have some fine players returning and, if some of the younger boys come along, we might do all right," said Jago, a former Raider star himself.

Among those graduating will be three of the league's top scorers, Dave Tapper (47 points), Dave Fasano (44) and Mike Haynes (42).

Also going will be Capt. Greg McGlame, one of the best defensemen in the league.

One of Jago's big worries at the start of the season was replacing Matt Higgins, a league all-star and one of the best goalies in the state.

Kevin Jeffers, a transfer from Madison Park High in Boston, answered the call and was one of the better goalies in the league, boasting a goals-against average of a little more than three a game.

Sophomore Brian Mahoney also turned in some excellent performances when called upon and will be a key to next year's success.

"Mahoney and Paul Hanscom will be returning and I think they can fill the bill," said Jago. "Brian did a fine job this season and, although Hanscom saw virtually no varsity action, he did turn in an outstanding job for six minutes, blanking Waltham after Jeffers was injured."

Defense was another question this season with McGlame the only experienced player. But Tim Duff and Paul McGrath, a fine looking freshman, did outstanding work.

McGrath will be the only defenseman returning and the defense will be built around him.

Forwards returning will be Mark Zimmerman, who had an outstanding season as a junior; Matt Furtado, who sparked as a sophomore; John Pacino, Mike Bartkus, Jay Rodriguez and Mark Simonelli.

"Zimmerman had a great year and gained confidence in every game," Jago said. "I moved him up to the first line when Mike Haynes was sidelined for the season and he performed very well. He should be really outstanding next year."

"We knew Furtado was a good one but he did better than we expected. Another boy who did very well was Matt Ostiguy, who was one of our most pleasant surprises. Unfortunately, he is a senior."

"I'll start the returning players on weights and I hope they will play in summer leagues. I'll be keeping my eyes on boys playing summer hockey and, who knows, maybe we will get another good transfer or two. We have had three excellent seasons in a row and I hope we can continue to do as well in the future."

17 Events For Senior Olympics

Seventeen events will be included in the fourth annual Senior Olympic Games which will be held in Quincy, May 12 through 17 for active people 50 and over from South Shore towns. Last year 175 senior athletes competed for Olympic style medals.

In response to the many walking clubs which have been formed throughout the South Shore, three walking races have been included in this year's schedule: three miles, one mile and a half-mile.

A feature of the opening day, Monday, May 12, will be a softball game under the lights between senior men and women and a high school girls' team.

Brochures and application forms will be available in early April at all Councils on Aging throughout the South Shore and at many locations in Quincy. Further information may be had by calling 471-5712.

B.C. High Has Quincy Look

The Boston College High hockey team played Catholic Conference foe Catholic Memorial last night (Wednesday) for the state Div. 1 South championship and, as usual, the Eagles have plenty of Quincy color.

BC High is coached by Bob Hayes, one of the founders of the Quincy Youth Hockey Association, and his two assistants are his son, Bob, and Dick Storella, also from Quincy.

Among the Eagles' players are Quincy's Chris Marshall, P.J. Hussey and Ron Fletcher. Hayes is a former QYHA coach and his son and Storella, as well as all three of Quincy's BC High players, came up through the QYHA.

Marshall had two assists in the Eagles' 7-2 quarterfinal victory over Milton and also had two in the semifinal 7-3 win over another Catholic Conference rival, St. John's Prep Sunday at Boston Garden. St. John's was the defending champion.

Hussey has been outstanding as a penalty killer and he and Bob Ward have combined for four shorthanded goals.

B.C. High, the top-seeded team in Div. 1 South with a 17-2 record, lost to Catholic Memorial, 6-0, in its final game of the regular season, but Hayes feels that loss, the only one in the conference, was "the best thing that happened to us. We had a feeling of security until that loss."

"That game will make our guys work harder. We were on a downhill slump at the time. We were winning by four and five goals, then three, then two and one. We owe them one and I think you'll see a different result this time."

"They are the team to beat, they've been number one all year long and they'll remain number one until they are beaten here," said Catholic Memorial coach Bill Hanson.

CM eliminated Silver Lake, 4-0, in the other semifinal game Sunday.

South Shore Junior 13-Year-Olds Sweep Volleyball Tourney

The South Shore Junior volleyball 13 years-and-under development teams recently took first, second and third places at a 13-and-under tournament at North Quincy High.

Playing against teams from the North Shore, Merrimac Valley and Newton-Brookline districts, the three Quincy teams had a combined record of 29-3.

The team of Lori Novak, Jennifer Richmond and Julie McCloskey took the championship with a perfect 9-0 record. Second place went to the team of Randi Gaura, Erin Doherty, Heather Rendle and Samson Lee, with an 8-1 mark the only loss coming in the title match. In third place with a 7-2 record was the team of Christine Barrett, Linda Laitinen, Jill Haynes and Regina Murphy.

"The future of both North Quincy High and Quincy High's volleyball program is bright for years to come," said Jim Rendle, coach and director of the 13-and-under South Shore program. "We are attracting many fine young athletes, some as young as 10 years old and only in the fifth grade.

"These young athletes, who are learning and developing the fundamental skills of the game will not only feed the high school teams in the future, but many will be representing New England Juniors in competitions throughout the country in the very near future."

Koch Basketball Awards March 27

The Koch Club Youth Basketball program will close out its 37th year Thursday, March 27, at 7 p.m. at the Atlantic Middle School gymnasium.

Boys and girls who participated throughout the 1985-86 season will be provided with a trophy in recognition of their dependability and reliability to the league and their teammates.

Miss Simone Koch, director of the basketball program, will present the awards assisted by Robert Woods, treasurer, and the coaches and referees who have volunteered their Thursday evenings during the season.

Richard J. Koch, founder and executive director of the organization, will be emcee.

The Koch Club basketball program was founded in 1949 at the original North Quincy High School gymnasium and during the span of its 37 years has had units in Houghs Neck, Broad Meadows and Montclair.

Although primarily concerned with the philosophy that everyone participates and competition is secondary, the Koch Club had one of the outstanding semi-pro basketball teams in Massachusetts in the 1950's and 1960's.

Curry Completes Best Season Under Buckley

The Curry College men's basketball team, coached by Quincy's Brian Buckley, completed the school's best season last week when it won its first Commonwealth Coast Conference championship.

The Colonels, who were in first place most of the season, lost their final game to the Coast Guard Academy, forcing a playoff between five teams. Losing a coin flip, Curry was forced to play a preliminary game in the tie-breaker playoff.

The Colonels defeated Salve Regina, 82-64, and topped Roger Williams, 97-94, to reach the finals.

Curry capped its first title with a 75-69 victory over Anna Maria, which had beaten Curry during the regular season. Anna Maria made the finals by eliminating Coast Guard, 74-66.

The Colonels were led by Kevin Moran's 24 points and 10 rebounds and John Baszkiewicz 17 points and 13 rebounds in the title game as they led throughout the game. Quincy's Paul Gill had eight points and seven assists and Bill McBirney of Quincy had eight rebounds.

"Gill was great in the play-offs," said Buckley. "He was eight for eight from the foul line against Roger Williams, scored 16 points against Salve Regina and ran the offense well against Anna Maria. McBirney was tremendous off the boards and played great defense. With him out the first semester with an injured foot, we were 3-7. With him in the lineup we were 12-6."

Curry finished 7-2 in the conference and 15-13 overall. The 15 wins tie a school record for a season held by the 1979-80 team. It was only the fifth time Curry had finished over .500.

"Our guys had plenty of ups and downs," Buckley said. "But they never quit and proved you can make the best out of a season, even with a poor start."

Included in those ups and downs were two and three-point losses to Salem State, which played in the NCAA tournament, and Eastern Nazarene, which played in the NAIA tournament.

An overtime win over Tufts, an ECAC tournament team, was the first ever for Curry over the Jumbos. Curry also lost to Babson, another ECAC tournament team, in overtime. The Colonels were 3-1 in overtime games, with all four games coming in a row. "It was unbelievable," said Buckley. "We had one overtime in two and a half years and we play four in a row."

Curry graduates three seniors and will have only one junior returning next season. "We will be young, but experienced," said the veteran coach. "The freshmen and sophomores have had plenty of quality minutes, in fact three freshmen started this year."

Buckley, who last coached at Quincy Junior College, has been assisted by former North Quincy High standout Ged Phelan for the last three seasons. "He has been a tremendous help," said Buckley. "Division 3 college ball goes from October to March and takes a lot of time. Ged has paid his dues scouting, recruiting and practicing and has developed into a fine assistant coach."

This was a big year for Curry's winter teams. The women's basketball team had its second straight winning season with a 13-9 record and played in the MIAW state Class C tournament.

The hockey team had its best season, winning the ECAC Div. 3 North championship with a 5-2 win over Plymouth State, featuring Quincy's Kevin Craig. Curry lost to South champion Trinity, 3-0, in the Div. 3 championship game. Curry ended Southeastern Mass' 38-game winning streak in the semifinals, 5-4.

Another is Michelle Millane, one of Hennessy's prize athletes with the Quincy Track Club. Michelle broke many field event records at North Quincy High and with the QTC and is doing the same at Northeastern University. She is the New England collegiate and TAC discus champion.

Pre-entry fee is $6 (prior to March 20). Registration is limited to 150 girls.

Dudek Receives 'Player Of Year' Award

Plymouth State College's senior All-American halfback Joe Dudek of North Quincy was recently presented with the ECAC Div. 3 New England Player of the Year Award for the second straight year at the annual ECAC banquet at the Meadowlands Sports Complex in East Rutherford, N.J.

Dudek broke the NCAA all division record for career touchdowns with 79 and also rushed for 5570 yards—third on the all-time list behind Tony Dorsett and Charles White.

During the 1985 season the 6-1, 195-pound former North Quincy High standout led Plymouth State to an 8-3 record, its fifth straight N.E. Football Conference title and a berth in the ECAC Div. 3 North championship—a game won by Albany State, 33-21, despite 265 yards by Dudek.

Joe rushed for 1615 yards and led the nation with 25 touchdowns last fall. He finished ninth in the voting for the Heisman Trophy and the sixth most first place votes.

NORTH QUINCY's Joe Dudek, right, who broke the NCAA all-division record for career touchdowns at Plymouth State College, holds the ECAC Div. 3 N.E. Player of the Year Award which he received for the second year in a row. With him is PSC Athletic Director Gene Fahey.

WEEK OF: MARCH 13.

AQUARIUS - January 21-February 19

Enterprising Aquarius can create a new system that wins praise for its efficiency. You also excel in motivating others. But in romance, brush up your communications skills.

PISCES - February 20-March 20

Present workload increases, the key is to delegate tasks to appropriate individuals. Romantic breakthrough may happen after the weekend. Moneywise, this is the week to implement a budget.

ARIES - March 21-April 20

Before taking on a new assignment, be sure that expectations are understood by all parties. Children respond positively to your example but older relatives may disagree with your suggestions.

TAURUS - April 21-May 22

A laborer may prove more labor than love - avoid volunteering too quickly. Don't rush partner into making a commitment. In relationships, spontaneity is all important.

GEMINI - May 23-June 21

New or renewed romance may highlight this period with your present mood reflected in an upbeat wardrobe. Family tensions ease, but it's up to you to take the initiative.

CANCER - June 22-July 22

Determined and cooperative effort leads to an amicable solution of family dispute. New interests may be too diversified - the key is to experiment, then select the most appropriate choices.

LEO - July 23-August 22

A lively week for all students as they absorb and dispatch a host of new ideas. Pets may figure in current picture. Financial responsibilities must not be neglected.

VIRGO - August 23-September 22

This is a favorable week for enlarging friendship circle and entering - cautiously - into a partnership arrangement. Experimentation pays off in career or academic enterprise.

LIBRA - September 23-October 22

Spontaneity is important in romance, but a more methodical approach earns plaudits in career or educational pursuit. Listen closely to financial advisor, especially if considering changes in direction.

Special Needs Athletic Night March 20

Excitement is building among the special needs students of Quincy as the Sixth Annual Special Needs Athletic Night scheduled for March 20, approaches.

They can be seen practicing dribbling, running, shooting baskets, and kicking goals to get ready for the events planned for that evening.

This year, there will be a girls' and boys' basketball game, novelty relay races, soccer speed ball, and lacrosse scoop-a-do.

The students are assigned to the teams based upon their abilities. Events will be short, but the amount of enthusiasm they generate among the students is equal to any major league team, according to the organizers.

According to Mary Pratt, a long-time physical education teacher in the Quincy Public Schools, this evening gives her an opportunity to demonstrate what adapted physical education could do for the special needs population.

"I've tried to show the entire scope of physical education, starting from the mere basics and gradually moving to concepts of team play," she said.

"The evening enables the audience to realize how much enjoyment can be derived from watching children playing games in which the rules have been modified to meet needs.

"As a result, there is a very positive reaction from the audience which is not typical of what you usually see at games when rules are bent."

The teams will be coached by Howard Mason and Jim Lynch, both experienced special needs teachers in Quincy. They have been working hard with the students on their athletic skills, but as Mason says, "The point is not who wins, but it is the sportsmanship that counts.

Also, we are trying to stress teamwork, to work together and pass the ball to one another."

The students are eager to show their skills. Dan Sias of North Quincy High, who is 6'5", boasted of making 36 baskets in one session, and he is sure that he is going to bring Lynch's team to victory.

However, Danny Troy, from Mason's team, commented boldly, "we're going to bury Mr. Lynch's team."

The girls were equally enthusiastic about the upcoming events. Margaret Goguen, who was the best shot last year, said she wasn't sure if she was going to be as good because she "was getting old now. But tell the other team that we have a good game plan."

The public is urged to reserve that night and to plan on joining the students at the North Quincy High School gymnasium.

Baseball, Softball Officials Meeting

The Park Department will conduct its annual meeting of baseball and softball sponsors, managers and coaches next Wednesday, March 19, at 7:30 p.m. at the Meeting Hall of the Park and Recreation Complex, 100 Southern Artery, Merrymount Park.

The purpose of the meeting will be to discuss applications requested and pending to use Quincy baseball and softball fields and prevent any possible duplication or conflict in dates for the 1986 season.

The Park and Recreation Board will process and act on athletic field applications at the regular Board Meeting

Water Safety Course

City Recreation Director Barry J. Welch announces the Recreation Department will sponsor an American Red Cross Water Safety Instructor's Course.

The course is designed to provide individuals with the skills necessary to teach American Red Cross Swimming Programs to the public. Persons successfully completing this course will receive National Red Cross certification.

The course is open to individuals who are at least 17 years of age and hold a current Advanced Life Saving Certificate. Although telephone reservations will be accepted, all persons must pass a qualifying swim test before formal acceptance into the course.

The course will begin Thursday Mar. 20 and will continue on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6 to 9 p.m. There will also be three Saturday sessions Mar. 29, Apr. 5, and Apr. 12. The training takes approximately three and a half weeks. All classes will be conducted at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool.

Registration can be made by phone or in person at the Quincy Recreation Department, 100 Southern Artery, starting Mar. 6.

Quincy residents will have first preference, followed by persons who live in communities served by the South Shore Chapter of the American Red Cross. These communities include Quincy, Weymouth, Randolph, Braintree, Holbrook, Hingham, Hull, Milton, Norwell, Scituate, and Cohasset. Registration is limited and will be done on a first come first served basis.

There is a fee for the program. Additional information can be obtained by calling Welch at 773-1380, ext. 204.

Fish Truck Flips On X-Way

A truck carrying 4,500 pounds of fish skidded on ice and overturned closing a section of the northbound lane of the Southeast Expressway Monday during the morning rush hour.

The fish did not spill out of the truck, but inbound commuter traffic was tied up for two hours. State Police rerouted Boston-bound traffic to the Furnace Brook Parkway exit, part way around the rotary, and back onto the expressway until crews could right the truck. The road was reopened by 8 a.m.

The truck that caused the tie-up belonged to Amorrigi Sea Food Co. of Johnstown, R.I. It apparently skidded on the icy overpass of the Furnace Brook Parkway.

The driver, Louis Amorrigi, brother of the owner, was bound for the fish pier in Boston. He was taken to Quincy City Hospital where he was treated for minor injuries and released.

Family of five nearly bored to death by TV.

Johnston, Rhode Island. In this quiet little town in western Rhode Island, James Wilson and his family say they had been bored into a near fatal state by the programming available on conventional television. "Bland sameness," said Mrs. Wilson. "Boringly boringness," said 12 year old Peter Wilson. "Ho hum, predictable-ness," said 8 year old Pam Wilson. "Goo, goo, blah, blah," said 6 month old Vickie Wilson. Mr. Wilson, a 38 year old banker said he agreed with his family's remarks "...that is, until we got cable TV."

Since installing cable TV the Wilson family says their TV boredom has changed to V infatuation. "We're not watching more V," said Wilson, "we're just watching better TV."

Mrs. Wilson added, "Better quality shows in the educational, informational and cultural areas."

"Plus news, sports and weather at any time," chimed in Wilson.

"Don't forget classic movies," said Peter.

Obviously, this family is very excited about the wide selection of programming cable TV offers them. Their lives are richer. Their interests are more fulfilled. "And we were surprised at how little cable costs per month," remarked a thrif-conscious Mrs. Wilson. Cable TV saved this Johnston, Rhode Island family from terminal boredom. What could it do for you?

Television being considered as cure for insomnia

Boston, Massachusetts—Researchers at a major Boston university are looking into the possible use of television as breakthrough cure for insomniacs.

"Our theory is that, when people can't sleep, they need only watch a little TV to solve that unfortunate problem," said Dr. Howard I. Kuo, leader of the research team.

"We see television as a depressant. It's so boring and predictable, we feel it's the perfect sedative."

The doctor does note, however, that people who subscribe to cable TV cannot use TV as a tranquilizer. "Cable offers a wide variety of exciting, stimulating programming; cultural programming, Expand the quality of the TV you watch, without watching more TV.

If you think there's not enough quality programming on TV, maybe you haven't looked at cable TV lately. Cable TV gives you a wider selection of informational and educational shows. More cultural programs, current and classic movies. Plus, weather, sports and news anytime you want it.

We're so confident you'll love our quality, for a limited time we're offering a 30-day money back guarantee, as well as free installation. Call us.

If you only have time for a little TV, that's all the more reason to watch cable.

Investigation Continues

2 More Fires But No Link To N.Q. Arsonist

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

There were two more fires in the city Monday night, at least one of which was arson, but Fire Department officials had not determined whether there was a connection with a rash of fires set in North Quincy since November.

"We're intensifying our surveillance and investigation," said Acting Fire Chief Carl Valenti after fires at the Snug Harbor School in Germantown and Tobin Towers senior citizen housing in Wollaston.

Valenti said he was leaning towards an accidental cause for the fire which caused an estimated $70,000 damage to the Snug Harbor School.

"There was no forced entry, and the alarms in the building were not tripped," said Valenti.

But the Tobin Towers fire, which resulted in $5,000 damage, was "definitely set" according to Valenti.

"After the fire one of the tenants observed a white male in his 20's exiting the building hastily. Indications are that he might have been involved," according to Valenti.

However, Valenti said that he didn't think the fire was set by the North Quincy arsonist.

"The M.O. (modus operandi or mode of operating) appears to be the same, but other particulars don't match," said Valenti.

"But it's possible it was the same person."

The Snug Harbor School fire, which broke out just before 8 p.m. went to a second alarm when heavy smoke in the south end of the building and heavy fire in the last classroom greeted the Fire Department, said Deputy Chief Thomas Gorman.

The fire, which started in a closet with paper goods, was contained to a classroom and school was in session Tuesday with students moved to vacant classrooms, said Gorman.

There was heavy smoke and water damage to the south wing, according to Gorman who said it took the Fire Department 15 minutes to knock down the blaze.

There was also very heavy fire damage to the roof area and classroom, said Gorman, who noted that if the Maintenance Department can repair the damage, the $70,000 estimate could come down.

The city does not insure its buildings because of the high cost of insurance premiums.

Atherton Hough Honors 'Its No. 1 Leprechaun'

It's all part of a day's work for custodian James "Red" Riley to prepare the Atherton Hough elementary school for an assembly.

But it's not every day that the assembly turns out to be for him.

The idea for the event came from the school's PTA which wanted to show Riley its appreciation for giving a "110 per cent effort."

"He really takes pride in his work," said PTA member Margaret Crowley. "Everything is spotless, and the kids love him."

The assembly was scheduled for St. Patrick's Day because Riley is proud of his Irish heritage, and always wears a special outfit to celebrate the holiday.

"I was totally surprised. I had no idea whatsoever," said Riley.

"I've had beautiful St. Patrick's Days before, but I don't think I'll ever be able to top this," said Riley.

"I feel better than Tip O'Neill who was honored by the president, because I was honored by the children."

There were citations, gifts, songs and dances as part of the celebration.

Citations were presented from the city by Mayor Francis McCauley and from the School Committee by Margaret Nigro.

A City Council citation was presented by Michael Cheney who also gave Riley a large broom painted green.

A certificate of recognition from teachers at the school cited him as being "the number one leprechaun."

The lunchroom workers gave him an Irish tapestry, while each student made a special shamrock on which was printed "thank you."

Students also sang a song about "Irish Jim from Houghs Neck" to the tune of "Galway Piper."

A ship clock was presented by the PTA.

Several students did an Irish Jig, and a big yellow chicken presented Riley a bunch of green balloons.

Riley has spent about 24 years at the school. He started there in January, 1957, spent time at other schools from 1967 to 1972 and returned to the Atherton Hough.

"I take a lot of pride in my work," he said. "And the children take pride in the building with me. There is no graffiti on the walls."

"I love my job and I enjoy coming to work. Not many people are able to say that."

MAYOR FRANCIS McCAULEY presented a citation to James "Red" Riley, left, during a surprise assembly for the Atherton Hough custodian.

Spring Arrives And:

Only Half Of Snow Budget Spent

Spring officially begins today (Thursday), and the city has only spent about half of its $300,000 snow removal budget.

"It looks like we won't have a deficit," said Mayor Francis McCauley, "and we might have an excess."

McCauley said that the snow budget has a balance of $148,330. Expenses for maintenance and repair of snow removal equipment will be deducted from that amount, he said.

Any money left over will go to the Excess and Deficiency Fund, said McCauley.

"It's been excellent all winter," said Public Works Commissioner Paul Anderson. "Unless we have a four foot snow storm, we'll be in good shape."

The money already spent has gone for sand, salt and overtime for the small snow and ice storms this winter, according to Anderson.

McCauley said that the $300,000 budget is the largest since he has been mayor. He said it was increased from $127,461 because deficits had occurred.

Anderson and McCauley noted that will be the first time in recent years that the city has not had to hire outside equipment to help in snow removal.

McCauley Complains To Dukakis Over Rodriguez Remarks

Mayor Francis McCauley has written to Gov. Michael Dukakis to express his "deep concern over the public behavior of your appointee Alex Rodriguez of the Mass. Commission Against Discrimination."

"Mr. Rodriguez has asserted that Quincy has not made a good faith effort to comply with Affirmative Action and Fair Housing goals.

"These public remarks are contrary to the ongoing dialogue and program success we have had with the MCAD during the past two years, and are an example of Mr. Rodriguez's fondness for making irresponsible and unfounded charges in the media prior to even initiating a dialogue with the city, town or state agency involved."

"It is my hope that the MCAD will, during 1986, find a way to work with cities and towns in the Commonwealth rather than firing inflammatory newspaper salvos which tend to polarize the positions of all those involved."

License For Limo Salesroom

The License Board Tuesday, granted Arthur Cote a gasoline permit so he can open a new limousine salesroom at 67 Field St., behind Southern Artery.

The granted license enables Cote to store 300 gallons of gasoline in the tanks of 15 cars in the top level garage and showroom.

The applicant, who formerly operated Cote Ford Motor Company of Mattapan, plans to sell to dealers or act as agent for the Florida-based Bradford Coachworks line of converting Lincolns to limousines.

Cote told the board he will use the second level of the building to house, at the maximum 15 vehicles, each of which is worth about $55,000.

Cote assured the board the upper level floor is designed for such a load.

The firm will be known as Cote' Works of New England.

12,650 Gallons Gasoline Approved At Marina Bay

The License Board granted a request Tuesday from Boston Harbor Marina, 542 Squantum St., to store 12,650 gallons of gasoline for 506 cars in an out-of-sight garage.

Project Director Walter J. Hannon of the North Quincy-based O'Connell Management Company said all of the cars will be garaged in two tiers under the planned pyramid-like shaped luxury condominium building whose height in the center will reach 10 stories.

Hannon, former mayor, said the garage is designed to provide out-of-sight vehicle parking beneath the Marina Bay condominiums. The permit allows them to store 25 gallons of gasoline per car.

He also told the board the garage will have a mechanical exhaust system, sprinklers, floor drains and gas separators. He added that pilings are already sunk and the garage construction will begin next month with a 12 to 14-month completion date. Board member Acting Fire Chief Carl Velanti was told by the project director that they are in the process of bringing in a water line to guarantee added protection during construction. Velanti had told Hannon the chance of a fire breaking out is more likely during the construction stage than when the project is completed and fully operational.

Lack Of Smoke Detectors Delays Hearing On Point Building

By DAN CONNELLY

Lack of a smoke detector in the front stairway led to upstairs apartments continued for another week final action by the License Board regarding conditions at a building at 532-534 Washington St., Quincy Point.

The building houses a bar room, 536 Bar & Grille, a restaurant, the Eagle's Nest, and two upstairs apartments.

A Feb. 26 report to the Board from the Fire Department, investigating a reported gas leak in the cellar, led to a hearing March 11.

At that hearing it was also reported the operator of the restaurant allowed a cook to sleep in the basement, plumbing, wiring and gas fittings were allegedly done by a person without the benefit of a license, lack of smoke detectors in the front stairway or at the top of the stairs, rubbish in the stairway and halls, a junk car in the rear of the property.

A subsequent investigation by the Fire Department found these were corrected except for the installation of a smoke detector, forcing the Board to delay final action on the disposition of the complaint.

State CD Director Urges Flood Insurance

The Massachusetts Civil Defense Agency has written to the mayor asking him to emphasize the importance of the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP).

Robert J. Boulay, Civil Defense Director, wrote to Mayor Francis McAuley, "During the spring floods each year, the citizens of the Commonwealth have suffered losses in the millions of dollars. "Most of those losses were not recovered.

"Now is the time to emphasize the importance of the National Flood Insurance Program.

"The N.F.I.P. is an attempt by the federal government to provide flood insurance protection to all citizens who live in flood prone areas of the country.

"Most homeowners insurance policies will not protect them from loss due to flooding.

"Any local licensed property/casualty agent is authorized to sell flood insurance, and there is a five day waiting period on most policies. The best time to act is now."

License Board Briefs

The License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting at City Hall.

- Granted a one-day all alcoholic license to Mrs. Mary Malley Bittner for a christening Saturday, April 5, 7 p.m. to midnight at the North Quincy Knights of Columbus Hall.
- Granted the North

Quincy United Soccer Club a permit to conduct canning days on Saturday, March 22 and Saturday, March 29.

- Granted the North Quincy High School cheerleaders a permit to conduct canning days on March 16 and 17.
- Postponed until March 25 a request from J & S Auto

Sales, 231 Southern Artery for a Motor II license with business to be conducted at Mike's Service Station.

- Continued to May 1, pending police approval, a permanent placement for a manager at the Hough's Neck American Legion Post No. 380.

NATURAL GAS THE MODERN ALTERNATIVE

Take a big load off laundry costs with a new gas dryer.

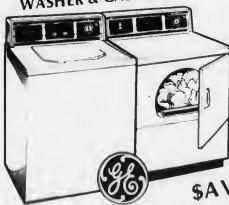

- Nothing dries clothes more economically than a natural gas dryer. Clean, efficient gas dries more loads than electric dryers do for the same cost.
- Nothing dries clothes faster than a natural gas dryer. It moves more warm air through the drying drum.
- A reliable gas dryer maintains its efficiency year after year. Your dryer lasts longer.

Burning calories before you eat them? Take control with a gas range.

- Professional chefs demand natural gas ranges for the precise temperature control they need.
- Only a clean, gas flame adjusts instantly from high heat to low, low to high and everything in between.
- A gas range's flexible flame hugs every size pot and pan perfectly, for total heat distribution.
- With gas, there's no warm-up or cool-down delay. You start cooking instantly, and have control to stop boiling over, burning and splattering.

Plans For Houghs Neck Pizza Shop Delayed

By DAN CONNELLY
Anestli and Georgia Peppas of Brockton would like to open a new pizza shop at 1272 Sea St., Houghs Neck.

But the city's License Board would like more detailed plans, as well as time to consider whether the neighborhood needs another such business.

The Board voted to continue to March 25 the request from Houghs Neck Pizza for a license to operate at the former site of Findlay's Market.

The Peppas' said they would be open 7 days a week and would also sell subs in response to Ward Councillor Michael Cheney who attended the hearing to learn more details about Houghs Neck Pizza.

They also said that they would be open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. and the business will be family-oriented.

Board members discussed the granting of another such license when they brought up that there were 6 or 7 of these businesses in the general neighborhood. They also voiced concern of past problems of young people congregating in that general site and parking problems.

Building Inspector Allan MacDonald said he would need a set of plans to show seating arrangements and parking before he could act on the license request.

Scott Deware, a Quincy funeral director and owner of the building where the shop would be housed, told MacDonald he would have the plans detailing these concerns by the next meeting. He also told them: "I'll not be an absentee owner and I will see that the building is maintained properly."

Raymond LaRue told the Board that youth problems in the area are almost nil today and he had no objection to the Brockton couple planning to open Houghs Neck Pizza... "and I live only 100 yards away."

SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT John Osterman surveyed the damage after a two alarm fire Monday night at the Snug Harbor School, Germantown, which caused an estimated $70,000 damage.

HLPE Union, City Reach Contract Agreement

The Hospital, Library and Public Employees Union has settled its contract with the city, according to Mayor Francis McCauley.

McCauley said agreement was reached Monday night with the union for a three year contract. The terms are similar to those with other unions, he said.

The terms are 1½ percent increase retroactive to July, 1984; 1½ percent retroactive to January, 1985; 6 percent retroactive to July, 1985; 4 percent for fiscal year 1986; and 2 percent, January, 1987.

There were also some adjustments for overtime and holidays, according to the mayor. There was no upgrading, he said.

Union members had staged a peaceful demonstration at City Hall March 5 calling for a contract settlement.

McCauley said the teacher aides have not yet settled on a contract.

Permits For $615,030 In Construction

Building Inspector Allan F. MacDonald reported that his department issued 67 permits for construction estimated to cost $615,030 during the month of February.

The department received

$6,650 in permit fees and $225 for public safety inspections. A total of one dwelling unit was added through new construction and one through alteration.

Permits were issued for a one-family home estimated to cost $79,000.

There were 40 residential alterations at $247,900, 10 other alterations at $267,650, five removals at $19,030, three signs at $8,000 and two miscellaneous jobs at $2,450.

2 More Fires But No Link To N.Q. Arsonist

were at the scene for about two hours. Mutual aid from Boston, Braintree and Weymouth covered stations in Quincy, Gorman said.

The alarm for the fire at Tobin Towers, 80 Clay St., came in at 11:09, according to Gorman.

The blaze broke out in a tenant storage area on the seventh floor and was controlled by the sprinkler system until the Fire Department's arrival, said Gorman.

"It was very fortunate that the sprinkler held the fire," said Gorman, "if it hadn't, there could have been a very serious fire as far as the building and occupants."

Residents on the seventh floor of the 12 story building were moved to the sixth floor, said Gorman. The fire was contained to the storage area, he said.

Seven pieces of Fire Department apparatus were at the scene for over an hour, Gorman said. A Boston ladder truck covered the stations.

Both fires are being investigated by the Quincy Fire Prevention Bureau, Quincy Police and State Fire

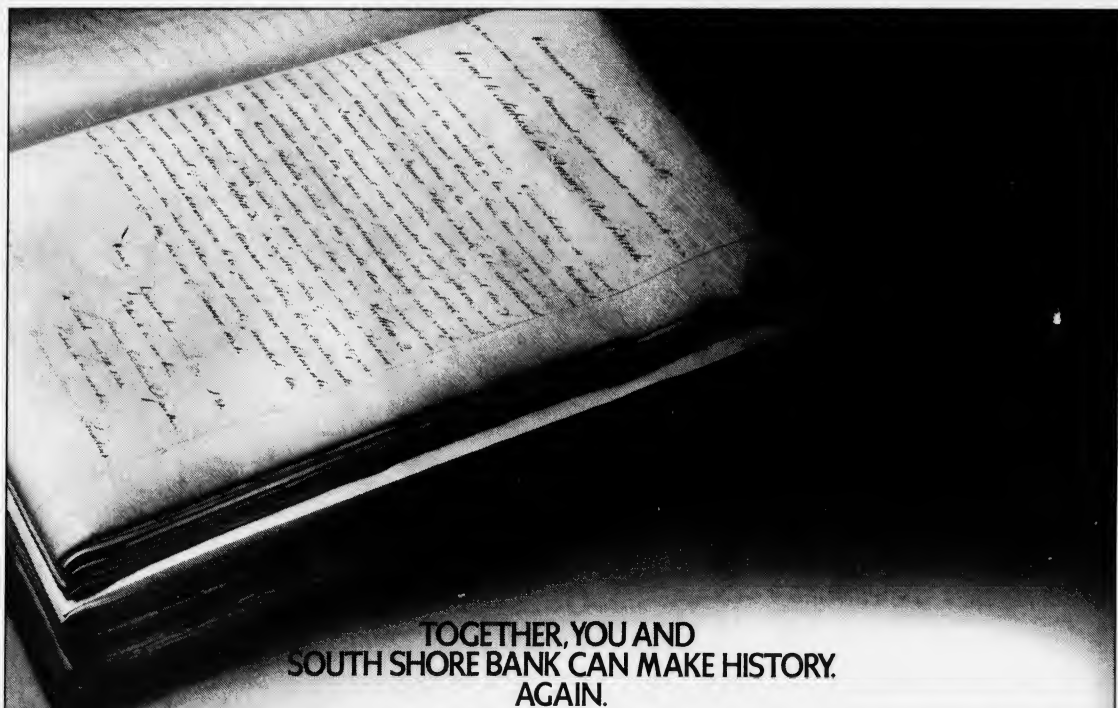

Marshall's Office.

There were no reported injuries.

Michael Sherben of the State Fire Marshall's Office said that a $5,000 reward is still being offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the North Quincy arsonist.

Sherben said that his office would prefer that callers identify themselves, but requests for anonymity will be honored. All information will be held in strict confidence, he said.

The toll-free number to call if you have any information is 1-800-682-9229, said Sherben.

Raymondi And The Glass Door

Daniel Raymondi rates an A-plus for his performance so far since taking over as Norfolk County treasurer.

The Quincy Democrat has made a number of wise moves to improve the image of the office that was left battered and in a shambles by his predecessor, James M. Collins.

Perhaps the best one of all — at least the most symbolic of all — was a little carpentry work.

He had the solid wooden door to the treasurer's private office removed and replaced with a glass door.

"The people should have the right to be able to look in and see what's going on in that office," he says.

"The office looked like it was hiding from the public. It was like there was no accountability."

Collins resigned under fire and a laundry-like list of indictments and is now serving 9-to-15 years for embezzling county funds.

Raymondi had the new door put in right after he was elected by a 2-1 vote of the Norfolk County Commissioners to fill Collins' unexpired term.

(George McDonald of Quincy and James Collins of Milton, no relation to the former treasurer, voted for Raymondi. Commissioner David Ahearn abstained.)

Raymondi then followed up with a few other moves: Funds collected at the office are now quickly deposited in the bank.

The petty cash account is a thing of the past. "Now," says Raymondi, "all transactions are by check."

Raymondi also has extended the office hours from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Under Collins, the end of the work day came at 4 p.m.

In addition to that, a management study of the office has been made with recommendations to provide guidelines to bring the office into the 20th century.

Among the recommendations: the hiring of a chief executive assistant-accountant to be in charge of the day-to-day operations and, to oversee the operations staff, and — report to the treasurer.

Also, the appointment of a chief executive assistant auditor who would also report directly to the treasurer, completely check all implementation and procedures performed daily in the office and — verify all figures.

That last part alone might be well worth whatever it cost to establish the two posts.

Most political observers agree that Raymondi will be tough to beat in this fall's election.

Some even think he's unbeatable.

He's making the right moves. He has brought dignity, respectability and credibility back to the office as it was, say, in the days of Raymond Warmington.

He will be listed on the ballot as the incumbent.

And, he comes from Quincy, the biggest community in Norfolk County.

City Councillor Patricia Toland has been toying with the thought of running for the job.

The feeling of many political observers is that after she's given it plenty of thought she will decide not to run.

If she does get in, she will have her work cut out to catch up to Raymondi who has a big head start. If she was going to run, they say, she should have announced a few weeks ago. Time is fleeting.

Raymondi and Toland don't really see eye-to-eye politically on many matters.

Sunbeams

By Henry Bosworth

RAYMONDI

If she did run, she could be in the role of a possible spoiler by splitting some of the Quincy votes and let someone from, say, Weymouth, Braintree, Milton or Brookline slip in.

But no names are being mentioned as possible candidates from those big vote-getting communities at this time.

Right now, one-on-one, Raymondi would be the favorite to win.

Especially if he keeps making the right moves.

QUINCY HAD STRONG representation at the St. Patrick's Day parade in South Boston, Sunday.

For the first time, city councillors marching carried a banner which said: "Happy St. Patrick's Day, Quincy City Council."

Senator Paul Harold, City Council President Steve McGrath and Councillors Patricia Toland, Michael Cheney and Thomas Nutley marched in front of the Quincy High School band which played some of the best Irish music in the parade.

EVERYONE IS IRISH on St. Patrick's Day, and most people share in "the wearing of the green." At a news conference Monday morning in the City Council offices, officials and press alike sported a bit of green, except for Councillor James Sheets who called the event with Mayor Francis McCauley.

Just before the Sun Ch. 8 TV cameras were ready to roll, Ray McEachern of the Patriot Ledger generously offered his shamrock-bedecked tie to Sheets, who needed a bit of help in straightening it.

"You can dress me up, but you can't take me anywhere," quipped Sheets. The former Council president also got a few smiles when he settled into his old chair and desk and declared, "I'm back home again."

FORMER Quincy High School Principal George Wilson is recuperating at his Worthington Circle, Braintree home after a hospital stay.

He's another one who knows where the Fountain of Youth is. Now 88, he for years has looked younger than some of his former pupils.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE Vice Chairman Stephen Durkin is hosting a St. Patrick's Celebration Friday at 8 p.m. at the Knights of Columbus Hall, Hollis Ave., North Quincy. Tickets are $10 per person, $15 a couple.

The fundraiser is being sponsored by the Stephen J. Durkin Committee which, of course, doesn't earmark the proceeds to a campaign for re-election to the school committee.

He could run for anything. Like, City Council at-large, state representative, etc.

OBSERVATION via the Quincy Kiwanis Club newsletter (and from wherever they got it): A bore is a person who spends so much time talking about himself that you don't have any time to talk about yourself.

FHA NOT THE LENDER

QUESTION: How does the FHA (Federal Housing Administration) raise all the money needed to finance the multitude of FHA loans?

ANSWER: The Federal Housing Administration does not actually lend you any money on the FHA mortgage loan. It only insures the loan, and only if it conforms to certain government rules and regulations.

So, you don't start with FHA. You start with the private lending institution from which you want to borrow money. You tell them how much you need, and show them the signed contract for the home you want to buy. They will arrange to inspect the property and have it appraised by FHA.

The FHA does not lend mortgage money. It only insures the loan.

Problem Not Solved But:

City Making Progress In Fighting School Drugs

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Quincy is making progress in its fight to keep drugs out of the schools.

That's the opinion of the School Department's Social Health Coordinator, John (Butch) Mahoney.

"We don't see as much drug use. It's nothing like it was 10 years ago," he said.

"When I first came here, it was a zoo. There was selling and dealing (of drugs) in the schools.

"As far as keeping drugs out of the schools, we're improving.

"I can't say the same for what the kids do after school and on weekends.

"It doesn't mean we've solved the problem. But there's been gradual improvement and it's ongoing.

One of the reasons for the improvement, according to Mahoney, is the city's willingness to admit to a problem, unlike many other communities.

"The School Department Administration, Police Chief, Mayors and City Commissioners have been very supportive," said Mahoney.

"They've been willing for a long time to say 'We have a problem, a community problem.'"

Mahoney said the city began its efforts against drug use in 1969.

"We had growing pains," he said.

"But today, the numbers (of incidents) are coming down in Quincy.

"In all the other communities, they're going up.

"In the whole state, they don't have an effort like Quincy's."

Part of that effort is a curriculum which concentrates more on building students' self image than scheduling lectures by narcotics agents and ex-junkies.

"We feel rather strongly that if a young person can approach an understanding of the concept of human worth, develop a strong and positive self image, be comfortable in communicating personal needs and feelings and be attuned to the needs and feelings of others, acknowledge problems and deal with them in a logical fashion and examine and live by a set of personal values, he will not abuse any chemical to the extent that it interferes with his physical well-being or his relationship with the world around him," said Mahoney.

Unfortunately, noted Ma-

JOHN MAHONEY

honey, some of the areas that can help students develop positive self-images, like music, art and sports, have been cut back due to budget constraints.

Mahoney, who is usually at the schools rather than behind a desk, talks to students in assemblies.

"I tell them what the law is, what the consequences are," said Mahoney. "I say, 'Don't be dumb. Don't make a stupid decision which may affect you for the rest of your life.'"

His warnings hit home with students when they see a classmate handcuffed and taken away in a police cruiser with assistance by Mahoney who is a special police officer authorized to make arrests.

Another part of the effort is programs like "Drug/Alcohol 1986," a three part seminar at North Quincy High School which was scheduled to conclude last night (Wednesday) 7:30 to 9 p.m. at North Quincy High School. It covered prevention, detection and treatment.

Mahoney stressed the importance of attendance at such events.

"Parents don't seem to understand how serious the problem is.

"If they did, they'd respond to more programs."

Mahoney also talked about groups such as CAASA (Committee Acting Against Substance Abuse), of which he is chairman. Among its 35 members are students, parents, police officers, a City Councillor and School Committee member.

On the national level, Mahoney praised the efforts of Nancy Reagan who started The Chemical People a year and a half ago. "She's done a fantastic job," he said.

The Chemical People sends out a monthly newsletter which Mahoney said "gives us a chance to compare other states to ours."

"In California, they've just started a 'Just Say No Club,'" cited Mahoney as an example.

A recent newsletter also warned of a new form of cocaine, known as crack, which is causing alarm as abuse increases.

"It's a very, very dangerous drug," said Mahoney. "and it's only a matter of time before it hits Boston."

However, Mahoney contends that marijuana is "the most insidious drug there is."

A number of scientists have reversed their earlier determination that it is a mild hallucinogen, according to Mahoney who noted that 61 of the 431 chemicals in marijuana are carcinogens (cancer-causers).

He also said that it takes six weeks to rid the body of the effects of one joint of marijuana which makes the heart beat twice as fast and can affect the reproductive system.

Experts are less sure what causes the use of drugs.

There are as many possible reasons for the drug problem as there are people to suggest them, said Mahoney.

He offered a quote which he has always remembered, "The deepest hunger of the human heart is approval of his fellow man."

"If you don't have that, you have nothing," said Mahoney.

Mahoney feels it is becoming more fashionable for kids to say no to drugs.

"You don't have to smoke a joint to be part of the crowd," he said.

But Mahoney stressed that the drug problem hasn't been solved.

"More people should be in the army to fight the problem," said Mahoney. "It's a community, state and national problem. We're in a very serious situation in this country."

Among those he'd like to see join in the battle are parents.

"The three most dangerous words related to drugs are 'not my kid,'" said Mahoney.

"I don't think the community at large understands the seriousness of the problem.

"It's also a health and legal problem. Officials are confused about what to do with youthful addicts.

"Should you throw kids who smoke pot in jail with rapists and murderers?" asked Mahoney, "or treat or coddle them?"

"There's not a simple solution."

Mahoney, whose job covers the areas of attendance, sex, alcohol and drugs, didn't start out to be a social health coordinator.

A half-back for the 1961 season with the New England Patriots, he started out as a teacher and football coach in Scituate.

In the late 1960s, the captain of the school's football team was killed in a car accident and drugs were a factor.

"That affected me a lot," said Mahoney whose career brought him back to his hometown of Quincy 14 years ago.

His enthusiasm for his job shows.

"Every day is a challenge," said Mahoney. "And I like a challenge. Kids are basically good.

"But even though we are doing all these things, it's not enough.

"We've put water on the fire, but we need more water.

"We need a more concerted effort."

Granite Cutters Demand $3 A Day

The Granite Cutters' Association rejected the salary schedule submitted by the manufacturers and demanded a $3 a day minimum.

In response the manufacturers said that $2.52 per day for eight hours work was their ultimatum. The manufacturers said they would continue to keep their yards closed and that if their new salary offer was rejected a second time, they would seek new workers.

The granite workers have been on strike for three weeks.

CITY COUNCIL ACTION

The City Council ordered a hearing for plans to widen Copeland St. from Crescent to the West Quincy Depot.

The Council also approved the installation of a fire alarm box at the corner of Dimmock St. and Whalley Rd.

EXPRESSMAN ARRESTED FOR VIOLATING "FAXON LAW"

A Quincy expressman was arrested by the city liquor officer and charged with illegal sale of liquor.

The arrest was made under the "Faxon Law". The law provided that "... whoever delivered liquor to any other person than the one to whom they are addressed or at any other place than that directed shall be guilty of an illegal sale."

CONGRESSMAN NAPHEN SEEKS GOVERNMENT BUILDING FOR QUINCY

Congressman Naphen introduced a bill to consolidate the Quincy and Wollaston post offices in effort to secure the construction of a government building in the city. The $13,000 receipts from Wollaston would be added to the Quincy office.

Under his plan, Wollaston would become a free delivery station. Deliveries for Wollaston and Norfolk Downs would remain as usual, however, with nine each way daily and one on Sunday.

NEW WOLLASTON FIRE STATION CONSIDERED

The City Council's committees on finance and public buildings and the fire department met this week to consider Chief Williams' proposal for a new Wollaston fire station.

The chief noted the "blunders" made in construction of the Central Station and the poor materials used, but said that the specifications for Wollaston called for first class materials.

The chief called for immediate approval of the plans because the present station was "dilapidated and unfit for occupancy."

FIRE DEPARTMENT POLITICS

The City Council this week attempted to take "politics" out of the fire department by placing the city's 10 permanent firemen under civil service.

The council action, however, came under much criticism because the chief and the 51 "call" men were exempt from the order.

Republicans were critical of the action and charged that the Democrats would control the appointment of call men. They noted that all the call men in Atlantic and West Quincy were "aggressive Democrats" and not as good as some Republican ex-members who sought re-appointment.
